ISLAND AIRPORT GETS APPROVAL OF PLAN BOARD

Site Off Burnham Park Advocated.

The Chicago plan commission yesterday formally approved the downtown landing field project for which the city council has authorized Mayor Kelly to seek $8,600,000 in Works Progress administration funds. The action was taken at a noon meeting of the executive committee at the commission's headquarters, 208 West Washington street.

The approval followed the recommendations of a special committee appointed on June 22 to investigate the proposals for the island field in the lake off 16th street. In its report, presented by the chairman, John Wentworth, the committee stated it is convinced that the only suitable downtown field would be off Burnham park.

"Maybe there is some misunderstanding among the executive committee members about the finding of our special committee and the findings of the committee appointed by Secretary of the Interior Ickes, of which Mr. Wentworth also was a member and which rejected the island field," said Col. A. A. Sprague, chairman of the plan commission.

Based on Public Hearing.

"The Ickes committee had to base its findings upon testimony taken at a public hearing," responded Wentworth. "Its report specifically said: 'Due to public sentiment expressed at its hearings the Ickes committee is not able—at this time—to recommend the lake front field.'

"I was for the island field from the beginning and that phrase 'at this time' was put into that report advisedly."

The dozen men gathered in the room nodded and Ald. John A. Massen [48th], who is a member of the plan commission, asked if the program for the island field contemplated the abandonment of the present field at 63d street and Cicero avenue.

"No, indeed," replied Mr. Wentworth. "The air lines' hangars out at the city field would be retained and all the overhaul and repair shops, the radio equipment, and all sport, military, and student flying now done off that field would stay there.

Passengers and Mail Only.

"Only passengers and mail would be unloaded on the downtown airport. Express in the package form would be classed with mail. Anything heavier than package express would be considered freight and would be handled through the 63d street field."

Another member of the commission asked if there were to be hangars on the island port.

"As a matter of fact, it will be necessary to have some sort of shelter for airplanes," Mr. Wentworth said. "That is the viewpoint of the air lines' operators who look at this thing in the most practical way. These hangars would be only 40 feet high and would be virtually invisible from the shore of Northerly Island.

Outright Grant of Cash.

"Incidentally there is an important phase of this thing which has taken shape during the last few days. As it is now, if the field is built with funds of the Federal Works Progress administration it will not be necessary for the city to pay back any big loan.

"All the money will be an outright grant. In that case, since the air lines have already agreed to pay 50 cents for every passenger originating or terminating a journey on the field, the city can conservatively expect enough income from that source not only to maintain the field but also to add funds to the public coffers."

Mr. Wentworth said that as a WPA airport project the proposals made by Mayor Kelly will not go to Secretary of Interior Ickes, who has definitly shown that he is hostile to the idea of an island field.

All airport projects, Wentworth explained, will be passed upon by Federal Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins. Hopkins has declared himself as favoring the downtown field.

Father of Six Dies Saving Partner's Life in Test Pit

Nashwauk, Minn., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Lowering himself into a gas-filled mine test pit, a father of six children today gave his life to save that of his partner. Steve Romito, 43, a laborer, trussed a rope around the unconscious form of Magner Johnson and succumbed as his friend was being raised to safety.

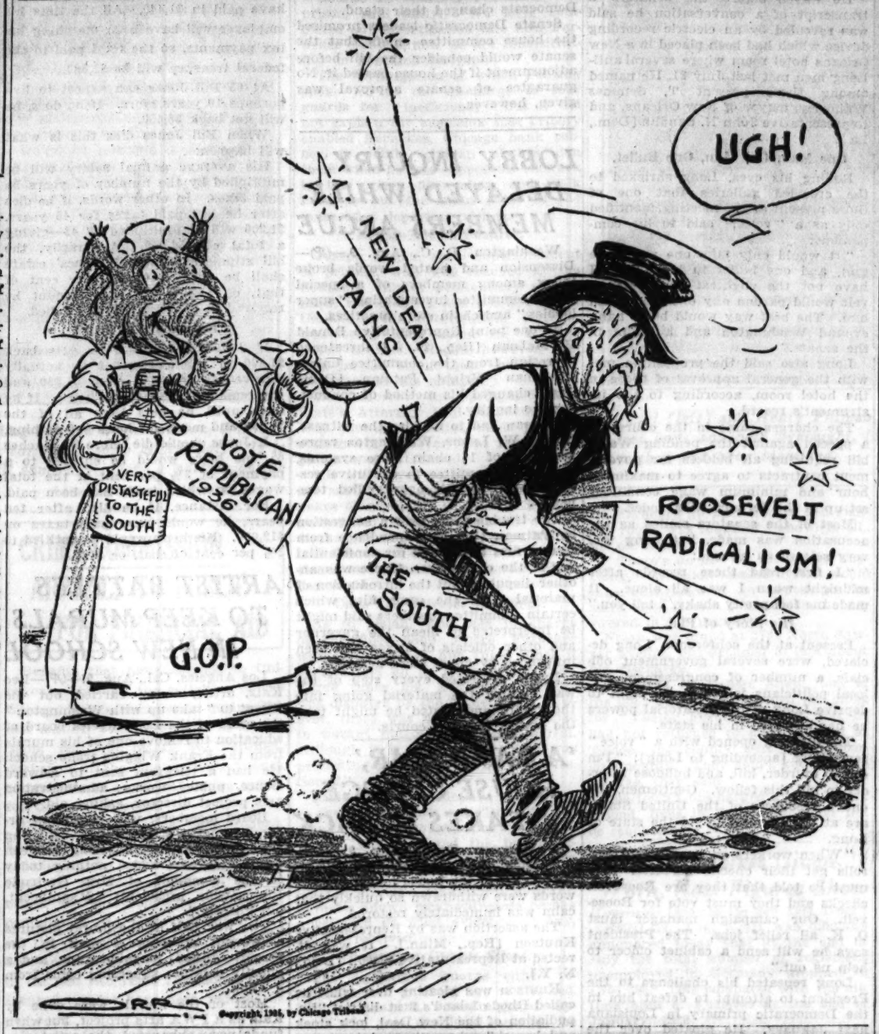
HE MAY COME AROUND TO IT YET



Agrees to Die in "Freezer" to Test Death

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—A human being is to replace monkeys in the "freezing death with revivification" experiment of Dr. Ralph S. Willard, research chemist, who startled scientists early this week by reviving a Rhesus monkey which had remained frozen to death for three days in his laboratory.

The man who has offered his life for the experiment is Stephen Simkhovitch, 34, the son of V. G. Simkhovitch, professor of economic history at Columbia university, and of Mrs. Mary K. Simkhovitch, head of Greenwich house in New York.

Simkhovitch and Dr. Willard in the presence of a battery of attorneys today exchanged contracts and signed agreements which will permit Dr. Willard to subject the strapping young playwright to his experiment's crucial test.

Willing to Aid Humanity.

Simkhovitch explained that he was motivated in making the attempt to defeat death by a desire to "do something worth while for humanity for a change" and to determine positively "if there is a life after death."

"I wish to know something about the soul and its relation to the human body," the subject explained. "I wish to know what happens when a person dies and I want to be able to come back and tell of these happenings. Life itself is unimportant where such vital matters as these are concerned. Some one must make these experiments—why not I?"

The purpose of the experiment is to determine which form of bacilli can be combatted by freezing at a point 30 degrees below zero. Dr. Willard previously has determined that tuberculosis, at least, can be combatted through this freezing treatment.

Must Be Dead 8 Hours.

It is the patient's hope that not only the tubercular bacilli but other germ life can be annihilated by freezing. The subject undergoing the experiment must be "dead" for at least eight hours before some germs are killed.

The bizarre contracts provide basically that Simkhovitch must go into the experiment, submit to freezing to death, and take his chances on being brought back to life without any responsibility on Dr. Willard's shoulders.

"When the experiment is performed, there will be at least six medical doctors present," said the chemist. "I shall insist on this. And the subject will have undergone exhaustive physical examinations by medical men before the experiment begins."

In the event that legal complications prevent the human experimentation in the United States, Dr. Willard said he would perform it in Mexico or any other land where there will be no interference. Attorneys pointed out that while no provisions have been made for control of such tests by any governing body, complications may arise which will prevent its completion in the United States.

If no official interference is made, the "freezing death" will begin as soon as a freezing cabinet designed for a human being can be constructed.

More than 180 applications were received from men who wished to submit to the tests, Dr. Willard said.

Science Monkey "Active."

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Jekal, the rhesus monkey which Dr. Ralph Willard reports he froze stiff and then revived, escaped from his cage today and fled through a Hollywood office building.

Alarmed, office workers telephoned police.

Dr. Willard arrived at the same time as two officers, captured his energetic 20 pound charge and stowed him back in his laboratory. The monkey, which Dr. Willard said he kept in a refrigerator for three days, will be given further blood tests to determine whether he still suffers from tuberculosis after the experiment.

Girl, 14, Sleeps Year After Seeing Father Kill Mother

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Physicians reported today that they had been unable to arouse a fourteen year old girl, Carmen Godoy, from a deep sleep which began nearly a year ago after she saw her father stab her mother to death. The physicians said the girl was shocked into unconsciousness by the tragedy. Liquid food is being injected to enable the girl to maintain her strength.

Cartoonist forced down by fog; fears he may miss Graf Zeppelin.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Aug. 9.—Bad flying conditions prevailed today. We arrived at the Buenos Aires airport at 6:30 a. m. It was raining and the sky was heavily overcast. Fog was reported by radio for the 130 mile flight over the Plate river to Montevideo.

We took off at 7 o'clock. After an hour's flying we encountered a dense fog, necessitating a descent to the river, which fortunately was smooth. Visibility was nil. We spent the next hour and a half taxiing around, trying to locate Montevideo, the plane not being equipped with a directional radio beam. We arrived at the city at 9:30.

After waiting four hours conditions had not improved and the plane will be obliged to spend the night here. We still have a week's leeway before the Graf Zeppelin takes off from Rio de Janeiro for Europe. A steamship leaves here at 9 o'clock tonight and the problem is whether to take it or risk further plane delays on account of fog. This is the worst season for such weather.

This ship is the last alternative which will assure our arrival at Rio de Janeiro before Aug. 17. I will now go into a huddle with my family and pilots. J. T. McC.

Indian Fighter Eats Goat on 111th Birthday

Bokchito, Okla., Aug. 9.—(AP)—"Uncle John" J. Allen celebrated the 111th anniversary of his birth today by being the life of the party.

Surrounded by 250 visitors, including 25 of his 100 descendants, Oklahoma's "champion family man" sat under a large shade tree, sank his fourth natural set of teeth into great chunks of barbecued goat and told stories.

He delighted his guests with tales of the western Indian wars when he "didn't fight much, just shot," and of the pioneer days when "people didn't have any grumbling."

Allen got his family man reputation by rearing 43 orphans in addition to eight children of his own [twins at 80].

He has three whisky toddies a day along with much strong coffee, smokes a pipe and occasionally a cigar. A favorite food with the centenarian is corn bread.

He explained that he has been, in this order, black haired, red haired, bald, black haired, and gray. The last crop is beginning to streak with black again.

SOCIAL SECURITY MEASURE SENT TO WHITE HOUSE

Private Systems to Get More Study.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—The social security bill, which President Roosevelt has termed the most important piece of legislation of the year, was sent to the White House today.

The bill cleared its last hurdle when the senate adopted the conference report, already agreed to by the house, eliminating the Clark private pension amendment, but with a promise that house and senate committees will try during the recess to work out a method of preserving private pension plans.

Senator Bennett C. Clark [Dem., Mo.], who led the fight to safeguard retirement systems voluntarily established by private industry, told the senate he still believed his amendment is necessary "to protect the rights of more than four million workmen already operating under private plans, particularly in case the social security bill should be declared unconstitutional."

More Time Required.

He said he recognized, however, that the senate conferees had made a sincere and conscientious effort to reach a compromise with the house, but that more time would be required to work out the details of a public compromise.

In view of the fact that the federal old age insurance system will not begin to function until 1937, Clark said he was yielding reluctantly and in the hope that a private pension amendment will be adopted in the next session.

Chairman Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.] of the senate conferees previously had explained how his associates tried to adjust the Clark amendment. Senator Walter F. George [Dem., Ga.] joined in expressing the hope that it will be accomplished later.

Features of Bill.

The bill has three main features:

1. Outright grants to the states to help them pay gratuities to needy persons 65 or over and grants for a variety of other welfare purposes including home care for dependent children, care of crippled children, pensions for the blind, maternal aid and public health work generally.

2. Establishes a federal old age insurance system for those now employed in industry, with a tax on employés and employers, starting in 1937. The theory of this plan is that as persons now at work build up their own old-age annuities, the burden of paying the gratuity pensions under the first heading will diminish gradually. It was in this part of the bill that Senator Clark tried to give industries that have voluntarily built up retirement plans, equal to or better than the government proposal, the right to remain out of the federal contributory tax system.

State Coöperation Sought.

3. The bill seeks to induce the states to enact unemployment insurance laws by levying another pay roll tax on employers only, and then allowing them to deduct as much as 90 per cent of this federal levy if a similar unemployment tax is put into effect in the state.

The pay roll taxes paid by employés and employers under the federal old age insurance system would not apply to that part of a salary in excess of $3,000 a year, and the benefits paid to the employé when he retires at 65 would range from $10 to $85 a month, depending on his pay level and length of service.

The taxes start at 3 per cent, but gradually will increase to 9 per cent by 1949.

HOW INSURANCE WORKS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—(AP)—By way of example, this is how the contributory old age pension system in the social security bill is designed to apply to "Bill Jones":

Suppose young Bill is 20 when the law goes into effect and makes an average monthly salary of $100 until he is 65. He will get a monthly pension, until his death, of $53.75.

In detail, here is what will happen to him:

In the calendar years 1937, 1938, and 1939 he will pay a salary tax of 1 per cent, or a total of $36 for the three years. In 1940, 1941, 1942 he will pay 1½ per cent, or $54. In 1943, 1944, and 1945 the tax will be 2 per cent, or $72. In 1946, 1947, and 1948 the tax will be 2½ per cent, or $90. From

Reject House Soak Rich Tax on Inheritance

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Beginning what is expected to be a series of sweeping modifications of the $250,000,000 tax bill, passed recently by the house, the senate finance committee voted 11 to 8 today to strike from the measure the drastic inheritance tax provisions which the house ways and means committee had estimated would yield $86,000,000 a year.

As an offset to this major operation on the revenue raising power of the measure, the committee instructed experts to begin preparing a new schedule of rates on estate taxes.

The committee also approved the graduated corporation income levies in the house bill rather than the wider range schedule asked by President Roosevelt. The house rates provide for 13¼ per cent levy on net incomes of $15,000 or less, and 14¼ per cent on those over $15,000. The present corporation tax is 13¾ per cent and 2 per cent added for filing consolidated returns.

Secret Leaks Out.

These actions became known despite a committee resolve to avoid "outside pressure" by keeping its deliberations secret.

As a preliminary to its executive discussions the committee voted 12 to 3 to maintain the strictest secrecy concerning changes until it was ready to report a completed measure to the senate. It then began going through the controversial clauses at a speed that left observers bewildered.

After two hours of discussion, the committee decided to increase the present capital stock tax from $1 to $1.50 per $1,000 of capital.

It also determined to modify the excess profits levy, which, under the house bill, would tax at a rate of 5 to 20 per cent all corporate profits above 8 per cent of present capital valuations.

Permit 10 Per Cent Earnings.

There were no conflicting reports as to the extent of the excess profits tax modification, but reliable sources indicated that under the change the tax would be applied only after earnings of 10 per cent and then at the rate of 6 per cent up to 18 per cent of profits on invested capital.

Although in some respects this decision was interpreted as a move in the direction of President Roosevelt's recommendation in his tax message, abolition of all inheritance tax provisions was not in this category, Mr. Roosevelt having specifically recommended the imposition of a tax on "very large" inheritances.

He made no suggestion of an excess profits tax and the treasury department, although it did not openly condemn the house bill in this respect, indicated that the levy would react to the detriment of small business and showed unmistakably that it would be loath to undertake its administration.

The committee's dealing with the inheritance tax levies aroused speculation as to whether it might not return to the section later and provide a more moderate schedule of rates.

VICTIM QUENCHES ENTHUSIASM OF 2 HOLDUP MEN

Charles F. McCall, 1258 Ardmore avenue, used an unusual weapon last night to rout two robbers who tried to hold him up as he and Mrs. McCall were putting the family car in the garage behind their home.

As the bandits approached the garage McCall saw them and slammed both the alley door and a side door leading into his yard. When the pair attempted to push through the side door, he seized a fire extinguisher and squirted the chemical into the face of one man, blinding him.

The other robber fired a shot through the door, puncturing a tire on the automobile in which Mrs. McCall was sitting. Both men then fled, leaving the field to McCall and the extinguisher.

DOLE FORBIDDEN WORKS STRIKERS BY ROOSEVELT

Office Forces Join N. Y. Walkout.

New York, Aug. 9. — [Special.] — President Roosevelt, in Washington, today, banned the use of federal money to provide home relief for striking Works Progress administration relief workers. This decision, which backed a previous one made by Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, gave New York City and state officials the choice of financing a strike against the government or cutting off the workers entirely.

The number of union mechanics who had struck was estimated by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's staf at 1,117 today, while Thomas Murray, head of the executive committee directing the strike, placed the number at 2,500.

Strike Spread Imminent.

A spread of the strike to white collar workers was imminent. One organization, the Bookkeepers, Stenographers, and Accountants' union, an A. F. of L. affiliate, authorized a strike of all its members on WPA projects, "in support of the building trades and in protest against the security wage rates."

The Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists, and Technicians voted to pull off its members on any project affected by the building trades strike. This organization, containing 1,800 members, will vote Wednesday on a full membership strike.

The major problem of how the strikers were to be fed was Mayor F. H. La Guardia's principal worry. He wrestled with it most of the afternoon in his office, and then took it home with him.

U. S. Funds Stopped.

Previously officials of the temporary emergency relief bureau and of the home relief bureau had declared the strikers would be put on home relief. The withdrawal of federal funds by Hopkins changed that picture, and today neither Frederick I. Daniels, head of the FERA, nor Miss Charlotte Carr, in charge of the home relief bureau, would venture an opinion.

Daniels, in a letter to Miss Carr which was not made public, warned her that the appropriation for August had been made and that no further funds would be forthcoming. This was declared to mean that no extension of the relief rolls would be possible.

The home relief appropriation for August, all of which is administered under Miss Carr, is $11,118,200. Of this sum $3,444,937 is provided by the city, and the rest by the FERA.

Must Separate Funds.

Within the bureau, it was said, there exists no manner of separating city and state from federal funds. To carry out the ban of President Roosevelt, the home relief bureau must set up some system to keep the money separate, in the event it is decided that strikers are eligible for local home relief. If the officials decide they are not, the strikers are out in the cold.

A single man receives from home relief about $10 every two weeks, a married man with wife and one child, $18, and a family of five, $22. Thus, the strikers, providing they are accepted for home relief, would be giving up a wage of $93.50 a month, on the ground that it is not the prevailing rate for their trade, in order to accept from $20 to $44 a month straight dole.

The fact that the unions were banking on their ability to go back on home relief if they strike was indicated by George Meany, president of the state federation of labor, who said he had been assured by Miss Carr that "whether or not a man is on strike will have nothing to do with his home relief status."

Call Men Off Jobs.

The unions in 36 building trades sent out delegations to pull their men off the WPA jobs today. There were reports at Johnson's office that many who had struck returned to work. More, however, walked off.

Johnson advanced to Monday night the deadline for the men to return to work. Murray predicted the strike would not really get under way until Monday.

In Atlantic City, members of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor gave consideration to the New York WPA strike and its effect upon other regions. William Green, president of the A. F. of L., refused comment, beyond saying that the labor leaders had warned congress that the prevailing wage scale should be paid on federal works projects.

J. W. Williams, head of the association's building trades department, blamed the failure to provide for pre-falling wage scales upon President Roosevelt's brain trust. "The President has had too much theoretical advice, and not enough practical advice," he said.

In Philadelphia, a disputed number of WPA workers in the navy yard went on strike during the day.

NO WORK, NO DOLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Work at the wages set by the New Dealers or be out off from all government relief.

This was the ultimatum which President Roosevelt today handed the unemployed in New York and other cities who are protesting against the wages paid them under his 4 billion dollar work relief program.

Speaking quietly and evidently in good humor, the President at his semi-weekly press conference defied the rising storm of protest against his relief wage scales. He said flatly that he is not planning to yield to demands for higher wages and that unemployed persons who leave work relief jobs will not be allowed to return to a straight dole.

Strike in New York.

One strike against the wage scale of $93.50 per month for skilled workers was already raging in New York City today and threats were being voiced in Philadelphia, Cleveland, and other centers. They have the backing of the American Federation of Labor to the extent that William Green, A. F. of L. president, has declared them inevitable under the President's policy.

Mr. Roosevelt, however, has placed the "strikers" in the position of accepting what the New Deal offers or losing all government relief. They will not be permitted to fall back on a dole. So confident is he that the unemployed must in the end accept his terms that he said today nothing would be done to induce them to return to work relief projects.

Drawn by Question.

The President's announcement that "strikers" would be cut off from direct relief was drawn from him by questions fired by reporters and was not volunteered. When asked if strikers would be returned to the dole he said they would not, adding that the work relief program was meant to end that sort of thing.

The jobs were offered to relief clients in order to eliminate the dole on the general theory that continuance of the dole was bad for the country's morale, the President commented. Work relief was intended to be temporary pending the time the unemployed could be reabsorbed by private industry.

If the workers do not want to take work relief in this form, there is no compulsion on them to do so, the President said before admitting that "strikers" would be cut off the dole. He added, however, that the skilled workers, who are the chief protestants, need not work at their trade if they felt that the work relief wages for their trade were too low, but could take other relief jobs.

Denies Increase Planned.

He denied all reports that he was considering an increase in the wage scales to meet the demands of the workers.

Asked if the administration would do anything to arbitrate the work relief strikes and induce the "strikers" to return, the President countered by asking "What strikers?" The reporter yielded, saying "so-called strikers."

"That's it," the President laughed, "they are not strikers."

"What are they?" he was asked.

"They have just returned to their homes," he laughed. He would not do anything to induce them to leave their homes again, although he hoped they would do so, he added.

Turning to another New Deal labor dispute the President said that he expected Secretary Perkins or Secretary Swanson would appoint an arbitration board tomorrow to settle the strike at the New York Shipbuilding company's Camden plant which has been delaying naval construction.

Security Draft Adopted.

The President also expressed pleasure over final congressional action today on the social security bill which the New Dealers hope will replace relief. The senate today adopted the conference draft of the bill, describd by the President as the most important of the session, and sent it to the White House for his signature. The house adopted the compromise bill yesterday.

Mr. Roosevelt announced that he signed into law today the bill bringing buses and trucks under regulation by the interstate commerce commission.

He said that he will sign the Wilcox bill for increasing the American air forces, but said he did so only on the grounds that it was a statement of congressional policy. Actual appropriation of money and construction of planes will have to wait upon more important budgetary considerations, he indicated.

SUE N. Y. MAYOR FOR INCREASE IN RELIEF DOLE

New York, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Mayor F. H. La Guardia was sued today by a couple who seek an increase in their home relief allotment.

The couple, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nahoum, said they had four children and that the $58.20 a month which they receive is insufficient.

After setting aside $35.50 for food and rent, they said, they have only $22.70, or $5.50 a week to provide the family with clothing, ice, medicines, and other incidentals.

A mandamus action will be argued in Brooklyn Supreme court on Aug. 27.

STATE WPA JOBS OPEN NEXT WEEK; PAY FIGHT HINTED

City Building Tradesmen to Ask Prevailing Rate.

The first men to be employed in Illinois under the President's four billion dollar works progress administration will go to work next week on 26 projects scattered throughout the state. This was announced yesterday by Ralph Burke, deputy WPA administrator for Illinois, following a conference with division heads.

The projects, consisting mainly of road and park improvements and minor construction jobs, have been approved by Washington officials and will give employment to an estimated 3,000 men for a year. The work will cost the federal goverr $1,605,000.

Clash Over Pay Is Hint·:.

While Burke was announcing details of the projects, rumblings of the labor trouble in New York City over the wages to be paid in the government's new experiment were heard in Chicago. Strikes have been called among New York workmen, who refuse to accept the "security wages" offered by the WPA and demand the union scale.

Patrick J. Sullivan, president of the Chicago building trades council, declared yesterday that he would demand prevailing wages for his men. These wages for various classifications would be roughly twice the "security" pay.

A year ago, Sullivan said, President Roosevelt pleaded for higher wages with reduced hours. Sullivan added he couldn't understand the change of position.

Skilled workers under the union scale in the building trades receive from $1.31 to $1.50 an hour in Chicago. Under the WPA program the work month would total 140 hours and the skilled worker's monthly earnings would be $85, or an hourly wage of about 60 cents.

Wage Schedule Announced.

The wages to be paid in Illinois under WPA were announced yesterday as follows:

Chicago and Cook county—unskilled labor, $55 a month; intermediate, $65; skilled, $85, and professional and technical, $94; in communities of 50,000 to 100,000, wages respectively under these classifications, $52, $60, $75, and $83; communities of 25,000 to 50,000, $48, $55, $70, and $77; communities of 5,000 to 25,000, $44, $50, $63, and $69, and communities under 5,000, $40, $45, $55 and $61.

WPA officials in Illinois were unwilling to comment on any struggle with labor that appeared in the offing. They did say that the "security" wages under the President's program would be anywhere from 50 to 100 per cent more income than the direct relief now given a man out of a job.

Eight projects for downstate Illinois, proposing grants of federal funds totaling $273,027, were forwarded to Washington during the day for approval. Local funds of $52,556 would be added to the government money and employment would be given to 400 men, it was said.

FIND EVANSTON POULTRY RAISER SHOT TO DEATH

Fred H. Lord, 42 years old, 1411 Chicago avenue, Evanston, partner in a chicken farm, was found shot to death last evening in his automobile at the side of Waukegan road in Lake Forest, a mile south of the Knollwood Country club. A revolver from which one shot had been fired was lying beside him. This and powder burns on his head and a note he had left convinced the Lake Forest police that Lord had committed suicide.

The note, typewritten and placed in his hat band, said that in case of accident Mrs. Fred Lord at the Chicago avenue address in Evanston was to be notified. Mrs. Lord told the police that her husband had been a partner in a chicken farm at Three Lakes, Wis. A letter found in Lord's pocket was signed "Ann," Mrs. Lord's first name, and disclosed that the couple had been having financial difficulties.

The place in the road where the car was found is midway between the estates of James G. Alexander and George T. Buckingham.

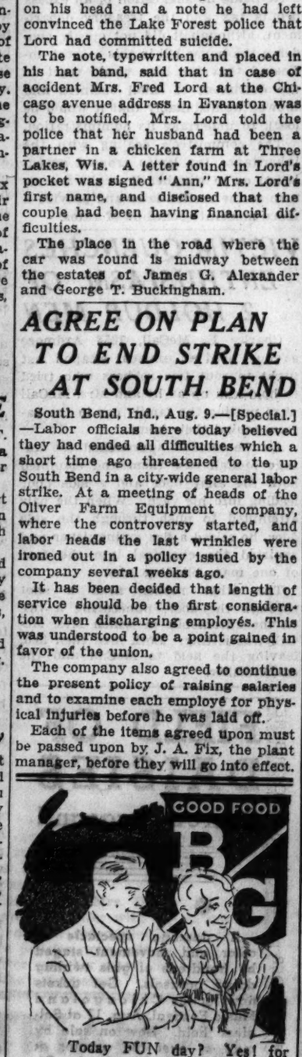
AGREE ON PLAN TO END STRIKE AT SOUTH BEND

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Labor officials here today believed they had ended all difficulties which a short time ago threatened to tie up South Bend in a city-wide general labor strike. At a meeting of heads of the Oliver Farm Equipment company, where the controversy started, and labor heads the last wrinkles were ironed out in a policy issued by the company several weeks ago.

It has been decided that length of service should be the first consideration when discharging employés. This was understood to be a point gained in favor of the union.

The company also agreed to continue the present policy of raising salaries and to examine each employé for physical injuries before he was laid off.

Each of the items agreed upon must be passed upon by J. A. Fix, the plant manager, before they will go into effect.



Today FUN day? Yes! for some people. BUT . . . how about your MOM? Why not buy her a new little gadget and a whiff of the perfume she used to use and take her to a movie and bring her to a B/G for dinner and hold HER hand? (she's held yours often enough). WELL?

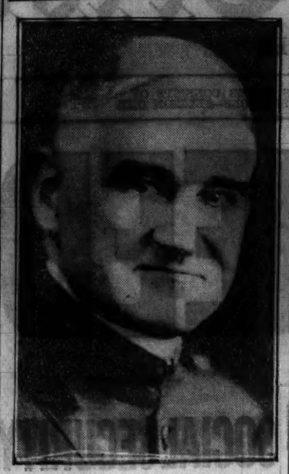
DISMISSED



BRIG. GEN. A. E. WILLIAMS.

WILLIAMS MUST LEAVE SERVICE, RULES PRESIDENT

Acts on Findings of Court Martial.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today ordered Brig. Gen. Alexander E. Williams dismissed from the service on Aug. 12. The order followed approval of a general court martial verdict against the officer, who was formerly assistant quartermaster general of the army.

Williams, who holds the permanent rank of colonel, was found guilty last May 23 of "soliciting and obtaining a loan of $2,500" from Frank E. Speicher, lobbyist for a tire tube company, in connection with war department contracts. He was also found guilty of giving false testimony regarding the loan to the house military affairs committee.

Must Recommend Dismissal.

The court martial recommended Williams' dismissal. An army courtmartial has no discretion except to recommend dismissal if an officer is found guilty of charges preferred against him.

Discretion to commute a courtmartial sentence is vested in the President. Although members of the court urged Mr. Roosevelt to exercise clemency in the case of Col. Williams, he refused to do so.

Williams is not eligible to draw retired pay, which would have amounted to three-quarters of his base pay of $6,000 a year after more than 30 years of service. The court martial cited the long service in its plea for clemency.

Born in North Carolina.

Williams, who was born in Linden, N. C., was graduated from West Point in 1898. He was awarded the distinguished service medal for service in France and the silver star for gallantry in action against the Spanish forces at Santiago, Cuba, in 1898. He is 60 years old.

The charges against Williams were preferred as a result of an investigation by the inspector general of the army at the direction of Secretary of War Dern into lobbying activities in the war department. The findings of the court martial were reviewed by the judge advocate general and the board of review and transmitted to the President by Secretary Dern.

DOWNPOUR COOLS CITY; LIGHTNING HITS POLICE RADIO

A sudden, furious, but comparatively brief rain and electrical storm swept Chicago, particularly the areas along the lake, shortly after 2 o'clock this morning and tumbled the temperatures, according to unofficial reports, nearly eight degrees within half an hour.

Rain amounting to almost cloudburst proportions drenched the loop area and near north side, but continued for less than 20 minutes.

Lightning struck the transmitter of police radio station WPDD on the Town Hall station during the storm, putting it out of commission for about half an hour until fuses could be replaced. Meantime, north side messages to cars were handled by the other two police stations.

Fire department and police squads were summoned when lightning struck the St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church, Walton street and Hoyne avenue, and set fire to the roof.

Lightning struck a barn owned by Herman Cohrs, 196th street and Riegel road, near Homewood, burning it to the ground. One horse and a quantity of feed were destroyed.

SEN. LONG TELLS SENATE OF PLOT TO MURDER HIM

Says Pardon Expected from President.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—A plot to murder him and then obtain a pardon from President Roosevelt for the crime was charged by Huey Long, the Louisiana kingfish, in an outburst upon the floor of the senate today.

He waved before the senators a transcript of a conversation he said was revealed by an electric recording device which had been placed in a New Orleans hotel room where several anti-Long men met last July 21. He named among those present T. Semmes Walmsley, mayor of New Orleans, and Representative John N. Sandlin [Dem., La.].

One Man, One Gun, One Bullet.

Rolling his eyes, Long shrieked to the crowded galleries that one of those present at the meeting, identified only as a "voice," said to his companions:

"It would only take one man, one gun, and one bullet to kill Long. I have not the slightest doubt Roosevelt would pardon any one who killed him. The best way would be to hang around Washington and kill him in the senate."

Long also said the proposition met with the general approval of those in the hotel room, according to the instrument's record.

The charges came in the course of a speech against the pending Walsh bill requiring all bidders for government contracts to agree to maximum hour and minimum wage conditions set up in the defunct NRA codes.

Most of the senators smiled as the accusation was made, but Long was very solemn as he said:

"I first read these records after midnight when I was all alone. It made me feel pretty shaky, I tell you."

His Story of Plot.

Present at the conference, Long declared, were several government officials, a number of congressmen, and local politicians joined in the fight to deprive Long of the dictatorial powers he has assumed in his state.

The meeting opened with a "voice" remarking [according to Long]: "I'm out to murder, kill, and bulldose in order to kill this fellow. Gentlemen, the entire resources of the United States are at our disposal to rid the state of Long.

"When workers on government pay rolls get their checks hereafter they must be told that they are Roosevelt checks and they must vote for Roosevelt. Our campaign manager must O. K. all relief jobs. The President says he will send a cabinet officer to help us out."

Long repeated his challenge to the President to attempt to defeat him in the Democratic primary in Louisiana next January. He gloated over the results of the congressional election in Rhode Island where a Republican was elected, overcoming a 21,000 Democratic plurality of only a few months ago.

Assails Walsh Bill.

Referring to the Walsh bill before the senate, the Kingfish asserted:

"It is just such blackmailing legislation as this bill that is making the people tired of Roosevelt. This bill makes bidders for government contracts swear to do what the Supreme court said no one could do."

Aside from Long's attack the Walsh bill encountered stiff opposition from Republican and Democratic conservatives. Senator Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Md.] detailed the far reaching scope of the measure.

"Every man who borrows $1,000 from the Home Owners' Loan corporation, for example," he said, "comes under this bill. It provides not only that bidders for government contractors comply with the code wage and hour conditions but also any one borrowing money for construction work from any government agency. The man seeking to repair his home with government money must pledge that he will have that work done under the codes."

Long proposed to attach the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage bill to the Walsh measure. He did it, he told the senate, to circumvent the senate steering committee decision to smash any extraneous riders to pending bills during the present session, thereby killing the Walsh bill.

War Department Allots Funds for Joliet Dredging

COAL BILL DEADLOCK IS REPORTED BROKEN; LAST OF 'MUST' ACTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—The deadlock in the house ways and means committee over the Guffey coal bill was reported to have been broken today. Democratic leaders voiced a hope that they will be able to pass at this session this last of the President's "must" measures.

White House pressure was said to have been responsible for the yielding of enough Democratic members on the committee to swing a majority to a favorable report upon the measure.

After a secret meeting today, Chairman Robert L. Doughton [Dem., N. C.] announced that 14 votes out of 25 had been mustered in support of the bill. Previously, the committee had stood 14 to 11 against it, eight Democrats and six Republicans insisting that it was unconstitutional. Three Democrats changed their stand.

Senate Democratic leaders promised the house committee chiefs that the senate would consider the bill before adjournment if the house passed it. No guarantee of senate approval was given, however.

LOBBY INQUIRY DELAYED WHILE MEMBERS ARGUE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Dissension and heated words broke today among members of a special house committee investigating "super lobbies" and chain store practices.

At one point Representative Donald H. McLean [Rep., N. J.] threatened to resign from the committee unless Chairman Wright Patman [Dem., Tex.] changed his method of conducting the inquiry.

Patman had to dismiss the witness, Robert W. Lyons, Washington representative of 14 chain store systems, until the committee in executive session could smooth over ruffled tempers.

The trouble arose over a suggestion by Patman that correspondence from Lyons' files be printed for confidential use of the committee. There was another dispute about the introduction of material from the same files which certain committee members said might be interpreted to mean the governor and other officials of Texas had been influenced by chain store lobbyists.

Lyons protested every step of the way against the material going into the record and hinted he might take the matter into the courts.

'A DAMN LIAR,' HOUSE CHARGE; TAKES IT BACK

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—(AP)—A shouted "You're a damn liar" reverberated in the house today, but the words were withdrawn so quickly that calm was immediately restored.

The assertion was by Representative Knutson [Rep., Minn.]. It was directed at Representative Sisson [Dem., N. Y.].

Knutson was gloating over what he called Rhode Island's first district "Repudiation of the New Deal, lock stock and barrel," when Sisson interrupted to say the Minnesotan's speech "sounds like something I've read before."

"You're a damn liar," Knutson retorted heatedly.

Whereupon Representative Blanton [Dem., Tex.], who has had experience in such emergencies, demanded that Knutson's words be "taken down"—the preliminary to expunging them from the record.

"I withdraw those words, I withdraw those words," Knutson told the speaker excitedly.

And so ended the incident.

SOCIAL SECURITY MEASURE SENT TO WHITE HOUSE

Bill Provides for Old Age Pensions.

1949 to 1981, inclusive, the tax will be 3 per cent, or a total of $1,188 for those 33 years.

Pay in $1,440.

Thus, in 45 years, Bill Jones will have paid in $1,440. All the time his employer will have been matching his tax payments, so the total paid to the federal treasury will be $2,880.

At 65 Bill Jones can expect to live perhaps 10 years more. If he does, he will get back $6,450.

When Bill Jones dies this is what will happen:

His average annual salary will be multiplied by the number of years he paid taxes. In other words, if he dies after he has paid taxes for 45 years, $1,200 will be multiplied by 45—giving a total of $54,000. Arbitrarily, the bill stipulates that Bill Jones' estate shall be entitled to 3½ per cent of that, or $1,890—less any amount he received in pensions before he died.

Remainder to Heirs.

If Jones dies before he gets back $1,890 in pensions, what he actually received is deducted from $1,890 and the remainder paid to his heirs. If he lives until he gets back all of the $1,890 and more, his heirs get nothing.

If Jones should die before he reaches 65, his heirs would be entitled to a payment of 3½ per cent of the total wages on which taxes had been paid.

For instance, if he died after ten years, he would have paid taxes on $12,000. His heirs would be entitled to 3½ per cent of that, or $420.

ARTIST BATTLES TO KEEP MURALS IN NEW SCHOOL

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Leo Katz, artist, today carried out his threat to "take up with Washington" the order of the Los Angeles board of education to remove one of his murals from the Frank Wiggins trade school. He had a telegram sent to Edward Bruce, public works administration arts project director, asking aid.

Board members, who last night ordered removal of the mural, depicting a youth apparently choosing between peace and war, added nothing today to the comment of Mrs. Gertrude Rounsavelle, president; "Magnificent, but ghastly."

The war half of the mural pictures a woman stabbing a man in the throat; cannon, machine guns, and a ghastly creature squeezing coins from a skull.

Most of the murals were done by Katz as a PWA arts project, but when funds were exhausted, the artist continued the work at night and on weekends.

Fined for Using Family Relief Check on Liquor

Harry De Camp, 41 years old, 3636 Wallace street, was fined $100 yesterday by Judge Edward A. Casey in Stockyards court on a charge of disorderly conduct after his wife, Dorothy, testified that he spent their relief check of $14 on liquor. De Camp was unable to pay the fine and was taken to the Bridewell.

Hopes of Air Lines Rise as Mail Measure Passes

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Officials of the seven major air transport lines operating from Chicago yesterday collaborated in explaining the effects expected from the passage on Thursday evening of the long awaited amendment to the air mail laws by both the house and the senate in Washington. The bill is now in the hands of the president.

Representatives of United Air Lines, American Airlines, Northwest Airlines, Eastern Air Lines, Braniff Airways, Transcontinental and Western Air, and Chicago and Southern Airlines said the most important provision of the bill assures that their combined annual pay for flying mail will be increased by $1,003,327.

In addition they are to receive a bonus of slightly more than $500,000, prorated among them, to supplement lower rates of pay at which they carried mail during the period last March 1 to date, they said. The bonus comes as a result of the ruling which will make the rate increase granted in the bill retroactive.

Interested in I. C. C. Clause.

Th second significant point in the new measure is the delegation of power to determine rates of pay for air mail to the interstate commerce commission. The airline operators said this was particularly important since it placed this power in the hands of a quasi-judicial body, taking it from the post office department which hitherto has had dictatorial rights over mail pay rates.

Even though the bill passed sets a maximum of 33 1-3 cents per mile as pay for all loads of 300 pounds of mail or less, and an absolute maximum of 40 cents per mile for loads of more than 300 pounds carried on any trip, the mail contractors believe this is a step in the right direction.

Of almost equal weight is the provision which enables the commerce commission to issue certificates of convenience and necessity for the airlines as is done in the cases of other forms of transportation. Hitherto the operators have flown entirely at the caprice of the post office department.

Exactly what the new rates will mean to the seven contractors flying out of Chicago airport is shown in the following table which includes present annual pay, the increase or decrease and the percentage of all air mail carried by the individual contractors:

Contractor	Present annual pay.	Increase or decrease.	Percentage of mail flown.
United	$3,004,348	+$76,791	41.2
American	1,767,205	+399,016	12.52
Northwest	821,057	—136,604	1.82
Eastern	1,057,407	+158,033	11.66
Braniff	339,841	+100,083	2.98
TWA	1,298,565	+348,592	23.42
Chgo. & So.	201,996	+144,283	.23

These seven lines flying from Chicago carry 95.63 per cent of all the air mail flown in the United States.

"Freezes Air Mail Map."

Under the paragraphs relating to the right of the commerce commission to issue certificates of convenience and necessity, the bill provides that no air mail contractor may open new passenger services over routes already served by another contractor who holds the air mail contract for the specific route. In effect this ruling "freezes" the air line map of the country as it was of July 1.

Of the seven lines operating here all but Transcontinental and Western Air favor this regulation. Officers of this line assert that the ruling prevents healthy competition and is liable to injure the air line service this community receives.

Expected to Carry Passengers.

They say the postoffice department expects all mail contractors to earn a substantial part of their necessary revenue from hauling passengers. If the given passenger revenue on any route is split between an operator who does not have a contract and one who does, it will mean that the postoffice must pay a higher rate for mail transportation in order to make up the loss of passenger revenue to the contractor.

Several of the operators' representatives pointed out that although TWA does not hold a mail contract for its Chicago-New York route, the company can continue to fly its three schedules daily between the two cities because these were in effect on July 1. No service that Chicago now has will be endangered by the act, it was also pointed out.

TRUE BILL VOTED AGAINST ZENGE; GUARD WITNESS

Trial Early in September to Be Sought.

The grand jury was reported yesterday to have voted a true bill charging Mandeville W. Zenge, tall young Missouri carpenter, with the murder by mutilation of Dr. Walter J. Bauer. It was then announced by the state's attorney's office that efforts would be made to try Zenge early in September.

If present plans are carried out, an indictment will be returned on Monday or Tuesday. Zenge will be arraigned soon afterward and, it is understood, will plead not guilty. A trial date will then be set. Between the time of the arraignment and the trial Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty, who is in charge of the prosecution, will take a vacation.

Widow's Statement Read Again.

The grand jury, which listened on Tuesday to the story of Mrs. Louise Schaffer Bauer, widow of the slain doctor and former sweetheart of Zenge, insisted yesterday that all of the state's witnesses be called in. This was done. Besides listening to four men who had not heretofore testified, the grand jurors had Mrs. Bauer's statement read again by a court reporter.

At least one of the witnesses was produced reluctantly by the state. He is William Leinert, a taxicab driver, who is believed to have been the man who called the state's attorney's office and informed policemen there where Zenge could be found. This was a week ago yesterday, after Zenge had made a futile effort to evade pursuit by writing a fake suicide note. Leinert has been in custody since then.

Evidence of his importance in the prosecution was given when he was led into the grand jury room. Two policemen accompanied him and forbade photographers to take his picture. They also prevented his carrying on any conversation with any one he met outside the room.

Report Zenge Confided in Him.

One of the reports current was that Zenge, getting in touch with Leinert shortly after the failure of the suicide hoax, told the cab driver all about his movements in Chicago at the time of the crime and afterward. No one with actual knowledge, however, would confirm this.

Investigation has shown that Leinert was not, as some have suspected, an old friend of the accused Missourian, and that the pair did not meet, in all probability, until a few days before Dr. Bauer was mutilated. This would decrease the likelihood that any important disclosures were made to Leinert, but the whole case is so filled with mysteries and inconsistencies that this situation would not be unbelievable.

The other witnesses heard yesterday were Louis Krohn, clerk of the Lindy hotel at 551 West Madison street, where Zenge was stopping at the time of his arrest; John Bender, clerk of the Masterbilt hotel, at 4015 Lake Park avenue, where the Missourian was a guest on July 26, five days before the killing, and John Giannini, cab driver, who took the alleged killer to Navy pier the night of the suicide hoax.

Widow's Family to Aid State.

Reports that the family of the widow would not be willing to aid in the prosecution were set at rest yesterday when Detectives Roy Arnold and Bert Gray of the state's attorney's force interviewed her relatives at La Grange, Mo.

Lee Dunham, husband of Mrs. Bauer's sister, said he would be willing to come to Chicago to testify that he heard Zenge make threats against Dr. Bauer. Mrs. W. J. Schaffer, mother of Mrs. Bauer, asserted that she had advised the widow to aid the state all she could in prosecution of the killer.

"I don't know whether Mandeville is guilty or not," said Mrs. Schaffer, "but we take the position that whoever committed the crime should be punished according to law."

SOUP LINE FULL; JOBS GO BEGGING; THERE'LL BE QUIZ

Harold F. Pillifant, supervisor of Waukegan township, is going to start finding out today why so many unemployed are eating at his soup kitchen when Lake county farmers have for weeks offered jobs in vain.

Mr. Pillifant has discovered that for the last month there have been on file with the Illinois Free Employment service in Waukegan requests for twenty-five men for farm work, at wages ranging from $30 to $40 a month, plus board and lodging.

"And," he said, "I am sure that even more men than this are wanted by the farmers."

Mr. Pillifant said the relief clients apparently had been frightened away by reports that the farm work was too hard.

Water Lilies Blooming Night and Day in Parks

More than 60 varieties of day and night blooming water lilies now are in blossom in the pools of Garfield, Douglas, and Humboldt parks, officials of the Chicago park district announced yesterday. The Sacred Lotus will soon be in bloom in the mile long lagoon at Humboldt park. Among the varieties of day bloomers are Panama Pacific, Whitaker Gigantea, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, and August Koch. The night bloomers include the Emily Hutchings, George Huster, and Frank Trelease.

N. U. Policeman Is Fined for Punching Pedestrian

John Mahar, 45 years old, 606 Dempster street, Evanston, a special policeman for Northwestern university, was fined $100 yesterday by Judge Harry H. Porter in the Evanston Municipal court on a charge of assault and battery made by John G. Kerr, 20 years old, 1575 Ashland avenue, Evanston. Kerr testified that Mahar punched him on July 30 when he attempted to walk through the university campus.

2 WOMEN TORSO SLAYERS ENTER DWIGHT PRISON

Start Serving Terms of 180 Years.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dwight, Ill., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Mrs. Evelyn Smith, flippant and smiling, and Mrs. Blanche Dunkel, on the verge of tears, today entered the women's reformatory here to begin serving their sentences of 180 years each for the murder of Mrs. Dunkel's son-in-law, Ervin Lang. The women were sentenced in Chicago yesterday.

To Mrs. Smith the cottages and green lawns of the reformatory appeared a pleasant vista. She laughed and said she was "going to like it." Mrs. Dunkel said nothing.

The two women will be kept in the receiving hospital at the reformatory for two weeks, during which time they will be under quarantine and will be examined by physicians and psychiatrists.

Duties Not Determined.

Then a committee on classification will decide in which of the eight cottages they shall live and what work they shall do. It was regarded as unlikely that they will be assigned to Julia Lathrop hall where 17 other murderesses are serving long terms.

One of these 17 women is Dr. Alice Wynekoop, who is serving a 25 year sentence for the murder of her daughter-in-law, Rheta Wynekoop. Before leaving Chicago Mrs. Smith declared that she was going to be "pals" with the elderly woman physician.

After Mrs. Dunkel and Mrs. Smith have been assigned to work—in the laundry, farm, garment factory, or at domestic tasks—their last names will be dropped. They will be merely "Blanche" and "Evelyn." On each July 6, the anniversary of the slaying of Lang, they will be kept alone in their rooms, as the court in sentencing them had decreed solitary confinement for them on those days.

Make Trip by Auto.

The women were brought to the reformatory by automobile from Chicago. The journey took two and a half hours. Mrs. Margaret O'Toole, a police matron, sat between them in the back seat of one car, with two deputy sheriffs in front. Edward N. Scholler, chief bailiff of the Cook county Criminal court, followed in a second automobile.

At one time during the trip Mrs. Smith leaned over to Mrs. Dunkel and said: "This is my last ride. Won't you talk to me?"

"No," Mrs. Dunkel responded shortly. She had displayed resentment toward Mrs. Smith throughout the trial.

The women posed for photographers when they left the jail in Chicago. In response to a question by reporters Mrs. Smith said that she was not "mad" at Mrs. Dunkel.

"I've got nothing against her," she declared. "Everybody makes mistakes. We just made big ones."

Waves Good-by to Scribes.

Mrs. Smith rose in the automobile as it was driving out of the jail yard and waved at reporters and photographers.

"So long, buddies," she shouted. "Thanks for the cigarets."

Earlier in the day Dr. Harry Hoffman head of the behavior clinic at the Cook county Criminal courts, gave Mrs. Smith an intelligence test and reported that her mentality was that of a child of 11. One question asked her was the definition of "revenge." She didn't know what it meant until she was told it meant "getting even." Mrs. Dunkel refused to cooperate in the test.

Relatives of Mrs. Dunkel, who had wanted to confer with her in her jail cell on the redemption of her insurance policies, were told to discuss the matter with her when they visited her at the reformatory.

CRIME COMMISSION APPEALS TO PUBLIC FOR FINANCIAL AID

Benefits that have accrued to Chicagoans through the activities of the Chicago Crime commission during the last sixteen years are cited in letters being sent out by C. W. Berquist, chairman of the commission's finance committee, in an appeal to the public for financial support.

One need not have been robbed, assaulted, kidnaped, blackmailed, or swindled to be appreciative of the efforts of the commission to reduce crime, the letter shows. It says the commission has taken a leading part in the campaign against organized automobile thieves, and points out that in the last two years automobile theft insurance rates have been reduced 58 per cent.

"These financial benefits have been shared by every citizen and, incidentally, property and life is safer in Chicago today than it ever was before," the letter says.

The crime commission was active in the warfare against "public enemies," and it has worked for better methods of handling criminal cases. It began its work on Jan. 1, 1919, after a daylight robbery in which two messengers were killed.

HORNER AT ODDS WITH APPOINTEES IN FERNEKES QUIZ

They Say It Is Finished; Governor Denies It.

Gov. Horner apparently was at variance last night with his prison appointees who indicated that nothing more was being done toward investigating the escape of Henry J. [Midget] Fernekes from the old Joliet penitentiary last Saturday.

George F. Sehring, warden of the prison, said flatly: "We have completed our investigation into how Fernekes escaped; now we are concentrating on a search for him."

The investigation of which Sehring spoke led to the discharge of four guards for "inefficiency" but it did not explain the suspicion that bribery enabled Fernekes, Chicago bank robber, to obtain civilian clothes, don them when he was supposedly at work in the prison fiber shop, and walk leisurely out the main gates in the guise of a departing visitor.

Regan Not So Positive.

Joseph Regan, state superintendent of prisons, who was reached at the Southern Illinois penitentiary at Menard, was a little less positive about the end of the investigation. Nothing was being done about it "at this time," he said. Regan, however, was firm in the belief that "no payoff" accompanied the escape.

Gov. Horner in Springfield and State's Attorney Will R. McCabe of Will county, in Joliet, made positive statements, however, that the investigation was not closed.

"It will never be closed," Mr. Horner said, "until we find out how Fernekes obtained the clothes for his disguise. My belief is that all of the discharged guards, save James Nolan, told the truth when they were questioned under the lie detector last Monday night.

Cites Lie Detector Showing.

As to Nolan, who was in charge of the fiber shop where Fernekes worked, we asked him three times if he had told all he knew of the case. Three times his affirmative answer was disputed by the lie detector. However, there was not enough evidence to warant putting him under arrest, although it is my belief that he was protecting himself when he was questioned."

State's Attorney McCabe said bluntly that he was not satisfied with the results of the investigation conducted by the governor and the prison officials and was carrying on an inquiry of his own, particularly on the allegations of bribery. He refused, however, to make known what witnesses he has questioned or what evidence, if any, he has received.

Discharged Guards Silent.

The discharged guards either remained silent or could not be reached. Michael Leonard, veteran guard captain, who was dismissed because he let Fernekes go past him in the visiting room, was found at Sandwich, Ill., his old home.

"There's no use for me to say anything," he said. Asked if he would take advantage of an appeal to the state civil service commission, he answered in the negative.

Nolan was found at 2761 North Sawyer avenue, but declined to talk about his discharge.

Relatives of Robert Shaw, one of the door guards who opened the gates for "Visitor Fernekes," said that he had not returned to his old home at Toledo, the county seat of Cumberland county. They didn't know where he was, they said.

The fourth discharged guard, Frank Friend, lives in Joliet but could not be reached.

Their Night's Adventure Is Over

A Third Is Lost

It's rather fun to get lost, if the ordinary treatment consists of candy, cake, and ice cream, mused a tousle haired boy, about 3 years old, as he sat in the Shakespeare avenue police station last evening.

The child appeared yesterday in the fire station at Central Park and Fullerton avenues, and told firemen that he was lost. He was unable to tell his name, and the firemen took him to the police station, where he was plied with delicacies, pending discovery of his family.

The boy has brown hair and brown eyes, and wears blue coveralls, black shoes and black stockings.

Two other small boys, whose ideas about seeing the world led them to the juvenile home, were claimed there by their father, David Pillman, 2848 North Campbell avenue. The two are Henry, 2 years old, and his brother, Carl, 4 years old. The boys left home Thursday afternoon, and were found by police at Armitage avenue and Pulaski road. The spent Thursday night at the juvenile home.

ETHIOPIA SENDS ENVOY TO ENLIST HELP OF JAPAN

Reported on Mission to Purchase Arms.

BY WILL BARBER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Aug. 9.—In an effort to tighten relations with Japan, which is one of the few friends among nations left to Ethiopia, Daba Birrou, former foreign office official, left today for Tokio to become the first Ethiopian consul in Japan.

Three Japanese merchants who double as journalists accompanied Birrou to the station, and, what is more important, one of them, Shozti, left with him for Japan.

Believed on Arms Mission.

This is Birrou's second trip to Japan. He was sent there in 1931 to repay the visit of a Japanese emissary to the coronation of Haile Selassie as emperor. It is believed he is armed with instruction to buy arms from the Japanese, but the government said the purpose of the voyage is simply to tighten ordinary commercial relations and to establish a diplomatic contact, as requested by Emperor Hirohito of Japan.

Since the Ethiopian government is unwilling to go too far in cultivating Japan's friendship for fear of losing Great Britain's, it seems unlikely at the moment that the Japanese will send a consul here. The government pointed out, however, that the Japanese already have announced that they intend to send a minister here next December.

Government officials today denied any knowledge of alleged contracts for arms placed in Japan, but the cagiess of the denials lends strength to the report that purchase of munitions is the real aim of Birrou's visit. A month ago the government indicated that it might be forced to buy arms in Japan since the chief European nations had clamped down an arms embargo.

Italy Honors 7 'Heroes.'

ROME, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Italy officially announced preparations tonight for a tri-power conference in Paris next week on the Italo-Ethiopian situation, but the nation, honoring seven countrymen killed in an airplane crash near Cairo as the first "heroes" of the country's East African program, reflected no optimism over the possible outcome.

Baron Pompeo Aloisi, head of the Italian delegation at recent negotiations at Geneva, was chosen to lead Italy's representatives at the talks in Paris with British and French diplomats.

An impression was widely prevalent here, however, that the new conversations would prove no more conclusive than those at Geneva.

Meanwhile, reports that the United States government had sent James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, to confer with Premier Mussolini on the East African situation as an official representative of the American nation, were categorically denied by Gerard. Gerard is to be received by Il Duce tomorrow.

The strenuous efforts Italy is exerting to perfect its aerial power for service in east Africa was further emphasized tonight by a royal decree recalling to the colors subalterns and aerial technicians of the classes of 1909 and 1910.

Hospital Base in Ægean.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—(AP)—A Reuters' [British] News agency dispatch from Athens tonight said the Island of Rhodes, in the Ægean sea, was being converted into a large hospital base for Italian casualties in East Africa.

Secrecy is being maintained about feverish Italian activities on the Islands of Rhodes and Leros, the dispatch continued. It said all hospital cases from East Africa would be taken to Rhodes instead of Italy because so many men are suffering from the effects of the tropical climate that it was feared discontent would be caused in Italy if they were allowed to return home.

Two large hotels at Rhodes, the report added, have been converted into hospitals, while Leros has been made into a munitions dump.

The islands of the Dodecanese group are inhabited by Greeks, but are ruled by Italy, which occupied them in 1912 during the Turkish war.

Ethiopia Seeks Polish Arms.

WARSAW, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Ethiopia was reported today to be purchasing army supplies in Poland, especially uniforms. A group of representatives of the African kingdom now in Lodz was said to be negotiating for further purchases.

HODES NAMES 2 TO REORGANIZED CITY LEGAL STAF

Barnet Hodes, city corporation counsel, announced two new appointments yesterday in his reorganization of the city's various law departments. The appointees are Edward J. Kelly [not a relative of the mayor], who will head the division of general investigation of the corporation counsel's office, and Albert Lepawsky, who will be in charge of the section on legal research in Mr. Kelly's division.

Mr. Kelly, who lives at 7302 Pingree street, has been chief investigator in the corporation counsel's office for the last two years. He was admitted to the bar in 1915 and during the war served as a second lieutenant in the finance branch of the army.

Mr. Lepawsky lives at 1374 East 57th street. He is head of the division of research of political science at the University of Chicago. He is the author of two books, "The Judicial System of Metropolitan Chicago" and "Home Rule in Metropolitan Chicago."

8 Seized in Gambling Raids; Two Others Fined

Eight men were seized yesterday in three police raids on alleged gambling establishments. The places raided are at 333 South Market street, 30 North Wells street, and 1153 Grand avenue. Albert Edwards, charged with keeping a handbook at 367 Madison street, was fined $50 by Judge Frank M. Padden. Judge Edward B. Casey imposed a fine of $25 on John Daniels, charged with keeping a gambling establishment at 405 West 63d street.

LAVAL DEFIANT; WARNS FRANCE PAY CUTS STAND

Acts Despite Protest Riots.

PARIS, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Premier Pierre Laval, unrelenting despite widespread disorders and bloodshed, told all save one of France's eighty-six prefects today to enforce firmly his unpopular deflationary decrees.

One prefect was missing from the unprecedented meeting called here by Laval. He was the prefect of Var, in which Toulon is situated. He took charge of troops patroling the streets there after yesterday's rioting.

"Absolute discipline toward the government" was demanded by Laval in his lecture to the prefects. He warned them they would have "worries" if they failed to do their "duty."

Sees Life of Nation at Stake.

"The fate of the régime and the life of the country is at stake," he said, asking the prefects for a more active administration of their departments. "If you do not make this effort by active and intelligent coöperation you run the risk of confronting the country with a dramatic situation."

One thousand guards were sent to Toulon as reinforcements to prevent a recurrence of last night's fighting when two were killed and from 50 to 200 injured.

Other ports seemed to settle down to normal work today.

Communists were blamed by officials for disorders among arsenal workers over 10 per cent government pay cuts.

Liner Champlain Sails.

The strike of the French line crew ended at Le Havre with the sailing for New York of the Champlain. More than 800 passengers were delayed two days. The French line agreed to compensate the sailors for their wage cuts.

Laval, after promulgating a mass of new decree laws under his virtually dictatorial powers, had called the prefects together to see that living costs are reduced in line with the wage cuts.

Price cuts are the government's chief weapon against unrest over the economy slashes for defense of the franc. A stimulant to fallen export trade likewise was sought by the substitution of higher protective tariffs for the trade throttling import quotas, which have handicapped commercial negotiations.

Government authorities confidently predicted there would be no further disorders.

MRS. FEDERMAN, GOLF CHAMPION, GIVEN DIVORCE

Reno, Nev., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—A sealed divorce was granted today to Mrs. Sylvia Annenberg Federman, New York state woman's golf champion and one of the country's outstanding links stars.

Charging extreme cruelty, she divorced Leo G. Federman, former president of the Interstate Department Stores, Inc., which operates a chain of large stores throughout the east. He was her second husband.

Mrs. Federman, who is the daughter of Max Annenberg, circulation director of the New York Daily News, married Mr. Federman in New York City Aug. 16, 1927. Mrs. Federman was given permission to resume her maiden name.

Arriving by plane last June, she established residence on the Nevada shore of Lake Tahoe. She was represented in her suit by Albert Hilliard, Reno attorney.

Grandson of Ex-Kaiser Fined for Careless Driving

LONDON, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Prince Ernst August von Hanover, grandson of the former Kaiser Wilhelm, was fined $88 for careless driving today in Winchester county police court. The charge was made against him following a recent crash in which he and Lord Davis Douglas Hamilton were shaken up.

ROBBED WAITING AT TRAFIC LIGHT.

Daniel Oesch of Topeka, Ind., a building contractor, reported to the police yesterday that he was robbed of $20 by a man who stepped into his automobile as he stopped for a trafic light at South Shore drive and 79th street.

PREMIER OF CHINA RESIGNS; URGED TO CHANGE HIS DECISION

NANKING, Aug. 9.—(AP)—On the heels of the resignation today of China's premier and foreign minister, Wang Ching-Wei, officials of the national government took steps to persuade him to change his mind and remain in office.

Two high officials, one representing the government and the other the dominant Kuomintang party, left for Tsingtao to urge Wang to withdraw his resignation. Ill health was given as the reason for the 50 year old leader's action.

[The Rengo (Japanese) News agency in Tokio said Wang had been criticized bitterly recently for alleged pro-Japanese sympathies.]

At Tsingtao Wang remained inaccessible at the home of the governor of Shantung province. Only his personal physician and a few government associates were permitted to enter the premises. Wang became premier on Jan. 29, 1932.

BRITONS FINISH SURVEY OF TWO OCEAN AIR LINES

First Report Is Given Aviation Ministry.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 9.—Another step toward the establishment of regular trans-Atlantic air service was taken today when the first report of proposed routes which have been thoroughly surveyed was presented to the British air ministry by the Irish Trans-Atlantic Corporation, Ltd.

The report, prepared by Maxwell Ayrton, architect, deals with two alternative routes, one starting from Londonderry with Sydney, Nova Scotia as the penultimate and New York the ultimate stage, and the other starting from Galway and ending at Botwood, Newfoundland.

It is estimated that the bases surveyed could be adapted and established at a cost of $125,000.

A second report is being prepared by Ayrton in collaboration with leading aeronautical experts. It will be submitted to the air ministry soon.

C. H. Clendening, director of the Irish Trans-Atlantic corporation, has just returned from a visit to the United States and Canada in connection with the company's plans. He reports he had a splendid reception and was promised coöperation by distinguished officials of the United States government.

Plan Newfoundland Bases.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Aug. 9.—Plans for the establishment of air bases in Newfoundland for trans-Atlantic planes now being developed by Imperial Airways were discussed here today with government officials by two members of the British air ministry, S. McLure and D. Banks. They arrived here yesterday from England.

WARANT GATHERS DUST FOR A YEAR; SHERIF ASKS WHY

Sherif Toman began an investigation yesterday to find out why a warant issued a year ago for the arrest of an election judge had lain unserved in the sherif's office until it was discovered covered with dust and was then served by Deputy Sherif James H. McQueeney. McQueeney said he had no difficulty in finding the election judge, William Babcock, whose address was given as 818 West Austin avenue.

Babcock is charged with contempt of court for violation of election laws at the April 10, 1934, primary. He was a judge in the polling place of the 18th precinct, 26th ward. Sherif Toman said he will dismiss any deputy who is found wilfully or carelessly negligent in the serving of warants and writs.

Ohio Farmer Dies in Chair for Deputy Sherif's Death

Columbus, O., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Roy Smith, 34, a Van Wert county, O., farmer, died tonight in Ohio penitentiary's electric chair for the killing of Forrest Good, a deputy sherif.

'BETRAYS' HITLER; SENT TO PRISON FOR THREE YEARS

Six Others Sentenced on Treason Charges.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 9.—A member of the Hitler guards named Feulner was sentenced to three years in prison today by the People's court of Berlin for betraying information to Rottmeyer, chief of the illegal communist press service at Munich.

This is the highest possible sentence for the offense. The public prosecutor said this was necessary "if things are so bad that even Hitler's own guard has started to betray him."

Nine Others Tried.

Nine others went before the court charged with treasonable activities. They included three members of the Oberland Free corps, of which the late Ernst Roehm and other prominent Nazis were at one time members. This corps suppressed the Red revolt at Munich in the early days of the republic. One of the accused, Dr. Fritz Roemer, helped establish the corps.

The court acquitted the three accused members of the corps for lack of evidence. Rottmeyer was sentenced to 12 years' imprisonment, and an Austrian, Meislinger, to 8 years. The others were given shorter terms.

Followed by a jeering mob, a Jew and German girl were forced to parade through the streets of Gelsenkirchen today. Placards on their chests and backs informed the public that they had been guilty of "racial pollution." Subsequently the couple was placed under "protective arrest."

Bar Jewish-Gentile Trade.

BERLIN, Aug. 9.—(AP)—An order published by Gustav Giesecke, peasant leader for the free state of Brunswick, indicated today that Nazi policy may now be definitly directed at depriving the Jew of doing business with Gentiles. Hitherto Nazidom has maintained that the Jew was not to be interfered with commercially.

Giesecke's order said:

"Whoever as a German peasant engages in trade with the Jew, or otherwise maintains a connection with him, commits treason and by his blood gives comfort to the deadly enemy of the German people, the Jew."

Giesecke said he would remove from positions in the Nutrative Guild any found guilty of dealing with Jews and instructed subleaders to report on farmers' commercial relations with Jews.

Aim to Oust All Jews.

The ultimate goal of Nazi statecraft is, if possible, to eliminate the Jews altogether from Germany. There are numerous considerations, however, which prevent an immediate realization of this "totality" program. There are internal considerations of an economic nature. For instance, Jewish business is still so vital a factor that the immediate elimination of the Jew in commercial concerns would draw in its wake the dismissal of thousands of Aryan workers.

There is, further, the feeling that a Jew who fought in the front lines for Germany, or whose father or son fell on behalf of the reich in the world war, deserves special consideration. Not in all departments of government, however. Joseph Goebbels' ministry of propaganda does not recognize war service is an asset, as is indicated by a letter received from the ministry by a man who, on being served notice that he was fired from the reich's culture chamber [which meant his license to write was withdrawn], appealed on the ground that he had served in the trenches.

"You need not think," the ministry's reply read, "that the mere fact of doing your duty by your country entitles you to special consideration."

JURY LOCKED UP; CAN'T AGREE ON HUSBAND SLAYER

A jury in the Criminal court of Judge John C. Lewe was locked up at 11:30 o'clock last night, when its members reported that after five hours of deliberation they were unable to agree on a verdict in the case of Mrs. Suzanna Madoian, 31 years old, 1517 North Hoyne avenue, who is on trial for the murder of her husband, Leo. If a decision is reached, it will be presented to the court this morning.

It was reported that ten of the jurors voted to find Mrs. Madoian guilty of manslaughter, which carries a penalty of one to fourteen years in the penitentiary, but that two members of the jury were voting for a verdict of murder, carrying a heavier punishment.

During the day Mrs. Madoian took the stand in her own defense. She testified that Madoian was a boarder in her home while she was married to a previous husband, and that he won her affections then. After she had obtained a divorce, she added, Madoian married her.

"But only to throw me down and break my heart," she declared.

Her daughter by the first marriage, Margaret Merijohn, 13 years old, testified that Madoian frequently had beaten her mother. Witnesses for the state gave testimony indicating the shooting of Madoian in the family home on June 19 was neither accidental nor in self-defense.

No request for a death penalty was made by Prosecutor Richard Devine.

RARE BIRD PAYS ANNUAL 'BREAD AND BUTTER' VISIT

A Kentucky cardinal, which apparently cherishes old friendships, paid its annual call yesterday at the home of Mrs. Joseph W. Farr, 430 South Taylor avenue, Oak Park. Mrs. Farr said that several years ago members of the family found a cardinal, a bird quite rare in this climate, trapped in the furnace of her home. This bird was bathed, fed, and released. Each year since a cardinal—Mrs. Farr believes it is the same one—returns to her yard and flashes its scarlet brilliance for a single day against the hedges and the shrubs.

BARES DE VALERA PLAN FOR OUSTER OF KING'S ENVOY

Expected to Act When Dail Reconvenes.

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Aug. 9.—Extensive alterations in the constitution of the Irish Free State are forecast when the dail reassembles in October. Some of these may have far-reaching effects, even to the extent of putting the Free State definitly outside the British commonwealth of nations.

It is well known that one of President de Valera's objects is to remove from the Free State and the constitution all association with the British king or the British parliament. He could do this by immediately declaring a republic. The recent judgment of the privy council has made it clear that following the enactment of what is called the Westminster statute it is in the power of the Free State, as of every other dominion, to do this. Such is the interpretation of the existing law, but that is distinct from contractual obligations made under the treaty of 1921.

De Valera's Policy.

It has been President de Valera's policy to achieve his purposes by removing from the constitution certain provisions which are distasteful to him, leaving the treaty aside. For instance, he removed the oath of allegiance from the constitution, holding that in so doing he did not infringe on the treaty, although the treaty has a provision for the taking of the oath. In the same way he removed the right of appeal in legal issues from the Free State courts to the privy council. This latter did not affect the treaty since that instrument contains no reference to the right of appeal.

His next step, it is understood, will be to abolish the position of governor general, the king's representative. This, it is thought, will bring to a head the whole question of the relationship between the Free State and the commonwealth. It will affect both the constitution and the treaty. The treaty provides expressly that "the law, practice, and constitutional usage governing the relationship of the crown or the representative of the crown and of the imperial parliament to the dominion of Canada shall govern their relationship to the Irish Free State."

Provides Duties for King's Agent.

Moreover, the constitution provides certain functions for the king's representative such as the summoning of the parliament, the signing of bills, and the appointment of judges.

De Valera a few weeks ago said that in his next budget there will be no provision for the upkeep of the governor general's office. The British attitude appears to be that if the king and his representatives are removed, the Free State must be cosidered to be outside the commonwealth.

J. H. Thomas, the British dominions minister, has said that the immediate effect of that would be to make foreigners of every Free State citizen now in Great Britain. They would, according to him, be permitted to remain in Britain only under license, like any other foreigner. Upon that subject, there is high constitutional authority to the contrary.

Will Bring Matters to Head.

There is no doubt that if De Valera puts forward a scheme for the removal of the king and his governor general it will be carried into effect. He has adequate support in his own party in the dail even without the Labor group which has consistently supported him. And the senate will be dissolved by the end of the present year or early in the new year.

If these events occur both the Free State and Britain will have to face new conditions in regard to their day to day relations. Matters of trade, transportation, and communication will be brought to a head. Many argue that this is desirable: that a clarification of the present situation is absolutely essential.

YOUTH HANGS HIMSELF.

Darlington, Wis., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Orville Brecklin, 19, farmer residing near Woodford, committed suicide today by hanging himself with a rope fastened to the rafters of a barn on the farm occupied by his mother, Mrs. Henry Brecklin. No motive for the act was given.

JAPAN LOOMS AS U. S. TRADE PERIL IN PHILIPPINES

Fear Independence Will Prove Boon to Nippon.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 9—Although the forthcoming Philippine-American economic conference, which President Roosevelt has promised to call after the Philippine commonwealth has been inaugurated in November, is strengthening Filipino hopes that there can be economic prosperity with political independence, the Japanese angle of the situation is disturbing both to Filipinos and Americans.

Many observers believe the Philippines has only two alternative ways out of the approaching economic difficulty which is expected to follow independence. The first is trade reciprocity between the United States and the Philippines. The second is what Gov. Gen. Frank Murphy calls "an economics that will not be largely sugar, but will square off with independence."

Main Problem Is Japan.

Both these alternatives, however, appear difficult of attainment in the face of Japan's economic activities in the Philippines.

The Filipino consumer is so used to buying cheap Japanese goods that a tarif adequate to protect American articles on the Philippine market will abruptly raise his cost of living to a level at which he will greatly reduce if not altogether stop his buying.

On the other hand, if the United States should give up the Philippine market, Japan would have it all to itself in no time. And with Japan economic king in the Philippines, the democracy which the United States founded here will forever be in danger.

Japanese articles generally cost only a third of what the corresponding American commodity sells for. Japanese articles constitute easily two-thirds of the entire stocks in retail stores all over the Philippines.

President Guided by Murphy.

It is generally understood that when Murphy said Philippine economics must square off with independence, he had in mind a greater economic independence of the Philippines from the American market.

It was Murphy who, while in Washington, urged Roosevelt to announce the calling of the conference simultaneously with the approval of the Philippine constitution under which the commonwealth will be governed.

As Murphy seems to be the brains of the conference, and as the conference may be held in Manila, it is expected that he will exert a tremendous influence on its deliberations and recommendations. If this is true, then it is reasonable to expect that he will urge "an economics that will square off with independence." Whatever may be the other features of this new economics, it is certain that it will try to correct the almost absolute dependence of Philippine exports upon the American market.

If tarif reciprocity is discarded, then the motive for protecting the local market against Japanese goods is also eliminated. And an unprotect market will surely mean a greater impetus in the economic penetration of the islands by Japan.

OUSTED RECTOR TO BE TRIED FOR 'SUICIDE STUNT'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 9.—Harold Francis Davidson, former rector of Stiffkey in Norfolk, who was unfrocked more than a year ago after his conviction by a Church of England court on charges of immorality, was held for trial today at Blackpool on a charge of attempting suicide.

Davidson placed himself on exhibition in a cabinet at Blackpool, England's Coney Island, with a girl who he said was his daughter. He announced his intention to starve to death unless the archbishop reinstated him. At the same time he appealed for cash contributions.

After ten days he was arrested. It was testified in the police court today that he ate a good meal and smoked a cigar on being locked up in the police station. Davidson's lawyer compared his case with that of suffragette hunger strikers and Terence MacSwiney, the lord mayor of Cork who starved to death in 1920 in protest against British rule in Ireland.

When Davidson was released on bail he was mobbed by girls who hugged and kissed him.

GENEVA, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Japan officially accepted today invitations to continue to be represented on the league of nations commissions on opium and child welfare. Canadian Leader Launches Battle to Save Democracy

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 9.—In a parliamentary election, scheduled to be held next month—probably on Sept. 21—the Liberal party is now favored to sweep Canada. The Liberal party has pledged itself to preserve the constitution and not to depart from recognized parliamentary procedure.

There has been a noticeable trend here against the present federal Conservative government. During the past few months province after province has gone Liberal until now there are eight Liberal provincial administrations in Canada. The only exception is in Alberta, where a farmer government is in power. Various by-elections for parliament also have gone overwhelmingly Liberal.

See Great Liberal Victory.

The general opinion here is that the Liberal party will return to power with a large majority.

There will be three opposing parties—the Conservatives under Prime Minister R. B. Bennett; the Reconstruction party under H. H. Stevens, and the Canadian Commonwealth federation under J. W. Woodsworth. The latter is a socialistic party, and ordinarily has attracted only a fringe of support.

The Reconstruction party is a new venture started by Stevens, former minister of labor in the present government, who is attacking big business as his main rally cry. The Conservative party is likely to be turned out of office chiefly on account of hard times and the unrealized hopes held out when the party went into power, notably the promise to cure unemployment.

King Sounds Keynote.

In a recent speech W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal party, sounded the following as one of the keynotes of the Liberal platform:

"This brings me to the most important of all the questions which I should like my fellow countrymen to ask themselves. This question can be expressed in a single word: Whither? Whither are we tending in Canada today? That question should make its appeal to all who have their homes in this country, who value freedom and free institutions. It is a word which, above all, should appeal to the youth of our land who are facing a future all too unknown and uncertain.

"It was not until some one began to preach the doctrine that parliamentary methods were not suited to these times; that the constitution was an obstacle to progress; that shorter and swifter methods were necessary to obtain results, even if they involved sweeping aside parliamentary restraints and overrindg the constitution; that in Europe parliaments and democracies alike began to disappear. Have we not all heard this very sort of language from Mr. Bennett, Mr. Woodsworth and Mr. Stevens?

Cites European Examples.

"And what has come in the stead of parliamentary methods? Hitlerism in Germany, Fascism in Italy, communism in Russia, and, in all, the death of democracy. Is that what we wish to see happen in Canada? If not, you will do well to ask yourselves the question: Whither have we been tending in the past five years, and whither are we likely to tend if some of the doctrines being advocated by more than one of the parties appealing to you today are given countenance in our land?

"For my part, I propose to stand or fall upholding in all things the parliamentary method of government."

OPPOSE $65,000 CLAIMS AGAINST BREWER'S ESTATE

Administrators Reject Miller Checks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Administrators of the estate of Emil P. Miller, wealthy brewer, who died last November, have filed objections in County court to payment of eleven claims, totaling $65,000, against the nearly $3,000,000 estate.

Included among the claimants are present or former tavern and night club operators, who presented checks for large sums for payment with the statement that Miller gave them as gifts shortly before his death.

During recent years Miller, a bachelor, achieved a reputation as a playboy.

Claims Objected To.

The largest claim objected to is that of Charles Nelson, Milwaukee night club operator, who filed it under the name of Charles Serio. He asks payment on a check for $11,050, which he said was a gift to him, and also has a joint claim with J. J. Bove, 1405 North Franklin place, for payment of other checks totaling $25,000, also asserted to have been gifts from Miller. Bove also filed a separate claim for $1,000.

L. L. [Casey] Jones, former tavern operator and prominent figure in Milwaukee night life for years, presented a claim for $9,016, also based on a check allegedly given him by Miller. The answer of the administrators to these claims was that the checks were not properly executed and therefore were invalid. In some other cases the answer was that Miller was incompetent and incapable of entering into a contract.

Files $1,600 Claim.

Sam Pick, operator of the Club Madrid, in Waukesha county, filed a claim for $1,600.30 for cash and merchandise. The administrators' answer was that Pick owes $1,785 to the estate on three notes.

A claim for $135 filed by Dr. Gilbert F. Miller has been paid in full, the executors said.

Other claims disputed are: David Pritchard, Racine, $350 for entertainment and nursing expenses; Vincent Marchese, Milwaukee, $400; the Milwaukee Germantown brewery, $400.

The administrators of the estate are Charles A. Miller, Harvey E. John, and O. F. Treichler.

NAZIS KEEP FILE OF AUSTRIAN FOES 'FOR FUTURE USE'

VIENNA, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Austria's subterranean Nazi newspaper Illkorr announced the inauguration today of an "under cover news photo service."

The first picture distributed was a photostatic copy of a court decision against a Vienna man sentenced to fourteen days in jail for placing a bouquet of flowers on the coffin of a slain Nazi. The court ruled he thereby showed sympathy for the Nazi cause.

Along with their illegal "news photo service," the Nazis are continuing to build up their photographic file of enemies. More than 4,000 Austrians who have become actively identified with the ruthless suppression of the Nazi movement here have been photographed by Nazi agents. The snapshots are filed away "for future reference." Two prints of each are sent to Germany.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

TENTATIVE PLAN IS ACCEPTED FOR PERMANENT FAIR

Epstein Urges Exhibit to Promote Health.

The planning committee of the new Chicago exposition authority held its first meeting in the offices of Walter L. Gregory, president of the authority, in the Palmer house yesterday and tentatively accepted plans for the permanent Chicago fair on the lake front in Burnham park.

The tentative plans, drawn by a subcommittee of Mayor Kelly's original lake front committee, call for extensive recreational facilities on Northerly Island and the adjacent mainland. The proposed $13,000,000 wonderland, reviving many popular features of A Century of Progress, would lie just west of the proposed island airport.

Epstein Urges Health Project.

Max Epstein, chairman of the board of the General American Tank Car corporation, proposed that a public health exhibit be established as a permanent educational feature of the exposition. The proposal was favorably received by the planning committee. Mr. Epstein originally was named a member of the exposition authority, but resigned because he was a legal resident of Winnetka instead of Chicago, as required. He has for years been interested in health movements. In 1929 he gave $1,000,000 to the University of Chicago to finance an art center.

Declaring that there is need in this country for a centrally located organization for public health education in exercise, diet and similar subjects, Mr. Epstein said medical and dental societies, insurance companies, manufacturers and the Rockefeller Foundation have evinced interest in the project.

Tawdry Amusements Barred.

The tentative plans for the permanent fair were said to dispel fears of opponents of the project that the exposition would turn the lake front into a tawdry concession center. Members of the planning group declared "there will be no honky tonk" or other undesirable amusement adjuncts.

The plans envision a landscaped tract dotted with low lying buildings of uniform design, housing inexpensive amusements, a casino, an outdoor theater, beaches and bathhouses, a children's play center, a $20,000 ice and roller skating rink and extensive outdoor sports facilities. The authority hopes that the Works Progress administration will finance part of the project.

INDICTED IN $175 MAIL FRAUD PLOT AGAINST LAWYER

Charged with swindling Attorney John D. Black, former head of the Chicago Bar association, out of $175, L. Sheridan McMann, 70 years old, of no permanent address, was indicted by the federal grand jury yesterday on a charge of using the mails to defraud. The indictment was returned before Federal Judge John P. Barnes.

Black was an attorney for Mrs. Mary Bernadin Bedford Jones, wife of H. Bedford Jones, writer, against whom a $100,000 verdict was returned by a jury several months ago in an alienation of affections suit brought by the author's first wife, Helen Bedford Jones. The verdict later was set aside by Federal Judge Holly as excessive.

McMann, arrested in Black's office several days ago, admitted that he had obtained $175 from the lawyer by fraudulently representing, by letter and by telegram, that he had evidence against the plaintif in the heart balm suit. He also confessed that he had defrauded other attorneys in similar manner.

WIFE RESTRAINED BY COURT FROM HARMING MATE

Superior Judge Joseph B. David issued an injunction yesterday restraining Mrs. Anna Budgin from molesting her husband, Walter, or hiring other men to harm him.

Budgin, who lives at 4503 Emerald avenue, testified that four armed men entered his home on Aug. 4 and threatened him after telling him his wife had hired them to kill him. The four men, according to Budgin's story, did not carry out their threats because his wife had not yet paid them.

Budgin has a divorce bill pending. He charges cruelty, alleging that his wife once struck him with a skillet and on another occasion brandished a revolver in front of him.

Ordered to Stay in State Until Divorce Is Settled

Circuit Judge George Fred Rush issued a writ yesterday restraining Elwood F. Rogers, an advertising man, from leaving the state during the pendency of the divorce suit brought by his wife, Mrs. Myrtle C. Rogers, 1517 Maple avenue, Wilmette. In the divorce bill Mrs. Rogers charged cruelty and also alleged that her husband had fraudulently conveyed away title to the Wilmette home and had taken $690 from a joint bank account when he left her on June 8.

Wilmette Teacher Wins Uncontested Divorce Suit

Superior Judge Joseph B. David yesterday granted an uncontested divorce to Mrs. Geene G. Gibson, 1656 Juneway terrace, a school teacher in Wilmette, from Fred D. Gibson Jr. of the Sheridan Plaza hotel. Mrs. Gibson charged desertion. She was awarded the custody of her daughter, Peggy, 3 years old, and Gibson was ordered to pay $10 a week for the child's support.

AUTOS HURT 27 AT DETROIT IN TURNS "ON RED"

Chicagoans Study Plans to Speed Trafic.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Chicago engineers, here investigating the right turn after stopping for the red light for possible adoption of this trafic rule in the Illinois metropolis, today scrutinized records of three months' accidents in Detroit that killed 43 pedestrians and injured 1,542. They learned that none of the deaths and only 27 of the injuries involved a vehicle turning right at a signalized intersection.

The detailed reports on these 27 accidents indicated that pedestrians walking with the green light are jeopardized by the vehicles turning right with the green and that pedestrians walking against the red light are jeopardized by vehicles turning right on the red signal.

Two Facts Stand Out.

The study was considered indicative, although not conclusive of two pertinent facts. First, whether the right turn on the red increases or decreases the hazards of motor transportation, its operation or its continued prohibition in Chicago would have little effect on the total automobile death rate. Second, the statistics for the three months shatter a theory that the right turn on the red discourages pedestrian compliance with the lights.

Of the 27 cars that hurt pedestrians in turning right at signalized intersections, 13 of the automobiles started the movement on the green light, 8 started the movement on the red light, and six instances the police reports do not show the stage of the lights.

14 Walking with Green Light.

In the 21 accidents in which the stage of the lights is noted, 14 of the pedestrians were walking with the green and seven were walking against the red. Nine pedestrians just had stepped from the curb with the green light when hit by a vehicle turning right on the green that approached from the rear. Five just had stepped from the curb against the red light when hit by a vehicle turning right on the red that approached from the rear.

In only three of the 21 accidents were persons walking with the green struck by cars turning on the red. Some trafic safety theorists have opposed the right turn on the red with the contention, refuted by these statistics, that the regulation was hazardous to pedestrians walking with the green.

Crew Compiles Tables.

In an effort to get some measurement of the convenience of the right turn on the red in expediting trafic, a crew of young men were engaged today at typical intersections compiling tables with the aid of stop watches and mechanical counters. The Chicago survey party will analyze the results while en route to New York tonight for a study of Manhattan's right turn on the red.

Members of this survey party are Leslie Sorenson, trafic engineer for the city of Chicago; Commissioner Stephen I. Witmanski, representing the Chicago park district, and George Barton, engineer for the Chicago Motor club.

'SCARLET LETTER' TO TELL TOWN OF TRAFIC VIOLATOR

Huntington, Ind., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Violators of minor trafic rules of the city hereafter must wear the "scarlet letter" of their shame for thirty days or pay a fine, according to a new plan worked out by R. C. Forst, chief of police.

The violators may be tagged without their knowledge for the following: Turning in the middle of a block, passing a stop signal, leaving the engine running with no driver, parking more than twelve inches from the curb, parking where prohibited, defective muffler or cutout, no lights, bright lights, double parking, overtime parking, one headlight, and cutting corners or other violations that may be "written in."

A second violation by a motorist "wearing" one of the warnings, printed in red, will result in a trip to the police station.

Two Injured in Collision Sue for $55,000 Damages

Crawford Elder, 930 Judson avenue, Evanston, and his wife yesterday filed a suit in the Superior court for $55,000 damages against Reynolds Judah and Mrs. Judah, residents of Vincennes, Ind. An automobile driven by Mrs. Judah collided with another in which the Elders were riding in Niles Center last Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Elder assert they incurred permanent injuries. Mr. Judah is a nephew of Col. Noble Brandon Judah. Elder is an executive of the National Geographic magazine.

Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

AUTO KILLS GIRL; WOMAN DRIVER FREED ON BOND

2 Other Auto Victims Die of Injuries.

Mariette Brown, 9 years old, 5700 Wentworth avenue, was fatally injured yesterday when struck by the automobile of Mrs. Helen Tobin, 50 years old, 4907 Greenwood avenue, at Wentworth avenue and 57th street. The girl died at St. Bernard's hospital. Mrs. Tobin was charged with reckless driving and released on a $50 bond.

Mrs. Frances Ostrowski, 49 years old, 1628 North Marshfield avenue, died in the North Avenue hospital yesterday of injuries incurred Thursday when she was struck by an automobile while walking at Wood street and Milwaukee avenue.

Mrs. Susanna Schuster, 56 years old, 1600 North Tripp avenue, driver of the car, was booked on a reckless driving charge, which was continued until Sept. 5 in order that she might attend the inquest today.

Death Toll Now 558.

These deaths and one other brought the 1935 trafic toll for Cook county to 558. Until 4 p. m. yesterday 442 had been killed in automobile accidents within the Chicago city limits and 9,804 injured. The other death:

Mrs. Harriet Bieschke, 78 years old, 2427 North Artesian avenue. Died at home yesterday of injuries incurred Sunday when the automobile in which she was riding was struck by a car driven by John Conway of Conway road, in Shields township, just west of Lake Forest. The accident occurred on Waukegan road near Conway's home. He was bound over to the Lake county grand jury Monday on a chaarge of driving while intoxicated.

Responsibility Cited.

The quarterly safety bulletin of the state highway department, just issued, points out that of the 464 persons killed in automobile accidents in Illinois during the first three months of this year, 250 were pedestrians and 86 were auto passengers.

"Prevention of accidents," says the bulletin, "will be accomplished only when each driver and pedestrian becomes conscious of, and accepts, his individual responsibility."

CO-ED IS FINED $1, THE FIRST UNDER NEW TRAFIC CODE

Miss Bernice Best, 22 years old, a Lake Forest college senior, who was the first person arrested in Chicago under the new Illinois trafic code, yesterday became the first person to be punished under the new law in Chicago.

She was fined $1 by Judge Gibson E. Gorman in the Trafic court after admitting she had driven 45 miles an hour in Western avenue at 103d street Saturday. Miss Best, the daughter of Jacob Best, coal dealer, lives at 6338 Kenmore avenue.

Steve Flowers, 23 years old, 8736 Houston avenue, was fined $100 and sentenced to thirty days in the Bridewell by Judge Frank M. Padden in the South State street court on a charge of reckless driving.

He was arrested after an accident at 90th street and Houston avenue. Witnesses testified his car was traveling 50 miles an hour at the time. He was the first to be sentenced under the new code provision whereby reckless drivers may be jailed even if they cause no injury.

HUGE UNION BAND TO BE FEATURE OF MUSIC FESTIVAL

One of Largest Ever Heard Here; Led by Petrillo.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

One of the largest bands of union musicians ever heard in Chicago will take part in the Chicagoland Music Festival to be held in Soldiers' field next Saturday evening, Aug. 17.

Announcement to this effect was made last night by James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, who will lead the band. Mr. Petrillo, who is a member of the Chicago park board, is the moving spirit in the concerts being given regularly in Grant park.

Mr. Petrillo's band will feature the festival's parade of thousands of bandsmen and join in the massed band numbers.

Among the stirring band numbers which will be played during the festival program will be "Glory of the Marines," composed by the musical director of the festival, Victor Grabel.

Composed After Battle.

The march was composed shortly after the battle of Château Thierry. Mr. Grabel at that time serving as bandmaster on the navy flagship, U. S. S. Pennsylvania. When word came through that the marines had borne an important share in the desperate struggle Mr. Grabel was inspired to write a march in their honor, and in it he incorporated their official song, the "Marines' Hymn."

In itself the Marines' Hymn contains a story. The music was composed many years ago by Jacques Offenbach for one of his Paris light operas. It has the typical Offenbachian lilt and swing and ability to stick in the memory, and it became widely known for that reason. Finally some one—history does not state who—wrote words to it for use by the marines, and it became their official song.

Popular with the Corps.

Wherever there is a meeting of marines you are likely to hear it. It begins thus:

From the halls of Montezuma
To the shores of Tripoli
We fight our country's battles
On the land as on the sea—
First to fight for right and freedom
And to keep our honor clean;
We are proud to claim the title
Of United States Marine.

And the final stanza continues to state their faith:

Here's health to you and to our corps
Which we are proud to serve;
In many a strife we've fought for life
And never lost our nerve—
If the army and the navy
Ever look on heaven's scenes,
They will find the streets are guarded
By United States Marines.

Three Cornet Stars Engaged.

This will be only one number. There will be many others. Mr. Grabel's transcription of the Richard Strauss "Thus Spake Zarathustra" already has been described in these columns. Another work, which in advance looks as though it should excite much interest, is a trio for cornets, "The Three Kings," by Walter Smith.

For this performance three of Chicago's most brilliant cornetists have been engaged, Ernest Pechin, Joseph Thompson, and Truman Weimer. Mr. Grabel describes the piece as a fine work in polka rhythm, tuneful, with many rapid passages, high notes, triple tonguing, and all the various devices that display solo cornetists at their best. Near the end there is an exceptionally difficult and effective cadenza for the three cornets, and the piece concludes with a rousing finish.

PARK AID, 66, TO WED GIRL, 16; 'LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT'

Charles Featherly, 3515 Chicago avenue, 66 year old director of Stanford park, Barber and Jefferson streets, got a license yesterday to marry Miss Marie Schelf, 16 years old, of 1019 West 20th place.

The prospective bride's parents, Herman and Bertha Schelf, who have six other children and are receiving relief, revealed that they had indicated their consent.

"It was love at first sight," said Schelf, explaining that his daughter fell in love with Featherly when she visited Dvorak park, Cullerton and Fisk streets, where Featherly formerly was a director. "They'll be happy all right. Featherly is a fine man. I've known him for 25 years."

Mrs. Florence Featherly, 47 years old, Featherly's wife, died last May 4 after a month's illness. She was active in politics in the 28th ward for 15 years.

SHE AND POWELL AREN'T ENGAGED, SAYS LA HARLOW

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 9.—(AP)—The fact that she and William Powell, screen actor, went shopping in the pots and pans department of a Santa Barbara store "doesn't mean a thing," Jean Harlow said here today.

"Mr. Powell and I went to Santa Barbara to visit mutual friends, who were to entertain us at a barbecue," said the actress. "As a joke we purchased a barbecue grill, had it tied up with pink ribbons and took it with us so we'd be sure to get something to eat."

Miss Harlow pointed out they could not be married if it were their desire because her divorce from Hall Rossen, film cameraman, has not yet become final.

"And in the second place," she concluded, "Mr. Powell and I have never discussed marriage, and I can say frankly that we have no such thing in mind."

PLYMOUTH ROCK BELONGS TO ALL U. S., IS DECISION

Plymouth, Mass., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Famous old Plymouth Rock on which the Pilgrims landed more than 300 years ago is the property of every American.

That's the decision of Town Counsel A. Perry Richards, as announced by the board of selectmen today. The ruling was made when the proprietor of a tourist home challenged the right of the town to regulate the rock and to prevent him from soliciting patronage there.

CRASH SHUNTS AUTO ON AND OFF PATH OF 2 TRAINS

Dr. John H. Yorke, 1580 South 48th court, Cicero, his wife and two other passengers in his car narrowly escaped death last night when another machine struck and shunted the Yorke automobile across the path of two oncoming trains.

Dr. Yorke, driving west in 55th street, stopped his car at the Chicago Belt Line tracks when he observed one freight train approaching from the north and one from the south. When the trains were only a few feet from the crossing, the automobile of Otto Matthis, 5120 Loomis street, struck the doctor's car in the rear.

The impact drove Dr. Yorke's machine across both of the double tracks and into the clear on the west side of them, the pilot of the southbound train missing the car by a few inches. Matthis, who told New City police his brakes had failed to hold, was charged with reckless driving.

9 DAY FAIR OPENS TODAY; $12,000 IN STOCK AWARDS

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

More than $12,000 in cash will be offered as prizes to exhibitors at the Cook County Fair, which opens this morning for a nine day run on the grounds at North avenue and River road. Henry A. Erlinger, general manager, announced last night that more than 500 head of cattle, horses, sheep and hogs from five states have been entered to compete for honors during the early part of next week.

The exposition is to be held this year under the auspices of the newly organized Cook County Fair association in coöperation with retail merchant associations of Chicago, including the Chicago-Cook County Retail Butchers' and Grocers' association, the Retail Dry Goods' association, the Retail Hardware association and the Retail Druggists' association.

State Helps Finance Prizes.

Arrangements have been made by Mr. Erlinger for the state department of agriculture to pay 55 per cent of the cash awards from the state's county fair appropriation.

In addition to the live stock competition, farm products, horticultural exhibits, and displays of domestic and fine arts, and many industrial exhibits will compete for honors.

Horse show programs will be given each afternoon and evening. Classes in the open horse show tonight will be open exclusively to Chicago and suburban exhibitors.

A dog show will be a feature during the first two days. At least 300 dogs of forty breeds will be judged today and tomorrow. After the prizes have been awarded the dogs will be moved out to make way for the poultry show.

4-H Clubs to Compete.

Boys and girls representing 4-H clubs in six neighboring counties have entered calves, lambs, and pigs in the junior feeding contest. Judges will pick the prize winners in this competition today. A bull calf, offered by Mrs. Chauncey McCormick of Chicago, is among the prizes.

The gates will be opened daily from 9 a. m. to 11 p. m., closing Sunday night, Aug. 18.

A REPUBLICAN PRESIDENT AND COALITION CABINET.

Democrats are out in front as opponents of the Roosevelt socialism. The ablest men in the party, particularly in congress, do not try to conceal their distrust, even their disgust. Their intelligence is offended, their principles are violated, and their opposition is bitter. They include such men as Glass and Byrd of Virginia, Tydings of Maryland, and numbers of the foremost men in the party in and out of congress—Douglas, Colby, Reed, Baker, etc.

Although their embarrassments are many, they remain Democrats. They supported Mr. Roosevelt and he deserted them for Huey Long. They are not Farleys. They can't be paid for out of the public treasury. They face political perplexities. Partly because of their position in the majority party and partly because of their character, some of these Democrats as champions of constitutional government are more influential and powerful than men in the Republican party, where the strongest opposition would be sought.

If our political and governmental system were different, if it were more like the British, the natural thing would be for men in both parties, united rather than divided by their thought on the paramount national issues, to join in forming a new government. The British saved themselves by a coalition with MacDonald as its figurehead. Our organization of politics does not adapt itself to such procedure. Sentiment, traditions and life-long associations and attachments to party history hold party leaders to their parties. They may bolt against an undesired candidate or what they consider a heresy, but they do not march over to the other party as an organized body.

The third party occasionally is used to organize dissent in one or both the others. That was the birth of the Republican party. Naturally thought has turned to a third party at this time. Difficulties rather than inducements are found. The Republican and Democratic conventions will be held. The law recognizes their nominations and the place on the ballot awaits them. The third party must meet legal requirements different in different states, more difficult in some than others. If popular impulse is there the requirements can be met, but it is the latter day history of these movements that although they may defeat the party at which they are aimed they do not elect their own men.

The Republican party now represents the organized political opposition to Roosevelt, even if conspicuous individual opposition is more to the front in the Democratic party. The question is whether the Republican party can attract organized Democratic support. What could be offered to smooth away the obstacles which arise to the view on every side? The impulse is to accept defeat for the suggestion as soon as uttered, but that would be unwise. It is worth a test.

First it would require an understanding backed by a pledge no man elected to the presidency could break that the government would be a coalition. In the extreme danger of the republic there could be no impropriety in laying such a plan before the country as a party proposal. The Republican candidate could say that if elected he would invite into his cabinet certain outstanding men of the Democratic party. He would probably announce that he would ask Carter Glass of Virginia to take the post only a patriot would accept, that of the treasury in the trying days of recovery from Roosevelt. He would restore Lewis Douglas as director of the budget. He could prove that he did not seek his own reelection by giving the postoffice to Gov. Talmadge of Georgia.

In this fashion the United States could put a coalition government in effect for the four most dangerous years the country has faced since '61. Such a government could be supported in both houses of congress regardless of party majorities.

The recovery from Roosevelt, following the retreat from him, will test the intelligence and character of the men who must rebuild what has been destroyed. The country would have a stouter heart if it could feel confident that politics had been put aside for national interests.

INDUSTRIAL ORGANIZATIONS.

Theodore Roosevelt once remarked, "Every man owes some of his time to the upbuilding of the profession to which he belongs." The quotation has been widely used by promoters of industrial associations as a reason for their existence. As a forum for the interchange of advanced ideas in the production, conversion, or manufacture of domestic and export products such organizations certainly have a place in our business world. But there is occasionally noted in the literature issued by these trade associations a tendency to promote a spirit of fraternity and protection; to remind the progressive member who is constantly searching for a new method and new materials to improve his product that others who cannot hold the pace are suffering; that the welfare of the industry as a whole should be considered of paramount importance.

Such broadsides are merely perverting the good intent of an organization whose original aim was to foster progress and must in the long run result in the maintenance of that particular branch of business at a low level of efficiency. Better methods convey benefits to the consumers and primary consideration of the public interest will in the long run pay the highest dividends.

THE GENESIS OF WEALTH SHARING.

That a slick politician was able to hoodwink Louisiana creoles into joining his political party by offering them a share of other people's property is not surprising. Why, even in one of the enlightened communities of the country a man was able to get himself elected mayor because of his opposition to a quiet, innocuous London gentleman. The false issue in politics is old stuff. But there is this difference: The Chicago yarn was without serious consequences because President Coolidge never did anything about pasting King George on the snout. President Roosevelt, however, is determined to incorporate the Louisiana fake into law. A careful consideration of the facts will disclose that there is no more truth in the creole fooler than there was in the yarn about the machinations of King George.

The data purporting to show that one per cent of the people owns 60 per cent of the wealth came from an old report of the federal trade commission. The study was made ten years ago and the individuals among whom wealth was found to be highly concentrated had been dead even then between three and fourteen years. Their wealth by now certainly has long since been distributed among heirs and paid to the government. Thus legislation is being rushed through congress because a government board found that some people who died a long time ago were rather wealthy.

But even the facts shown in the report have been repudiated by the man who was principally responsible for them. The use of estates data to measure wealth dispersion was developed by Dr. Willford I. King of New York, now president of the American Statistical association. He was the one who, more than twenty years ago, made the original statement about wealth concentration in this country. But Dr. King in his quest for the truth did not stop with the formulation of a hypothesis after the examination of a few probate records. He continued his research for more than ten years and then announced that though popular writers took it for granted that his studies of the distribution of estates gave dependable information about the distribution of wealth, he now had discovered that the assumption was unfounded. He reported that probate figures did not give a true picture of wealth distribution even among people at the end of their careers, because so much property was transferred without record and so many estates were not probated at all.

Making use of all the data he had accumulated in his years of study, he calculated that the richest two per cent of the people had only 40 per cent of the wealth, the next 33 per cent had 44 per cent and the poorest 65 per cent had about 16 per cent. Thus the man who has done more than any one else to learn about the distribution of wealth, and who is regarded as one of the greatest statisticians of all time, has found that the largest share of the wealth is possessed by the middle class.

Although Dr. King repudiated the story about wealth concentration, agitators continue to use it as if it were true. The important thing is that wealth sharing catches votes. It has a demonstrated record of success in that regard in Louisiana and other backward states. And that explains why the most political of administrations, suddenly made aware of its loss of popularity, took up wealth sharing.

THE PEDAGOGS' WAR.

Mr. Puffer and Mr. Aken have done each other greater damage in their brawl than to demonstrate their mutual lack of the dignity expected of educators. Their greatest mistake has been in calling public attention to an office, costing the county and state $40,000 a year, which changing conditions have left as a vermiform appendix on our school system. Does Cook county need a county superintendent of schools?

Editorial of the Day

PUNISHING A CONGRESSMAN.

[Michigan City (Ind.) News.]

Michigan City's request for $80,000 to improve the harbor has been rejected by the advisory committee on allotments. In short, the city's long fight to secure financial aid from the government to dredge the harbor and to transform the basin into a refuge for pleasure yachts has been carried on in vain.

The committee for work relief informed Congressman Samuel Pettengill the reason for the rejection of the application was that it would not put enough men to work to justify it, and that most of the money would go for material instead of labor.

When informed of the committee's action, Pettengill said: "This is not a losing fight—we are going right back to the national emergency council with our application and keep on fighting."

Some politicians claim that the committee's rejectment was directed more toward Pettengill than Michigan City itself. Pettengill, it is claimed, has bolted the Roosevelt administration on certain measures and that he, together with other congressmen, has been placed on the administration's "black list." Some say that the harbor rejectment was the first opportunity administrative leaders have had to punish Pettengill. They did it by rejecting a project for which Pettengill has fought for a long time.

Whether this theory is true or not Michigan City feels the governmental sting on the harbor improvement. The $80,000 asked is not a huge amount in view of the millions the government is alloting for public works projects. Washington park here obtained more than $300,000 alone for improvements under the PWA. The majority of this money will be spent for minor improvements. And still $80,000 cannot be obtained for such a worthy, permanent project as the harbor.

We are not exactly quibbling about the $300,000 which the park will receive for face lifting, manicuring and permanent waving. We are not quibbling, either, about the other goodies which Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins has dished out to Michigan City. But we would feel much better if Harry made good on the really big items, similar to the sewage and filtration plants—projects which would mean something toward Michigan City's betterment for the masses.

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE-LINE: In 1892 a large wigwam stood on the south side of Van Buren street east of Oakley. There Richard J. Oglesby, Joe Cannon, and William E. (Billy) Mason made stirring speeches in behalf of the Republican party.

In the 1896 campaign Mason, then a congressman, was chosen to answer William Jennings Bryan on the silver issue. He followed Bryan's trail over the city and through the country, making speeches which helped elect William McKinley. What a treat that type of speech would be in these days of demagogic oratory. Ezra Kendall was a comedian in the era of John and Emma Ray, Pat Rooney, Weber and Fields, May and Flo Irwin, Della Fox, the "spit curl cuties," and the Brothers Byrne.

Kendall's makeup consisted of a long coat, generously affected in those days, black derby, and two pieces of clothesline rope. When time for his act, Ezra took the two pieces of rope out of his pocket, tied one about each ankle, passed the ends under the instep and knotted them there. This was the then popular conception of how a tramp kept his shoes on.

Then putting a dent in one side of his derby, Kendall stepped upon the stage for his act. His favorite joke, illustrative of variety humor of the time, was, "Well, folks, that's the way it goes. You can drive a horse to water but a pencil must be lead." Prince Warren.

Speaking of that cold Chicago day, Jan. 1, 1861, mentioned by Helper "53," mother often recalled it. She was a young woman of 20 at the time, living in a little house next to the Arcade on Clark between Madison and Monroe. I am not clear on the origin of the Arcade except that the ground was given to Chicago and the opening always will remain as it is.

Clark street at the time was raised about 7 or 8 feet above the original ground level. Houses were set up on posts to bring them to the street level, with a small runway, perhaps 3 feet in width, from the street to the front door of the house. The original ground level frequently flooded and became a skating surface in winter.

Mother told of being awakened during the night by the steady tramp, tramp, tramp of Civil War troops arriving in the city and marching over the heavy plank pavement of Clark street to their temporary headquarters. This was in 1862-'63.

Young people were interested in music, with many singing societies giving war songs at all public gatherings. Boating parties also were held in the lagoon alongside Michigan avenue south of Randolph. The I. C. station was located at Randolph street. Trains ran south over trestled tracks.

LOUIS-LEVINSKY AFTERMATH.

Veloz and Yolanda, demonstrators of ballroom dancing, had ringside seats reserved for the Louis-Levinsky fisticuffs. Because the main bout was scheduled for 10 o'clock and because of their act at the Empire room the Terpsichoreans entered Comiskey park just as the principals were receiving instructions from the referee. As all remember, the bout was advanced half an hour for fear of rain. By the time Veloz and Yolanda found their seats the affair was over, but they saw it en route.

Not so with a party of sartorially perfect fellow racemen of Joe Louis who came up from St. Louis especially for the event. Driving up to Comiskey park in a large car at 9:45 o'clock and entering, one inquired of an usher, "When does the main event go on?" "It's come and went," was the usher's crushing reply. Then there was a protest about refund of ticket money, result of which this department is uninformed.

FLIPPING A COIN TO DECIDE.

Wake-Line: In making important decisions I have found that flipping a coin is by far the most satisfactory method. Besides saving wear and tear upon the mental machinery, if any, it is quick and effective.

One time—since 1929—I was confronted with the alternative of spending my last dime for either a bowl of soup or a plate of beans. I pulled the dime from my pocket, flipped it in the air, calling "heads, soup; tails, beans." I missed catching the coin and it disappeared down a grating in the sidewalk. The question was settled beyond all question.

WEANING THE BABY.

A CONSIDERABLE number of "old wives' tales," superstitions, and customs surround weaning. Many of these, handed down for generations, are unhealthful and some of the foods proposed for substitution are unwholesome. Weaning is the process of transferring the baby from mother's milk to other foods that are digestible and of such quality and quantity as will continue normal growth.

Of course the baby should not be weaned during illness, and in very warm weather any change of food must be approached with great caution. Sometimes it is necessary to wean the baby abruptly, either because of insufficient breast milk, illness on the part of the mother, or some disease of the breast. The transition from breast milk to artificial foods is often a delicate procedure calling for great resourcefulness.

Few mothers supply milk rich enough to nourish the child fully after the eighth month, and some of the most discouraging cases of malnutrition, rickets, anemia, etc., are found in children who have been maintained on breast milk when other foods should have been added to the diet. As a rule even partial breast feeding should not continue beyond the age of one year.

If we followed the child's primitive instincts we would give him a bone to suck—one, of course, that is large enough so that it cannot be swallowed. It is well known that the child's store of iron must be maintained from outside sources. Milk alone will not supply an adequate amount of iron, hence a good blood forming food is one of the baby's first needs and meat is an excellent source. It is far less likely to upset digestion than an iron preparation and many physicians advocate its use during the second six months of life.

Fat is needed, and butter is the best possible form. Whole wheat bread cut into thin fingerlike strips and baked in an oven forms an excellent absorptive material for butter. Creamed soup made with spinach and potato is also recommended.

An excess of cereals, the chief source of carbohydrates, is not advised because of the anti-bone forming substances found in some of them. However, if other foods given the baby contain adequate amounts of vitamins A, C, and D, cereals may be used in average amounts. They should be as thick as ordinary gruel and thinned with milk after cooking. It is often wise to begin with barley, rice flour, or strained oatmeal, later substituting some of the more gritty cereals, which should be well cooked in a double boiler.

The importance of cod liver oil and orange juice must not be forgotten and their use should be begun in small doses not later than the second month. Carrots, turnips, etc., should be cut into small cubes and thoroughly steamed for about two hours. They may then be mashed and beaten to a soft pulp. When scraped they may be given raw. If constipation is evident thoroughly cooked apple sauce unsweetened or only slightly sweetened and prune whip may be used to advantage.

When the child is seven or eight months of age he may be taught to take milk out of a cup and to eat other soft foods.

If the baby has been bottle fed the same general rules apply, namely, that foods other than milk must enter the diet some time between the sixth and the eight months. After the eighth month the diluted milk may be strengthened gradually until by the time the child is nine or ten months old a good grade of whole cow's milk may be given. The amount of sugar should be gradually decreased and omitted entirely as soon as whole milk can be taken.

We must recall that the coming of the baby's teeth is nature's signal that foods other than milk are needed, and the additional vitamins furnished by these new foods will make for growth and the development of resistance.

DISTURBED BY MUSIC.

Mrs. G. K. writes: My 10 year old daughter cannot bear to listen to music, especially band music, on the radio. She is an honor student at school and takes piano and dancing lessons. As a baby she never liked music, and doctors said she would outgrow the condition. Both my husband and I are very fond of music. Is there anything I can do to make her appreciate music? She is very nervous.

REPLY.

In certain individuals the auditory nerve is irritated by specific sound vibrations. We recognize this phenomenon in animals. Dogs are quite susceptible to sound and will howl when a certain note is struck. The sensitivity in your daughter is probably quite real and not an exhibition of temper or of imagination. The best thing is to accustom her gradually to certain tone vibrations, starting with notes of low pitch and increasing the range slowly. I should like to know whether she will react to such a bit of melody as Chopin's Prelude. In band and orchestra music there are many overtones, and some people subconsciously become nervous and irritable because of them. Such persons will exclaim, when the concert is over, "How good the silence sounds!"

THYROID.

C. I. writes: Does the thyroid ever enlarge and give trouble in older persons?

REPLY.

Yes, and the condition may be as severe as in the younger ages. In one large clinic 7 per cent of all those treated for excess secretion of the thyroid [hyperthyroidism] were 60 years of age or older. In addition to the pronounced symptoms of irritability, nervousness, tremor, etc., there is usually a rather rapid loss of weight. Removal of the principal portion of the thyroid gland is the remedy, and older people stand this operation unusually well.

SETTLING ESTATE.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Last April my uncle's will was probated in Iowa. I am one of the heirs. My sister and I were left the home, which has a clear title, also money. The money was in cash deposited in banks and there are no notes outstanding either to be collected or paid. My sister is executrix. No bills remain to be paid. 1. The attorney has advised us that same must be held a year before paying the heirs, as there may be other bills coming in to be paid. 2. We know for sure there are no more bills to be paid. 3. Could the court hearing be requested at the next term of court and the money paid out, or do we have to wait the whole year? W. C. S.

1. We agree with him.

2. We do not see how you can be sure of this, but even if you were sure, the important point is that he has no way of being sure.

3. He is at liberty to make an earlier payment if he so desires, but you cannot force it.

POWER OF ATTORNEY.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A resident of Europe wishes to give me power of attorney in order to take charge of his assets here. 1. What is the legal procedure necessary for the drawing up of the papers? 2. Can the paper be drawn up here and sent to Europe for signature? A. C.

1. Depends in part on the nature of the assets. If substantial property interests are involved, you should employ an attorney. If the act to be done under the power of attorney needs to satisfy some individual or official who is likely to be critical, it would be advisable to ascertain the requirements in advance.

2. Yes. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

WORDING OF WILL CONTROLS.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. An estate was left to four daughters. One daughter died leaving no children and [2] no will. This is in Wisconsin. Does her share go to her children or her husband? Can they demand their share and when? Can their father be administrator? They are all of age. Must he put up bonds? Can father compel property sale? L. L.

1. You do not indicate which party died first.

2. We do not understand whether neither party left a will or only one party. If there was a will we should have its wording.

VALIDITY OF DEED.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Two years ago my aunt, 92 years old, passed on, leaving her home to two elderly sisters, one 90 and the other 75 years old. The 90 year old sister passed on a year later. A month before she died, through some advisers, she signed over her share of the house to the remaining sister, giving her a quitclaim deed which was not recorded until after the sister died. There are also five nieces. Is this quitclaim deed legal to give clear title when sold? F. N. B.

A deed is not operative unless validly delivered during the grantor's lifetime. Failure to record until after the death of the grantor invites question on this point. We advise you to go over the facts in a personal interview with an attorney.

MORTGAGE.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A mortgage on our home was sold to a different party. 1. The new party demands a tornado insurance be covered on the home. 2. If same is not forthcoming he intends to cancel the mortgage. It was never agreed in the papers that the mortgagee is entitled to a tornado insurance. 3. Is this legal? J. A. B.

1. You are under no legal obligation to pay for such additional insurance unless the existing papers place such an obligation on you.

2. He cannot cancel it until the expiration date, unless there is wording giving him that right.

3. On the facts stated, he has no right to make such a demand.

MODERN ARCHITECTURE.

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 7.—Chicago may redeem the ugliness of two past years. The ten commissioners of the Chicago Exposition authority are to start construction soon on the permanent buildings for the exposition in Burnham park. They can, if they will, clear off the last of these repellent shacks of 1933 and 1934 that murdered architecture as a fine art. Our "modernism" in buildings today, a token of our scientific, commercial and material soullessness, will be regarded as hideous and false in the future, as it ought to be now. Its cutting lines, gashing angles and coarse masses reflect our spiritual aridity; but they are a blast to the esthetic sense and prove the exact contrary of the boast of their designers. Architects cannot be "original" now, for, in the first place, they do not make architecture, and in the second place, science has killed the soul in this age, from which alone, if it exists at all, the fine art must get its compulsion.

Since we cannot be "original," let the commissioners select from the fine, true types, Grecian, Gothic, Renaissance, Tudor, Colonial or some other. Any of these would be "permanent" and would please after the present foolish fad for "modernism" is seen to be a chase after a counterfeit, which will be outmoded tomorrow. Let them build beautifully for the generations. Loren H. B. Knox.

MR. FARLEY MIGHT.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—I wonder if any one could tell me why the postoffice issues bulletins stating they are going to hire men. They take about 10,000 applications and raise the hopes of all these poor men who are so anxious to obtain work of any kind. Then in the end after all applications are taken, references sent in and all, not one man is hired. Is there any one who can explain why they do this? E. B.

HE WANTS TO BE A TOOL MAKER.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—I have found out while looking for work that there are a lot of tool and die makers wanted and some factories are canceling orders because of the shortage of such help; so why can't such factories hire a few young men to be trained and at the same time produce enough work for a living salary? FROM THE SAGE OF COEUR D'ALENE.

Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, July 31.—This will be my most popular letter, for it is all about money—all that I know about money.

Ford, the automobile man, says money is not wealth. He ought to know, but he can't see the forest because of the billion dollar trees that shelter him.

No one can get people to think that money is not wealth. All the factories, mines, railroads, ships, and thousands of industries are run day and night with sweat, blood, and tears, with the sole object of making money, which Ford says is not wealth.

On the contrary, money is the only real wealth. It is the only thing instantly convertible into all the forms of material goods that men desire.

The Bible says, "Money answereth all things." Charles Hooper.

LANDLORD'S SUGGESTION.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Why can't something be done to help the landlord, the real taxpayer?

The cost of a court order for removal of a tenant used to be $3, but because of the increased need of this service it has been raised to $4. Many a landlord, after having permitted a tenant to remain a long period of time hoping that he will pay his honest debt, cannot afford to go to this extra expense and has to wait until the deadbeat moves of his own accord. If this cost was charged to a nonpaying tenant, and if he claims inability to pay, he should be compelled to work in the streets to pay for the cost.

Poor Landlord.

CATS.

Oak Park, Ill., Aug. 8.—You might add this plank to your platform: "License All Cats."

These marauding, bird killing pests, estimated to be more than eight million destroyers of our finest song birds in Illinois, should be licensed at not less than $1 each per year, and a cat so licensed should jingle an alarm bell from its neck. Beautiful song birds need our protection. Charles H. Devenny.

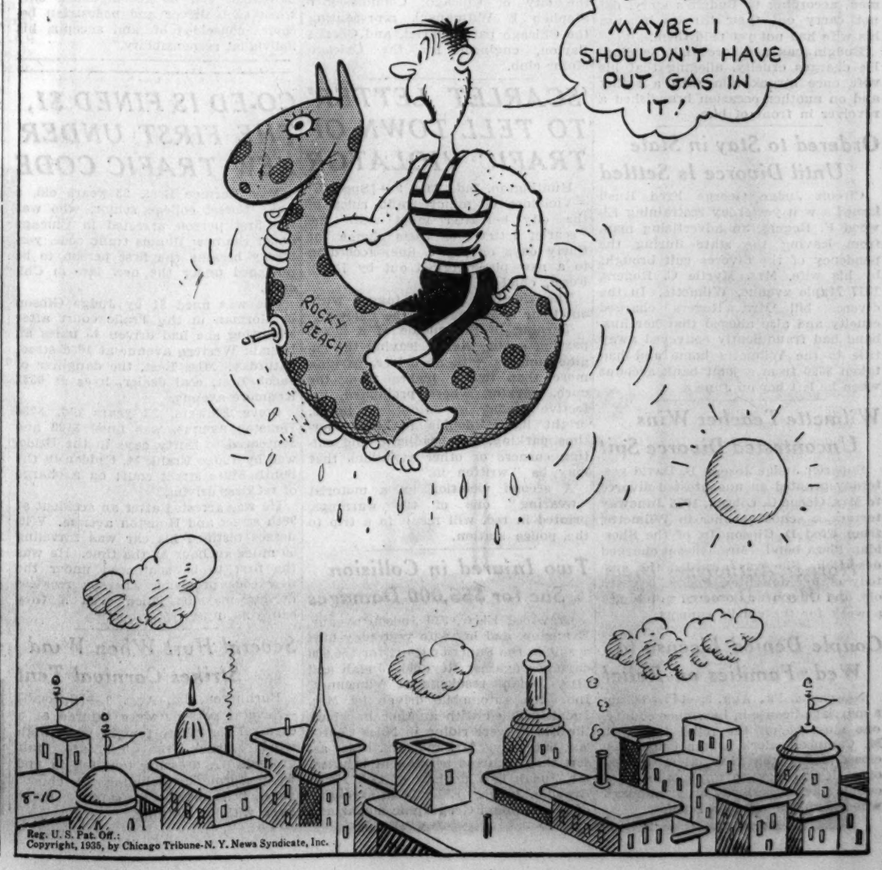
HOW TO KEEP FROM GROWING OLD



CARRY ON FIGHT TO PROTECT LOW CLEANING PRICES

Independents Will Seek Appeals Court Aid.

A petition for a writ of prohibition to restrain the judges of the Circuit court from interfering with independent cleaning and dyeing companies which are cutting prices below injunctional limits fixed on July 13 will be filed in the Illinois Appellate court early next week. This was announced yesterday by Irving Breakstone, counsel for the Peacock Cleaners and Dyers and several other independent chains.

The writ of prohibition, a rarely used legal remedy, will be sought on the ground that the Appellate court should restrain the Circuit court, an inferior tribunal, from proceeding with a course of action—the price fixing injunction and resulting contempt citations for its violation—which is injurious to the business of the independents.

Prices Fixed by Court.

The price fixing injunction, issued by Circuit Judge Benjamin P. Epstein, enjoined twenty-three independent concerns from charging les sthan 90 cents for cleaning and pressing a garment when called for and delivered or less than 75 cents for cash and carry customers. The Peacock company and a few of the other independents, however, have been cutting prices below these minima. They assert they can make a profit while saving the public money.

Edward A. Fink, president of the Peacock company, was sentenced to serve sixty days in jail on July 26 when he told Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher that he could not "conscientiously promise" to refrain from cutting prices while the court was investigating his financial records. He was released on bond after spending several hours in jail. On Aug. 2 the Peacock company was fined $3,000 by Judge Fisher for continuing to reduce prices.

Both the jail sentence and the fine are being appealed to the Appellate court. Attorney Breakstone explained yesterday that as the high court has taken jurisdiction of the entire case through the appeals—the injunction itself is also being appealed—a writ of prohibition can properly be granted to prevent further summary action by the Circuit court.

Hear Contempt Cases Sept. 3.

Contempt citations against fifty-one employés of the Peacock company and three officials of two other cleaning and dyeing companies which were pending before Judge Fisher were continued by him on Thursday to Sept. 3, at that time Judge Epstein, who has been on a vacation, will resume his duties and hear the citations unless the writ of prohibition is issued.

Fink said yesterday that he will "stand by the guns" and continue to charge reduced prices.

"I'm making money," he declared, and the public appreciates the benefit of lower prices. It certainly isn't necessary to gouge the customers to make a profit. Why shouldn't I pass on to them the benefit of my plant's efficiency?

"If a working girl buys a dress for $4 there is no reason why she should have to pay nearly one-fourth that amount every time she wants it cleaned. If the high prices are enforced women will do their own cleaning and dyeing and that will result in unemployment in our industry."

Reason for Lower Prices.

Attorney Breakstone said that the independent chains are able to charge lower prices because they eliminate the middleman—the tailor—in their dealings with the public.

"Our customers bring their garments direct to the plant," he said, "and thus there is no tailor's profit added to the final price. It's the same principle as a family buying eggs direct from the farmer instead of through a store.

"I have received reports that several members of the association [the Cleaning and Dyeing Plant Owners' Association of Chicago, which obtained the injunction] are making secret rebates to tailors in order to get work from them.

"That is a violation of the injunction and those association members will be coming to court with unclean hands in their own lawsuit. That should be enough to void the injunction when we present the evidence in court."

Denies Laundry Case Applies.

Breakstone discussed the ruling of the Appellate court, which held last year that price fixing in the laundry trade was not a violation of the anti-trust laws. Attorneys for the cleaning and dyeing association have contended the present case is analogous, as both the laundry business and the cleaning business are service trades.

"That may be true," Breakstone said, "but there was one different issue involved in that case. Members of the Chicago Laundry Owners' association had contracted among themselves and adopted bylaws fixing prices. Then some of the members bolted and began charging less. The Circuit court issued a price fixing injunction against them and the Appellate court sustained it.

"But in this case none of the independents agreed with the cleaners' association to fix minimum prices. There was no contract violated by the independents because they never had one."

In addition to the Peacock company two other independent cleaning companies are charging less than the prices specified in the injunction. They are Abarbanell Brothers and the Kent Cleaners and Dyers.

Horner Authorizes Diver to Hunt Drowning Victim

A representative of Gov. Horner announced last night that the governor had authorized the employment of a deep sea diver to go to the bottom of a quarry, 100 feet deep, near Kankakee, and search for the body of Charles Murphy, colored musician who was drowned last week-end. The aid of the governor was sought by Murphy's father, Henry, of 3815 South Michigan avenue. John Carroll, a diver of Wisconsin Dells, Wis., has been engaged for the search and is to start diving at 10 a. m. today.

Burlesque Hunt Risks Jap Ire

May Be Protest

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Despite hints of possible protests, a Japanese "mikado" and "an Ethiopian emperor" were burlesqued together today in a "fox hunt" staged for fun.

Sponsors of the event minimized the potentialities of the burlesque, but a guarded statement came later from a spokesman at the Japanese consulate.

"You Americans can understand that it is a humorous matter," he said. "The Japanese, however, might consider it as bad taste, at least."

In the hunt, put on by members of the Capital Hill Commercial club as a humorous affair in a quiet residential district shortly after dawn, a club member representing the "Mikado" attired in regalia and trappings pulled a jinrikisha, bearing another member described as an "Ethiopian Emperor."

Robert O. Jones, master of the hunt and one time Idaho secretary of state, joined in describing the affair as "purely humorous"—another in a series of "goofy stunts" community clubs have staged here this summer.

2,000 TAXPAYERS JOIN IN RUSH TO AVOID PENALTIES

Seek Waivers Under New Law.

More than 2,000 property owners who are seeking the waiver of tax penalties under a new state law thronged the county building yesterday outside the office of County Treasurer Joseph L. Gill. They were given applications which they must fill out as affidavits of the nature of the property on which they want the penalties canceled.

The law, passed at the recent session of the state legislature, provides that a person who has paid delinquent taxes and current 1933 taxes in full may have all the penalties on the delinquent taxes waived if the property is his residence. If it is an income bearing property, the treasury may waive 50 per cent of the penalties. Officials of the federal Home Owners' Loan corporation yesterday requested 5,000 application blanks. They will receive them today.

Penalties of $400 Waived.

The first person to benefit yesterday by the new law was Mrs. Louise M. Van Sicklen, 7616 Bond avenue. She made her application early in the day and then returned the sworn affidavit with a payment of $1,061, the balance due on delinquent taxes on her home for the years 1928 to 1932 inclusive, and a further payment of $288, her taxes for 1933. As a result penalties totaling $400 for the years 1928 to 1932 were waived.

Only one other affidavit was presented during the day. That was filed by an agent for an income-bearing property. Half the penalties were waived.

During the afternoon Circuit Judge George Fred Rush heard arguments in a mandamus suit brought by two taxpayers to compel County Judge Jarecki and County Treasurer Gill to put into operation another law enacted by the last legislature.

Provides 7 Annual Payments.

This law provides that persons owing taxes for 1932 and prior years be permitted to retire these obligations in seven annual instalments while paying the county 6 per cent interest a year. All penalties would be waived, according to the law, with the further condition that 1933 taxes had been paid in full. Judge Jarecki has declared that he believes the law unconstitutional as it is beyond the scope of the treasurer's administrative powers to enter into such agreements.

Judge Rush announced that he would give his decision Tuesday afternoon.

FIND UNDERTAKER GUILTY OF MISER WILL FRAUD PLOT

John J. Bagdonas was convicted by a jury in the Criminal court of Judge Walter J. La Buy yesterday of conspiracy to obtain through a forged will the $100,000 estate of James Thomas Kelly, West Madison street miser who died last March. A motion for a new trial will be heard on Aug. 17.

During the day Judge Harry B. Miller sentenced Mrs. Bella Butman, 38 years old, 6743 Irving Park boulevard, in whose home Kelly died, to six months in the county jail for her part in the conspiracy. Both Bagdonas and Mrs. Butman, who was convicted on Wednesday, were found guilty on misdemeanor counts which carry a maximum penalty of a $2,000 fine and a year in jail.

Bagdonas, who is 44 years old, owns an undertaking establishment at 2506 West 63d street. Assistant State's Attorney Julius Sherwin introduced evidence to show that, whereas the purported Kelly will set aside $4,500 for burial purposes, Bagdonas actually buried Kelly in a $95 casket and a $20 grave.

"PSYCHOLOGIST" CALLS BURGLARY CHARGE MISTAKE

Francis H. Mathews, 38 years old, under arrest in Evanston, said last night that his home is at 1826 Beacon street, Boston, and that he is a practicing psychologist. Records at the police station set forth the claim that Mathews is a practicing burglar.

He was seized last evening at Church street and Hinman avenue in the suburb on complaint of W. L. Crocroft of the Monnett hotel, 1633 Chicago avenue, Evanston. Crocroft declared that he had seen the Bostonian leaving his [Crocroft's] room and that $15, of which $10 was in 25 cent pieces, was missing. There were five $1 bills and 40 quarters in possession of the psychologist. He said he got them on Wilson avenue.

"I came to Chicago to arrange for lectures on psychology," said Mathews, "and I have been stopping at a south side hotel. This is all a mistake."

FALL UPON KNIFE FATAL.

Wounds incurred Wednesday when she fell on a butcher knife at home caused the death in the county hospital yesterday of Mary Matriciano, 12 years old, 1015 South Seeley avenue.

TOLL OF FLOODS IN OHIO PLACED AT FIVE MILLION

Red Cross, U. S. Help Many Homeless.

Zanesville, O., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Ohio resurveyed tonight the damage from its most disastrous flood in 22 years and set the total at approximately $5,000,000.

Red Cross and federal relief officials and the National Guard aided local authorities in caring for thousands of persons left temporarily homeless.

The muddy Muskingum and Tuscarawas rivers receded slowly in most places.

Five Persons Dead.

Five persons died in the flood. A sixth, a 73 year old woman feared drowned, was found today wandering in a woods a mile from Irondale village in Columbiana county. The woman, Miss Marjorie McIntosh, was suffering from hunger and exposure. She had lived three days on blackberries. Her clothing was torn.

The state highway department was one of the heaviest flood losers. It placed its loss at $1,000,000, equal to that of each of Tuscarawas and Coshocton counties.

Guardsmen on Duty.

Battery E of the 134th field artillery of the Ohio National Guard patroled streets of Zanesville and distributed clothing and bedding. The guardsmen were detailed to the city when fear was expressed levees might burst before the tremendous pressure of the water.

The Muskingum at Zanesville passed its crest of 33.6 feet at 2 p. m. today, and danger of further damage was believed passed as the river fell slowly.

Down the river, at Marietta, the river also fell slowly despite the fact it still must carry off water that had not yet flowed from the lowlands upstream.

MOTORIST KILLED AS YOUTHS START ON CRIME CAREER

New York, Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Munching sandwiches, two youthful killers told the police here today how they murdered a man on a lonely road near Peekskill, how they stole his car and drove to New York, planning to go on to Chicago, determined to rob motorists along the route, killing their victims if they thought it necessary.

The two were arrested shortly before midnight, several hours after they had embarked on their careers in crime by killing Raymond H. Pierce, 23, of Oscawanna Corners, near Peekskill. They shot him in the back and left him to die near a gasoline station a mile north of Peekskill.

The prisoners are Peter Mohlsick, 20, and Howard Eichler, 21, both of Peekskill.

They met in Peekskill last night, they said, and went out on the road determined to stop the first automobile, hold up the driver, throw him out, take his car, and drive to New York. From here they planned to go to Chicago, repeating the same procedure wherever necessary.

Catches a 15 Pound Carp at Michigan Ave. Bridge

A 15 pound carp was caught in the Chicago river just west of the Michigan avenue bridge yesterday by Vasila Boanta, 24 years old, 673 North Clark street. Using angle worms for bait, Boanta hooked the fish shortly before noon and brought it to the bank after a struggle. Veteran fishermen said the carp was one of the largest ever hooked in the Chicago river.

GIRL DENIES ANY PART IN SLAYING AT FERRIS TRIAL

Case of 4 in Dickinson Killing Near End.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—The trial of William Lee Ferris and his three women associates charged with the holdup murder of Howard Carter Dickinson, New York attorney, neared a close today as Loretta Jackson, last of the four defendants, resumed the witness stand.

The one time burlesque dancer and "party girl" denied that she had anything to do with the slaying of the attorney. Intimating that all blame for murder should rest on Ferris, she told the jury "I didn't think we had done anything wrong."

She testified that she wasn't apprehensive when she sent the telegram to her mother in Detroit while she and the others were in hiding at Fort Wayne, Ind. It was this telegram that enabled police to arrest the four.

The witness said Ferris told them to "shut up" when they asked why Dickinson had been killed. She repeated statements that Ferris was searching for "some papers" as he stood over the body of the attorney.

Police were planning to test the .32 caliber pistol found by boys in Chicago to determine whether it was the weapon used to kill Dickinson. Inspector John I. Navarre, head of the Detroit homicide squad, said he does not believe it is the weapon, as bullets taken from Dickinson's body indicated he was shot with a revolver.

U. S. SCULPTOR WINS $520,000 CLAIM IN SPAIN

MADRID, Aug. 9.—(AP)—The claim of Edmundo Quatrocchi, American sculptor, now a resident of Paris, to about $520,000 worth of Madrid property was upheld today by a government decree.

The property includes buildings and grounds of the old Jesuit headquarters which were burned by mobs in May, 1931. It also comprises the ruins of a church and monasteries which the Jesuits once owned in the central part of the city.

The property was seized by the government in September, 1931, as part of the holdings of the Society of Jesus, which was dissolved at that time by the provisional republican government. Quatrocchi, represented by Minister of War Gil Robles, laid claim to the property, asserting he bought it for the equivalent of $485 several weeks after it was destroyed by the anti-clerical mob.

It was learned that the government several months ago also acknowledged Quatrocchi's claim to bonds valued at 3,500,000 pesetas ($455,000), on deposit in the Spanish Bank of Credit, previously seized as belonging to the Jesuits.

MME. GALLI-CURCI IN HOSPITAL FOR SURGERY TODAY

Mme. Amelita Galli-Curci, noted singer, entered Henrotin hospital yesterday and at 9 o'clock this morning will undergo an operation for the removal of a goiter. The goiter is of the type known as adenoma, a tumor growing in the thyroid gland, according to Dr. Arnold Kegel, former city health commissioner, who will perform the operation.

When Mme. Galli-Curci was in Kashmir, India, last March 15 on a world concert tour, Dr. Kegel, who was there doing goiter research, examined her and discovered the goiter. Later, in June, he made a complete study of her case for three weeks in the Imperial University hospital of Tokio, Japan. She completed her tour and came directly here for the operation.

The diva is happy and cheerful, and she is expected to bear the operation well, Dr. Kegel said. It will be performed under a local anesthetic, but only because it is his general practice in such cases and not because of her general condition, which is good, he said.

UNION THREATS AGAIN HALT MEN BUILDING A BARN

For the second time in as many days a delegation of about a hundred union men went to the farm of John D. Allen, three miles south of Libertyville yesterday, and halted the activities of 27 workmen engaged in building a large barn and other structures.

On Thursday the union men put in their appearance, frightened the workers from their jobs, and insisted that only union men be hired. The contractors, Robert Sitz and Arthur Ball, said work would proceed yesterday. It proceeded for about thirty minutes until the union men made their second appearance.

Today is expected to bring a conference between the contractors and union representatives in an effort to reach a settlement. The farm is a part of the former Samuel Insull estate. Mr. Allen is vice president of Brink's Express company.

HOTTEST DAY SINCE LAST SEPTEMBER HITS LOS ANGELES SECTION

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 9.—(AP)—The year's hottest weather blanketed southern California today, claiming two lives and causing numerous prostrations.

Under a blazing sun, the mercury reached 98 degrees at Los Angeles, the highest mark since September, 1934. More than thirty brush fies started, sweeping several hundred acres.

Inland at San Bernardino, the mercury soared to 107 degrees, the year's highest mark. Monrovia and Arcadia, in the foothills, and Needles, on the Mojave desert, all reported 106.

2 ARE DROWNED AS CAR PLUNGES INTO MISSISSIPPI

End of Bridge Collapses After Crash.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Two persons were drowned and two others hurt early today when the automobile in which they were riding plunged into the Mississippi river as the west end of the Municipal bridge here collapsed. A Milwaukee girl dived into the river in a vain rescue attempt. The motorists were on their way home from a night club.

Francis Landrieu, 35, resident engineer at a dam project here, and his wife were drowned. Their home was in New Orleans. Another couple with the Landrieus, Lieut. Fisher Blinn, 33, army officer, of Marion, Ind., and Miss Marceline Patro, 25, of Minneapolis, were rescued by a police boat that hurried to the scene.

Army Officer at Wheel.

According to police, the accident occurred when the car driven by Blinn smashed into an iron girder at the top of the west approach, and the west span, weakened from a similar accident 3 years ago, gave way. The car fell into 8 feet of water.

Blinn told police that the party were driving home from a night club at Lacrescent, Minn., three miles from here. He and Miss Patro were in the front seat and the Landrieus were in the rear seat. He said he was driving between 30 and 40 miles an hour when the car struck the right end post of the bridge and the west span collapsed.

The car went head first into the water, only the tail light showing above the water. Blinn told police he was able to climb out the open window nearest the driver's seat and bring Miss Patro with him. Police said the other couple were apparently trapped in the rear seat.

Blinn told police that as he and the woman waited for the police boat he feared that other cars would plunge into the river on them.

Young Heroine Fails.

The Milwaukee heroine was Miss Louise Koenig. She was near a bathhouse on Pettebone island, she said, when she heard the crash.

"I heard a terrible shriek and when I got to the edge of the river one of the men was pulling a girl onto a beam which had sagged into the river," Miss Koenig said.

"I took off my dress, jumped into the river, swam to the car and tried to get the car door open, but the current was so swift I had to give up."

IRVING BERLIN'S SISTER KILLED IN N. Y. PLUNGE

Ill Health Is Blamed for Suicide.

New York, Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Mrs. Sarah Henkin, 48 year old sister of Irving Berlin, song writer, jumped to her death today from the roof of a four story apartment house in Brooklyn.

Her husband, Alexander, 56 years old, attributed her act to ill health. She had been a semi-invalid, he said, for more than twenty years, having asthma, complicated in recent years by a nervous ailment. Mr. Henkin, formerly a weaver and packing clerk, and for the last several years unemployed, said Mr. Berlin had contributed $100 monthly to the couple's support since he had been out of work, often visited them, and was deeply concerned over Mrs. Henkin's health. The last check was received four days ago.

Mr. Berlin, husband of the former Ellin Mackay, daughter of Clarence H. Mackay, is on location in California with a motion picture company. Efforts were being made tonight to get in touch with him.

W. F. GRESHAM, NAVY WAR HERO, DIES OF CANCER

New York, Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Commander William Fuller Gresham, 51 years old, United States navy, a world war hero and a veteran of the 1912 Nicaraguan campaign, died yesterday of cancer at the Columbia Presbyterian Medical center after a two year illness.

Commander Gresham received a navy cross for his heroism in 1917, when the Aztec, the first American merchant ship to be armed in the world war, was sunk by a mine or a submarine in French waters five days before the United States declared war on Germany.

Then a lieutenant, he was in charge of the gun crews on the vessel, which was destroyed April 1, 1917. Twenty-seven of the Aztec's sailors and one of his own men were lost. The Aztec was half lifted from the sea when the explosion occurred and he and his men were picked up by a French patrol after hours of cold and exhaustion.

After the American entry into the war Commander Gresham commanded the destroyer Benham in convoy work, using Queenstown, Ireland, as his home port.

COURT TO DECIDE IF BOY, 14, WILL HAVE OPERATION

Yonkers, N. Y., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Crippled Henry Spiak, 14, told by doctors that an operation would enable him to walk with a small brace, insisted tonight that "father knows best" in refusing permission for the surgery for which public agencies would defray costs.

Children's Court Judge George W. Smyth is to decide whether an operation shall be ordered performed despite opposition of the father, the boy and eight brothers and sisters in the family. The mother is dead.

Henry has had almost no schooling since he was stricken with infantile paralysis nine years ago. The boy moves about only in a little cart which he himself built and operates by hand. He is unable to manipulate crutches or a wheel chair.

Dr. George Anapol recommended an operation which he said was without danger and would cure the boy.

But the boy's father, Anthony Spiak, who works in a carpet factory, refused to allow the surgery, pointing to a pile of braces in the attic of the home which he said were discarded as useless.

GIRL VICTIM GETS PART OF REWARD UP FOR THOMPSON

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Henry Newman, a laundry worker, and an unnamed girl, one of his victims, will share $1,841, the reward offered for information leading to the arrest of Gerald Thompson, convicted rapist-slayer of Miss Mildred Hallmark.

Newman provided police with Thompson's auto license number and information of a similar attack on a girl employed at the laundry.

The girl, "Mary Doe," whose name was withheld by police and state's attorney, gave information against Thompson before they obtained his confession. She was attacked by Thompson a year ago and her experiences tallied with those of the Hallmark girl, it was said.

Ren. Thurman, counsel for Thompson, expects to secure a continuance of the new trial motion Monday, the date set by Judge Joseph Daily for such a hearing. Thurman expects to present affidavits to show that several of the jurors had expressed opinions of Thompson's guilt before accepted on the jury.

Dies on 'L' Train on Way from Watching the Cubs

A man believed to be Albert Russler, 57 years old, 474 Elm avenue, Elmhurst, collapsed and died, apparently of a heart attack, on a Jackson Park elevated train as it was approaching the Belmont avenue station yesterday. The description of the dead man checked with that given the bureau of missing persons by Russler's family. The family said Russler had gone to a baseball game at the Cubs' baseball park, and a check in the dead man's pocket indicated he had just come from the game. The pockets also yielded the return half of a round trip ticket to Elmhurst.

W. J. Evans Dies; Pioneer of Rock Island County

East Moline, Ill., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—William J. Evans, 81, pioneer settler of Rock Island county, died last night. He was 4 years old when his parents moved here from Delaware.

JAIL TERM OVER, HE'LL TRY AGAIN TO GAIN FORTUNE

New York, Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Thomas Patrick Morris, one of the claimants of the $30,000,000 Wendel estate, emerged today from the Tombs—on parole after serving two years and two months of a penitentiary sentence. His attorney, Bernard H. Sandler, met him at the door on Center street, announcing:

"He is going to sue some of his former attorneys on the basis that his case has been manhandled and that he did not get a square deal."

Mr. Sandler further said that he intended to renew Morris' claim to the Wendel millions.

Having said as much, Mr. Sandler rushed away to his office. Mr. Morris, a small, slight man, with a limp, who suffers from stomach ulcers and heart trouble, trudged on by himself.

"I hope," he said wistfully, "that we win the case before I die."

Before he was sentenced to Welfare Island penitentiary he had alleged that he was the son of John G. Wendel, brother of Ella von E. Wendel, whose estate he claimed.

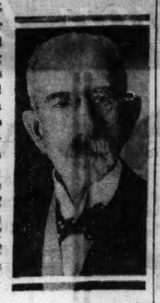
WOOLAVINGTON, WEALTHY BRITISH DISTILLER, DIES

PETWORTH, England, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Lord Woolavington, wealthy distiller and prominent race horse owner and breeder, died today after a long illness. He was 85 years old. Lord Woolavington twice won the Derby, with Captain Cuttle in 1922 and Coronach in 1926. He was chairman of James Buchanan & Co., Ltd., of London, and of W. P. Lowrie & Co., Ltd., of Glasgow.



LORD WOOLAVINGTON

Lord Woolavington's name became well known in America in 1927 when he played the part of a fairy godfather to two Janesville, Wis., girls, Catherine and Jean Buchanan, his grand nieces.

Unaware up to that time that the two granddaughters of his brother, William, were living in comparative poverty in America, Lord Woolavington invited them to England as his guests, sent them a check for traveling expenses, entertained them for six weeks and provided for their future with a trust fund before they returned home.

CATHOLICS TOLD TO QUIT BIRTH CONTROL UNITS

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Catholics in the St. Paul archdiocese today were ordered by Archbishop John Gregory Murray to spurn and renounce membership and employment in any organization coöperating with birth control movements.

Writing in the Catholic Bulletin, the archbishop instructed the clergy to announce at all masses Aug. 18 that "hereafter no individual or group of individuals or society may accept or retain membership in any organization recognizing or supporting birth control or sterilization.

"Persons employed in any position that involves coöperation of any kind effecting either birth control or sterilization must withdraw from such employment. Relief workers . . . must refuse to become agents of such anti-social and demoralizing activity."

Physicians, nurses and social workers are ordered from engaging in what the archbishop termed "anti-social activities."

The General Federation of Women's Clubs and the American Association of University Women, both national organizations, recently endorsed birth control. Many Twin City Catholic women are members of local groups affiliated with those organizations.

The St. Paul archdiocese includes Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and part of Montana.

REP. CHAS. TRUAX FROM OHIO DIES AT WASHINGTON

Expires Soon After He Leaves House Floor.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Charles V. Truax, Democratic congressman at large for Ohio, died suddenly in his room at the Roosevelt hotel late this afternoon. He was 48 years old.

CHARLES V. TRUAX.

The representative's death came as a shock to his colleagues. He had been active on the house floor during the day's session and left the capitol for his room about mid-afternoon. An hour later he died, apparently from a heart attack.

A special election this wall to select a successor would be state-wide and might be a test of Ohio's present views of the New Deal. A vacancy exists also in Illinois, where Michael L. Igoe vacated his congressional seat to take the district attorneyship in Chicago.

Representative Truax was born on a farm in Wyandot county, Ohio, and was engaged in farming since 1904, specializing in pure bred hogs. He was at one time editor of the Swine World and served as director of agriculture of the state of Ohio from 1923 to 1929. In 1928 he ran unsuccessfully for the United States senate. He was elected to congress in 1933. He was married and has two children.

Truax's death left the house an even half dozen short of its full membership of 435.

Representative Elect Landis [Rep., Ind.] died before taking his seat. The next was Representative Griffin [Dem., N. TRUCE EFFECTED IN BOUNDARY LINE WAR OVER HEFER

War that has raged across the Chicago-Lyons boundary line over the meanderings of a brown eyed hefer was brought to a truce by Municipal Judge Edward Casey yesterday.

The hefer, a prize animal, is owned by Frank Ardel, 65 years old, who has a farm at 66th street and Harlem avenue in Lyons. Just across the line in Chicago lies the adjoining farm of Joseph Szafarsky, 31 years old, of 7145 West 64th place.

On July 20 the Ardel hefer trespassed on the Szafarsky farm and was hied onto the right of way of the nearby Santa Fé railroad. There ensued a battle wherein Ardel allegedly tossed a brick from Lyons into Chicago, striking Mrs. Szafarsky. Then Ardel is alleged to have invaded Chicago, struck Mrs. Szafarsky, and fled back to Lyons. Ardel was arrested by a Chicago police squad on a disorderly conduct charge.

After listening in perplexity to conflicting claims of jurisdiction, Judge Casey settled the matter by placing both the Lyons Ardel and the Chicago Mrs. Szafarsky under peace bonds of $1,000 each.

SERGT. M'DONALD KILLS SELF; ILL HEALTH BLAMED

Sergt. Frank E. McDonald, 50 years old, 4306 Madison street, who was assigned to the stolen automobile detail of the police department, shot and killed himself with his service revolver in his home yesterday. His widow, Mamie, and daughter Dorothy said he had been despondent over ill health.

A policeman since 1912, Sergt. McDonald had been given nine awards for meritorious service and 15 times had been creditably mentioned for excellent police work. He had been a sergeant since 1927.

With Sergt. William Cox, Sergt. McDonald won national recognition among policemen by perfecting the acid method of restoring obliterated serial numbers of guns and automobiles. The two were widely feared among car thieves because of their persistence in breaking up theft rings.

Good Morning.

Hot? Fidgety? Don't know what to do with yourselves? Let mamma tell you:

Traipse over to the Chicago and see "Broadway Gondolier." Just for fun. Because that's all it is. Combination of cuckoo plot, pretty music, and gayly burlesqued acting by an able cast.

The story transports you from the hectic activities of a New York broadcasting station to the moonlit canals of Venice—and back again to Little Ol' New York. . . .

The hero is a taxi cab driver who can sing. The heroine, the blonde secretary of the manager of the station. The "comic" is the sentimental widow of a cheese manufacturer, who craves a romantic voice for her Odorless Cheese program, and the "villain" if you can rightly call him such, and I think not, is a continuity writer who is that way about the secretary.

How the taxi piloter gets to Venice and becomes a gondolier; how he returns to the Great White Way and attains the title of "BROADWAY" gondolier I shall let the picture show you.

The piece moves with gayety and speed. Dick Powell—he's just too, TOO, for part of the time, girls, in earrings and a sweet wee mustachie! —plays his rôle with pep and humor, singing pleasingly when the script says—sing! Joan Blondell, grown matronly and speaking her lines as if Mae West herself had coached her, is enlivening as the heroine. Louise Fazenda gives a Mack Sennett interpretation of the widow and other players fall neatly into the kidding spirit of the thing.

Ted Fio Rito and his band are here and there with delectable bits of tune and comedy. Handsome, likable, facile fellow, Ted—and his players sure can play. His tap drummer looks and acts not unlike one of our local photographers.

The only folks who take themselves at all seriously are William Gargan as the spurned continuity writer and Adolphe Menjou as a has-been opera singer who has nurtured the voice of Taxicab Dick. . . . Menjou is certainly proving these days that he can do anything artistically.

Nutty—but nice!

I believe that sums up "Broadway Gondolier" correctly.

See you tomorrow.

Cartoonist Arno Weds Miss Lansing at Home Ceremony

Salisbury, Conn., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Peter Arno, the cartoonist, and Mary Livingston Lansing, daughter of Col. Cleveland Coxe Lansing of Salisbury, and Mrs. Lansing, were married late today at the Lansing home. The Rev. E. O. Pearman of the Salisbury Congregational church performed the simple ceremony.

New York, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Peter Arno, the cartoonist, who married Mary Livingston Lansing at Salisbury, Conn., today, is really named Curtis A. Peters Jr. He was divorced from Lois Long in Reno in 1931. It also was in Reno that Arno engaged in his famous "gun-play" episode with Cornelius Vanderbilt. Arno also was quoted as saying Vanderbilt heaved a bootjack at him as he was boarding a train to leave town.

In November, 1933, Arno broke into the headlines again after an altercation with Drexel Biddle Steele in a Hollywood night club.

Front Views and Profiles

LAUENSTEIN, Bavaria.—A thousand year old castle, with a knight's hall, a moat [filled in now], towers, dungeon-keep and a ghost, albeit a ghost that in the past years is said to have appeared only before the death of a Hohenzollern. That paying guests are accepted in the castle makes it only one more development in its varied and dramatic history. This history we learned only this morning, after a night's sleep in a great baronial chamber, with casement windows overlooking a magnificent panorama of wooded mountain tops. We hung our clothes in a wardrobe twice as tall as ourselves, examined the portraits that hung on the walls, leaned out of the window to see the moon shining on the dark silhouettes of mountain tops, half hidden by the clouds; tried to read the German inscription on the head of the great carved bed, and finally retired, to sleep soundly with no visitation by the "white lady" of the castle.

* *

WE had arrived at Castle Lauenstein—or Burg Lauenstein, as it is properly called—after dark, due to having lingered at a brewery restaurant at Falkenstein—in a tiny valley at the foot of three mountains—over our wienerschnitzel and beer. Before we had arrived at Falkenstein we had had a glimpse of the castle crowning a mountain peak, and after finishing dinner we started the ascent. A gate was opened for us, when we reached the burg grounds we drove into the courtyard, and two young women hurried out to carry in the luggage. A third young woman showed us to our chamber, leading the way up a circular stone stairway and across a great, dimly lighted square hall.

BUILT in the 10th century, destroyed in the 13th, and rebuilt in the 14th and 16th centuries, Burg Lauenstein was once the seat of the counts of Orlamunde, and later of the Thüna line. The castle was abandoned for debts in the 19th century. The working folk of the town moved in during the time it stood abandoned. The knights' hall was used as a stable; the frescoed walls and beamed ceiling in another hall had been whitewashed, for greater warmth; in one of the great chambers the townsfolk worked at the making of school slates, from the slate quarries of the neighborhood. The stones of the watch tower were carried away to build homes down in the town. Then it was that Dr. Ehrhart Messmer, who had been looking for a country place, saw a painting an artist friend had made of the castle, fell in love with it, and eventually purchased it.

* *

DR. MESSMER put such sums into its restoration that now taking in paying guests is an economic necessity. From all parts of Germany he has brought carved Gothic galleries, ancient doors, chests, woodwork and stained glass for his castle. He has collected furnishings baronial and rococo and Beidermeier. He has had tiles made, copied from tiles found in the cellars, with which to build the German stoves that heat his castle in the winter. He has had artists do murals recounting the history of the burg. Even the "white lady"—who last appeared to a Prince Luis Ferdinand of the Hohenzollerns on the eve of the battle of Jena, when he was fighting with the Prussians against Napoleon—he has commemorated in stained glass. His castle has become a kind of a museum—a history of German culture—albeit it is a comfortable and charming place in which to live.

$5,000 Range Is Ready for White House

Huge Electrical Stove Built in Chicago Factory.

It won't be long now until President and Mrs. Roosevelt have a new $5,000 cookstove in the White House kitchen.

Already it's built, a shining stainless steel and chrome plate electric unit about the length of an ordinary railroad box car, with ranges, ovens, frying kettle, griddle and stock kettle. Yesterday this huge new mechanism was inspected at the plant of the Edison General Electric Appliance company, 1962 South 52d avenue, where final touches are being put on its splendors.

The unofficial inspectors who looked upon it were agreed that possession of such a treasure was worth the inconvenience the White House occupants have been undergoing while their kitchen is being remodeled [dispatches recently stated that the President one morning got a pickup breakfast hastily cooked on a little electric plate].

General statistics indicate that if the White House were called on to feed all of congress, and congress had just an average appetite, the job could be done. For instance, there are two large ovens, in each of which 125 pounds of meat could be roasted.

The soup might be a little short, as the kettle holds only 20 gallons. However, it is a very fine kettle with a faucet to draw off the sturdy consommé or—if Huey Long should be a guest—the equally sturdy pot likker. Even the deep fry pan has a faucet. There are two large broilers.

Naturally, the whole range won't have to be put in commission if the occupants of the White House are dining or lunching with only a few guests. There is a small range separate from the larger unit.

All the heating is done by electricity and the cooks while at work will be treated with cool air—the kitchen will have a refrigerating and air conditioning unit. The range is insulated throughout and the temperature control is automatic.

George A. Hughes, president of the appliance company, and his sales manager, Pierre L. Miles, made the inspection. Mr. Hughes recalled that he manufactured the first practical electric range 25 years ago and marketed it with a capital of $250.

"I don't see now how I had the audacity to sell that range," he said. "But it worked and if we hadn't started then we might not have had this fine development in kitchen equipment today."

Unhappiness May Affect Child's Sleep

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Yesterday we discussed night fears—which, by the way, really is a misnomer. What we should have called them, to be entirely exact, is fears that come to the surface at night. Today's article on night restlessness will be the final article in this series on sleep.

One authority who has made a special study of this subject says that talking and walking during sleep is due to the vividness of a dream which is being relived from some actual experience. Sleep walking, he continues, is often due to the intensity of the dream which is associated with deep grief or fear. We do know definitly one thing, and that is that the dreams that children have are often their desires fulfilled.

But the most usual forms of restlessness have milder origins. Children will toss and turn, grind their teeth, suck the lips, and so forth, and do many things which suggest some mental or physical difficulty. This we know lessens the good that the sleep should be doing them.

Suppose we list some of those causes whose correction is self-evident. Among both the physical and physiological ones are:

Indigestion.
Adenoids, and so forth.
Constipation.
Mild infections.
Too many bed covers.
Too heavy bed covers.
Uncomfortable bed.
Insufficient ventilation.
Too great fatigue to sleep well.
Insufficient exercise and fresh air.
Too much excitement or other stimulation.

There are also possible psychological causes. For instance, a child may seem perfectly happy and adjusted and the only clue to any other condition may show itself in the form of troubled sleep. This may indicate some deep seated unhappiness or other emotion, for some children have in their waking hours great emotional control or repression, and only during sleep will these feelings make themselves manifest by restlessness.

Keep in mind that fatigue and nervousness due to lack of sleep may account for behavior difficulties. A child may develop many traits that seem to be defects in character—such as irritability, selfishness, "laziness," emotional lack of poise, discontent—when the real trouble may be nothing more than weariness due to inadequate sleep.

So if your child is restless, try to find out the cause and correct it, so that he may get all the good possible out of his long night's sleep.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

A nail tint that lends itself beautifully to the sun tanned hand is an enamel in a tile red shade. When the hands are attractive and the nails well formed this interesting shade is most effective.

It does seem as though the lady of fashion would rather be sun tanned than President. Everywhere we jaunted recently, in California, in Havana, and in New York, we noticed, when we trained our spectacles on smart women, that the majority of them prefer the dark to the Dresden complexion. And we must admit with the tinge of envy no freckler could repress that it's plenty effective when the woman is the right type and has the right flair for dress.

It's for those of you who've courted the bronze coat that we'd like to talk about nail polishes. It's no secret to you that we personally can live without lurid polish—but we must confess that the vivid enamel can often dramatize a darkish, beautifully formed hand. It's a crime to use it when the nails are scrubby looking; it calls attention to them and reveals all their sins.

If we could ever be said to fall heavily for a flaming shade it would be one we saw recently, worn by one of the smartest, most sun tanned women in New York. Her hands are supple and strong, with beautiful, well tended nails. She wears white mostly, which sets off her tan in the most dramatic fashion. With her white frocks she wears a nail enamel in a tile red shade that gets completely away from the gory tinges, but doesn't verge on the bilious orange. We suggest that sun tanned brunettes with good hands and naturally well formed nails take a look at it. It's an interesting color for those who can wear it.

Neglected nails can't carry off vivid polishes. If you're going in for flaming finger tips we beseech you to devote more time than ever to keeping them exquisitely groomed. If you've been having cuticle difficulty try the cuticle softener of the same house that makes the tile red polish. The most stubborn cuticle rim is whipped into pliability by fairly faithful treatment with it. ELEANOR NANGLE.

A Rainy Day Is Opportunity to Dress Up

BY RHEA SEEGER.

There was a time when rainy weather kept fastidious souls securely house bound. Anything was better than going out in the rain appareled like a caricature of either Mr. or Mrs. Gloom. Raincoats and other impedimenta to keep you dry were just about the most dismal clothes one reluctantly bought and protestingly wore.

Now it's vastly different. The most diverting schemes are used to keep you as well as your money in circulation on wet shopping days. For instance, the new rubbers, mere shells of rubber that cover the soles and tips of your best shoes or slippers. And you can buy colored rubbers to accent or contrast your costumes. There are some blue affairs that will make you cheer. They can be tucked away into the smallest rubber envelope carrying case you ever saw. Also some brown, some brown and beige, all white, black and white are ready for service in the compact carrying case.

They're still doing grand things with really decorative raincoats . . . look for the dotted numbers, brown, navy, and Dubonnet red spattered with small white dots. These come in two styles, a long shoulder fitting cape and a snappy looking cape coat patterned after the famous cape greatcoat of Mr. Sherlock Holmes.

Or you may like the dressmaker type coat of rubberized crêpe in stunning white with navy blue dots. With this wide sleeved, belted, dotted coat you can use the bright blue matching rubbers or the blue and white rubbers or the all white.

The very thin and transparent colored slickers that match the oiled silk umbrellas that were so popular last spring are still going fast. Grand colors—amber, jade green, sapphire blue, navy, and scarlet. These two come packed in a small envelope case of the same colored waterproof, thin oiled silk stuff. You've no excuse to linger inside the next rainy day; with such eye filling waterproofs it's lots more fun to stay outside.

Drama Project Flops; Actors Pass the Hat

Festival Players Ask Rail Fare at Free Show.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The North Shore Drama Festival, which has been in progress since June 24 in the Central school playhouse of Glencoe, came to a premature end yesterday because of financial troubles, chiefly due to lack of attendance.

But the cast of "Noah," with Burgess Meredith as star, gave a performance last night under its own auspices without charging an admission fee. This free-will offering of drama brought out the largest audience of the festival season—about 300 people.

Between acts Tom Powers, who was to have been the guest star of the fourth production on the program—"Prospect Avenue," by Ashton Stevens, Chicago dramatic critic—explained the collapse of the venture to the company's guests, and asked for contributions to a fund for the payment of salaries in arrears. He also pointed out to the North Shore drama lovers that some money was needed to complete the fund which the Actors' Equity association requires for transportation of the members of closed companies back to New York.

This appeal, gracefully made, resulted in donations which amounted to $146.58.

Another free performance of "Noah" will be given tonight under similar conditions. In addition to the money-raising aspect of this unusual procedure, it offers to the 1,600 subscribers to the Festival, who had paid $5.50 in advance for four plays and seen only three, an opportunity to see "Noah" again—although they may have wanted "Prospect Avenue"—and thus call things square.

The idea of the free performances was the players' own. Ben Guy Phillips, director of the Festival, gave them permission to use the playhouse under his lease. The stage hands and front-of-the-house staf contributed their services.

In his speech to the audience Tom Powers compared himself to a clergyman asking his congregation not to be shy of the contribution plate. Small boxes were passed by the ushers—North Shore girls of the debutante age—and the playgoers opened their pocketbooks blithely. The gleanings included one $10 bill; several $5 bills; an endorsed money order for $3.30, and a pile of $1 bills, with incidental "chicken-feed."

This incident involves the nine players of "Noah" and the six members of the cast for "Prospect Avenue," who began rehersals last Monday. All except Katherine Krug [Mrs. Ashton Stevens], who is a Chicagoan, will return to New York after tonight's performance. Tom Powers will probably appear in "Prospect Avenue" on Broadway in the fall.

Ben Guy Phillips, when interviewed last night, said:

"I tried my best, but apparently it wasn't good enough to stimulate the playgoing spirit in Chicago, which seems to be utterly indifferent to the legitimate drama. I am very sorry not to be able to complete my obligations to my subscribers. Outside of them the intake did not amount to more than $50 a night."

Nancy and Dick Heritage have been married for two years and are still greatly in love. Though Nancy is hated by Edith Heritage, her mother-in-law, and she has come to live with them in their little house in Primrose Dene, near London. There is a gap of four years in Nancy's life which she had not satisfactorily accounted for. Nancy is informed by Mr. Sam Digger, attorney, that she has been bequeathed £5,000 by Miss Agnes Satchell, late governor of a girls' reformatory, where Nancy had been committed for four years. Nancy had been employed by a Mrs. Lane and was accused of theft. Sylvia, Mrs. Lane's daughter, was the real culprit. Sylvia threatened to kill herself if Nancy exposed her. Nancy foolishly took the blame, though she possessed a signed confession from Sylvia. Miss Satchell believed in Nancy's innocence. That evening an account is given in the newspaper of the assassination in China of Nancy's sole remaining relative, her aunt, and her aunt's family. Next morning Nancy, who hadn't informed her husband of an expected heir, is unable to get out of bed. Dick and his mother are displeased when they learn the cause. Edith Heritage invites a friend, Mrs. Lane, and her daughter, Sylvia, for tea. Nancy pleads a dentist's appointment. Before leaving she hides a photograph of herself, which her mother-in-law finds and puts back in its place. The Lanes arrive just as Dick comes home. They are startled when they see Nancy's photograph, but Sylvia, who is interested in Dick, explains that Nancy had lived with them, and they'd had a misunderstanding, but bygones were bygones. Nancy, who had gone to the dentist's, and also deposited her check, returns home after the Lanes had left and sees the photograph.

INSTALMENT XII.

OPEN HOSTILITY.

As Nancy crept up to her own room she felt like a thief.

In the ordinary way she would have rushed out to the garden to say hello to Dick; and certainly she ought to have tapped on her mother-in-law's door and inquired if the tea party had gone off nicely.

But Nancy could do neither. Fear was back in her again. She had been a fool to hide her photograph like that. If only she had thought to break the glass. That would have given her an excuse to take it away. But it was far too late for second thoughts now.

Hark! A door slammed and Dick was racing up the stairs calling her.

Nancy turned to her dressing glass and began to take off her hat. She was so nervous about the affair of the photograph that she quite forgot Dick and she had parted in a rather queer fashion that morning.

In the mirror she saw him pause on the threshold. He looked alert, excited, and vitally happy. Just a mere glance told her that.

"Nance, you aren't cross with me still, are you?"

"Cross?" She stared at him in bewilderment.

Dick went over to her and took her in his arms.

"Because I said I was sorry, didn't I? I've been worrying about it all day."

"O, yes!" Nancy laughed hysterically. "No, I'm not cross about anything. Only a little tired. Did you see those people—your mother's friends?"

"You are interfering. My life before I met Dick concerns only myself."

Dick tilted her chin and tried to make her look him in the eyes.

"Yes, you little fraud. Why didn't you want us to know they were your friends, too? That's right! I should think you would blush! Mother says she doesn't believe you had an appointment with the dentist at all. Why make such a mystery, Nance?"

Nancy moved away from him. There was defiance in every curve of her slender young body and she was breathing rather hard.

"I have been to the dentist's. Would you like me to show you?"

"Don't be silly. Why didn't you want to meet the Lanes?"

"Because I—because I don't like them," Nancy replied.

"They were dashed nice about you, darling, although I gathered there had been some sort of a row before you left."

"Why, when you were living with them," Dick said, a little pettishly.

"Did they . . . tell you I once lived with them?"

The words came with an effort. Yet so obviously nothing had happened; that is to say, Dick wouldn't be speaking like this if the Lanes had said anything about the reformatory or the disgrace she had suffered.

"Of course they told us you lived with them. Mother showed them that jolly bridal gown photograph——"

"O, your mother showed it to them!"

"Nance, you keep making the most idiotic remarks! The girl—Sylvia—told me you had been a sort of governess-companion to her, and you should have heard her rave about you. I wonder your ears didn't burn. She said there had been some misunderstanding and that was why you left them, but whatever it is, she's forgotten it. I suppose it was after that you went to that Miss Satchell."

"Yes—" she said faintly, "—it was after I left the Lanes, I went to Miss Satchell."

So Sylvia, the sniveller, for once had been decent. It was about the least she could do, but Nancy would scarcely have expected such chivalry of her. Or, indeed, of her mother, who could have no secret reason for being kind.

Yet, of course, they would have found it a little awkward to tell such a tale about a woman in her own house and to her own husband. There might be other times and other opportunities, however.

"I don't like Sylvia Lane," Nancy said unwisely.

Dick raised his eyebrows.

"She's a jolly little girl," he countered. "Smart as paint and all there with those eyes of hers. Did you ever notice her eyes, Nance?"

"They're hypnotic," Nancy said. "Sylvia Lane's eyes can make people do things they're sorry for afterwards."

"O ho! I believe you're jealous, darling!"

"I never thought of such a thing. Why should I . . . be jealous?"

"Don't ask me. It was the way you spoke."

Dick strode around the room whistling, his hands in his pockets, while Nancy, relapsing into silence, began to change her dress.

Jealous? Why had Dick made such a suggestion. Of course he did not know that she was frightened half out of her wits.

Jealous of a little sallow faced crybaby, like Sylvia Lane? Jealous of a cowardly sneak thief? But of course Dick didn't know anything about that, either. Sylvia was posing as being magnanimous; there had been a misunderstanding . . . ye gods! And for that misunderstanding Nancy Akers had spent four years in a reformatory.

Since Dick hadn't said anything about the photograph having been hidden, there remained but one person in the house who could have discovered it, and that was his mother.

Nancy still had Edith to reckon with in this affair of Sylvia and Mrs. Lane. Dick was her lover, her husband, and she hoped her good friend; but his mother could not even be described as a friendly relation.

At dinner Nancy took the initiative. She knew that the subject of the photograph must come up sooner or later.

She tried to ask the question pleasantly, although it was impossible to tone down the edge of her voice.

"Mother, was it you who put that photograph of me back on Dick's desk?"

Dick, poor lamb, hadn't known that Nancy's likeness had ever been removed from his desk, and his face registered surprise.

"Why yes, I did, Nancy. I thought Minnie must have moved it when she was dusting and forgot to put it back."

Nancy shrugged her shoulders. "Odd that you should have found it. I hid it because I didn't want you to show it to the Lanes."

"Then I was right," said Edith. "You went out because you didn't want to meet the Lanes. Strange—very strange, indeed."

"O, I say, mother!" protested Dick.

He did not know if he would be called upon to choose sides should a quarrel arise, but he hoped a little mediation might avert such a calamity.

"Why doesn't Nancy explain what this trouble was between her and the Lanes?" demanded Edith. "When it comes to that, why didn't they say? Didn't you notice how they looked at each other and talked over our heads? It seems to me, for her own sake, Nancy ought to tell us. Far be it from me to interfere between husband and wife——"

Nancy got up, her breast heaving.

"You are interfering," she said. "Ever since we were married you have tried to separate us. Dick used to show me your letters, although I didn't want to read them. There was always something bitter in them about me—wrapped up in sugar. And now you have more or less come out into the open about it. My life before I met Dick concerns myself and nobody else. . . ."

"Look here, Nance, that's about enough," exclaimed Dick.

Edith Heritage got up and hurried from the room. Her head was bowed and she held her handkerchief pressed to her lips.

"You have fine ideas of hospitality," Dick said to his wife.

Upstairs they heard Mrs. Heritage dragging her trunk in from the landing.

Blackheads Are Twin Ailment of Coarse Pore

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Yesterday, we spoke of coarse pores, the bane of many an otherwise charming person. There's more to say on the subject. We already have pointed out that while the coarse texture of skin may be inherited, still many cases of coarsened skin are due to lack of healthy body and skin tone.

If the pores are coarse, and you can recall a time when your skin was finely grained, you can know that you've been at fault somewhere and that you can remedy the condition. The coarse pore in itself is no beautifying agent and, when you add to it its usual blackhead or whitened development, you have a real case to handle. These two are of the same basic relationship, each a clogged duct which enlarges pores.

The coarse skin needs tonic treatment to shrink the extended pores. To reduce the pores, first the matter which clogs them must be freed. Active circulation naturally will automatically force some of this matter out of the pores, but it may entail a specialized blackhead treatment way of expelling them, with a comedone remover, or your finger tips wrapped in a clean bit of linen.

Anyway, don't think the coarse pores can be refined until this foreign matter is expelled. Personally, I believe in the good old complexion brush, and a bit of a stiff one, too, to scrub and scour this foreign matter out of the pores. First, it's well to soften the skin and the pore content with a lubricating oil or your cleansing cream. Then go after the skin with your good scrubbing brush. That cleaning must go pore deep or there's nothing gained.

After a rinse or two in clear warm water, plunge the face in cold and colder water to take the sluggishness out of the skin. Wipe and pat the skin afterward with a tightener, or astringent, but don't be afraid to give the skin a real cold water punishment. Try it anyway. It won't do harm and you'll see, in a short time, that it has a grand tonic effect on the heretofore sluggish skin.

And, when you're at it, believe that internal cleansing will add speed to the faulty pore recovery. Constipated people are notoriously coarsely pored people. One doesn't need to go around suffering that ailment long, what with all the safe and sane measures there are available for its correction. But don't overlook water as an A-1 contribution to internal tidiness and wholesomeness.

Selfish Girl Begrudges Boy Care of Mother

BY DORIS BLAKE.

She's in love with a boy of 19 who is working, but has to give all of his money to his mother, who is a widow. There are five younger brothers and sisters.

"My friend is the oldest of the family," she writes. "Another brother works. Don't you think that his mother could get out and get a job instead of making my friend give in all his money? Don't you think it is mighty selfish of his mother not to want to let her son have a good time while he is young? And don't you think he would be justified in leaving home now and having his money for himself?"

And don't you think, young lady, we add as question No. 4, that you are a pretty selfish young Miss?

Don't you think, if we may add another query, that it's you, not the son of the widow, who is most concerned about having the money for the good time?

And, finally, don't you think it might be a good idea for you to leave the boy alone and stop putting ideas in his head about leaving home? That's exactly what we think.

Why shouldn't that boy step into his Dad's shoes and help with every penny he can right now? You think that's going to hurt that youth? Not a bit of it. It will make a better man of him, as you'll see. How could his widowed mother get out and get a job? There aren't jobs floating around for inexperienced business women, for one thing. Besides, she has more than a full time job caring for that family of hers, seeing they're fed, washed, scrubbed, and clothed on a limited income. If anybody is deserving of a little outing on son's money, it's she, not you, young woman.

Why, for that matter, don't you rustle around and get a job so that you'll have money for entertainment? You're young and could well hop out early in the morning and look for work. You're an incredibly selfish young miss, and our hope is that the boy sees through you before you get in any of your dirty work on him. However, we don't think there's much danger, since the boy seems to be made of the right stuff anyway.

Nobody asked for this recipe. We might try to palm it off as an answer to a request, but we'd prefer to let it stand on its own merits. [We know that if you ever got wind of it, in this season of frozen delights, that you would be wanting it. Isn't that justification enough?]

Frozen Peanut Butter Salad

3 ounces cream cheese
⅓ cup chopped green pepper
3 tablespoons chopped pimento
½ cup peanut butter
½ cup diced celery
Few grains salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup cream

Soften the cheese, break smoothly with a fork, and blend with the other ingredients, including the stiffly whipped cream. Freeze in the trays of an automatic refrigerator or in a 1:3 salt ice mixture, and serve as a salad on crisp salad greens.

Because it's peach and pear season again, Mrs. T. C. of Fort Wayne, Ind., wants to know what she can do to prevent those two fruits from turning dark in the canning. The answer probably lies in the length of cooking time or to the degree of heat. These fruits are easily scorched by overcooking—either from too high heat or overprocessing. Another angle might be that of exposing them to the air too long after peeling and before canning.

When a delay is imperative at this stage of the game, the peeled fruit should be covered with water [possibly slightly salted] until it can be put in the jars. A sprinkling of lemon juice helps to prevent discoloration, also. Last of all, it may be that there was a largish air space at the top of her last year's jars. Even though the air doesn't cause spoilage, it may mean that the top layer of fruit will be darkened.

"Is there some simple test to find out if a fruit juice has enough pectin to make good jelly?" inquires Mrs. L. M. of Dundee. The alcohol test for pectin is one that can be employed in any kitchen—and the results either are or they aren't! You need from three to five tablespoons of alcohol [preferably denatured], a small dish, and that's all. Then pour a tablespoon of the fruit juice into the alcohol.

Sometimes equal amounts of fruit juice and alcohol are used, but the smaller amount of juice is said to give the better test. Then, after a few minutes of gently sliding the container from side to side, the pectin should appear as a solid mass. If the pectin is in a flaky sort of formation it means that the juice needs further boiling down to reduce the amount of water and so concentrate the pectin.

Remember, however, that the test is purely one of the eye and not the taste, so don't attempt to taste anything so vicious as denatured alcohol!

Sally to Announce Party Winners in Tribune Tomorrow

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

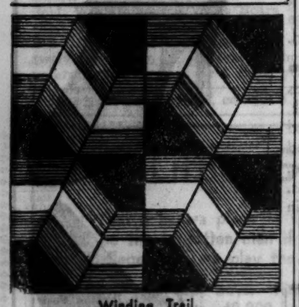
Don't forget to watch for my column in tomorrow's TRIBUNE, boys and girls!

It will have lots of good news for every one. First you'll find the names and addresses of 50 boys and 50 girls who are to be my guests next Thursday. We're all going to the Jack and Jill theater, you remember, to see "Water Babies."

For those who wrote in but didn't win invitations there'll be the news of our next party—which is, by the way, a perfectly swell one.

So, don't forget to look for the good news in the Sunday TRIBUNE.

Fabric Selection Is Important in Distinctive Quilt



Winding Trail.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Material has a great deal to do with the effectiveness of this good looking pieced pattern. Two solid colors and one striped print create endless intricate trails. "Winding Trail" may be used in an all-over pieced quilt, or alternated with plain blocks. The design originally was used as an all-over pieced pattern which created an illusion of millions of trails meeting, crossing, and recrossing. It is a handsome quilt for a man's room.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

CHILD'S DRESS.

Children's dresses are adorable today and here is one of the prettiest. Note the French bodice with the little vest effect. There are box plaits in the skirt that afford plenty of leg freedom and are easily pressed, and there are tiny puffed sleeves, cut in one with the shoulders. Sturdy and sheer materials both are suitable—piqué, poplin, linen, and gingham, besides dotted swiss, dimity, etc.

The pattern, No. 2870, comes in sizes 2, 4, and 6 years. Size 4 requires 1⅞ yards of 39 inch material, with 2 yards of binding.

The bidding:

NORTH	EAST	SOUTH	WEST
1 N. T.	Pass	2 Di.	Pass
3 N. T.	Pass	4 N.T.	Pass
6 N. T.	Pass	Pass	Pass

Against such bidding, East should wrap himself in silence, and play a waiting game. In other words, his best opening lead is a diamond. It can plainly be seen that a spade opening will make seven laydown for the declarer. And inasmuch as this hand was played at duplicate, the extra trick will make many an extra match point for the declarer.

Seven can still be squeezed out, however, literally as well as figuratively. Let us assume that East does open a diamond. The declarer wins and is not even assured of six in his own mind. Should he try for the heart break or should he attempt to guess the location of the king of spades? There are so many chances for a squeeze, even if the hearts don't break, that North plays the ace, king, and queen of hearts. The outstanding six hearts float down like so many lovely pearls and the fourth heart is set up. North cashes it. East discarding a spade, and West a club. Now North begins to turn his thoughts toward seven.

He plays the ace of clubs and then attacks the diamonds. Just before the last diamond is played, this is the situation:

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

A Farm Wife Hates Her Role in Blake Novel

'Seedtime and Harvest' Is Close to Soil.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

"Seedtime and Harvest," by Eleanor Blake. [Putnam's.] Published Thursday.

"Time's Door," by Esther Meynell. [Macmillan.] Published Tuesday.

"My Own, My Native Land," by Thyra Samter Winslow. [Doubleday-Doran.] Published Friday.

"So Wise So Young," by Agnes Burke Hale. [Minton-Balch.] Published last Saturday.

ELEANOR BLAKE, a former newspaper woman and a Chicagoan, has written a novel of a Michigan farm and one woman's life on it in "Seedtime and Harvest," which appeared Thursday. It is a story of the soil, a little like "As the Earth Turns," but lacking its happy undercurrents and contentment. The prose is extremely simple and lucid, almost biblical in tone and tempo, reminding one of "The Good Earth."

The narrative is concerned with Else, a descendant of Norwegian pioneers who settled and farmed in northern Michigan. A moment of passion changes the course of her life and ties her to the soil. She is forced to marry her father's hired helper just as she had hoped to escape her daily drudgery and go to California to join her sister.

Most of the book shows her in rebellion against her fate; against her unimaginative, stolid husband, who expects her to want nothing better than she has always had; against the coming of her children, one after the other, each binding her chains tighter; against life itself.

Her resentment gradually changes toward the end of the tale as she realizes her rebellious little daughter is a good deal like herself and that for her the door of life stands open.

The author fills the pages with all the details of farm life and of a woman's part in it until your back aches with the endless drudgery and routine. There is very little lift of the spirit or vision beyond the daily chores in the entire story. It is not a particularly pleasant book, but it is an interesting one. And it has notable descriptive passages that are excellently done. Miss Blake is the daughter of Eleanor Atkinson, who wrote "Greyfriar's Bobby."

Noted Musicians in "Time's Door."

In "Time's Door," by Esther Meynell, the years are turned back and intimate glimpses of the lives of the famous Paganini and Johann Sebastian Bach are given. The appealing little boy who grows up in its chapters is a musician of great talent. His ancestor, an Italian, journeyed all the way to Leipzig to study under Bach, and the bundle of his letters describing his life in the family of the cantor and his lessons inspires young Giovanni with a love for the master composer that never leaves him.

Although Giovanni lives a century after Bach, time's door opens for him and he is enabled to look back and be a silent witness to events that actually had transpired before he was born. This method of showing the strong psychic influence of the past on the present is the same employed in the play and the movie "Berkeley Square," and here, as in that fragile, lovely story, a member of this generation falls in love with a girl of another, long forgotten day. Giovanni finds himself in love with Catharina, Bach's daughter.

"Time's Door" is a quiet, sweet story. It will be of interest to all music lovers and especially to those who revere the memory of Johann Sebastian Bach.

Faithful Pictures of American Scene.

Thyra Samter Winslow is as faithful a depicter of the American scene in prose as Grant Wood is with paints and canvas. Without any attempt at flattery, in homely, everyday language that is pruned and clipped to eliminate any excess verbiage, she sets forth her characters: the Emersons, "the best people in town"; Mabel Finney, who found herself swamped by family duties and so gave up her writing; Laurine Moreland, who had a mysterious love affair and gave away her pearl ring; Mrs. Zabriski, who invited the firemen to tea; Old Man Winkler, the cobbler, whose strange appearance intrigued, yet scared small children, and ever so many more.

Many of the tales are mere fragments. All are intensely human. Of the collection of forty only thirteen have previously been published.

This Heroine's Mama Is Social Climber.

"So Wise So Young," by Agnes Burke Hale, is a gay, frothy, humorous novel about an American girl whose father made a million in oil. Her mother had ambitions and was a social climber, but Vincent herself was just a nice youngster.

THREE BOOKS BY WOMEN AUTHORS

ESTHER MEYNELL.
[Elliott & Fry Photo.]

THYRA SAMTER WINSLOW.

ELEANOR BLAKE.

Esther Meynell's book, "Time's Door," is a gentle, charming story of Johann Sebastian Bach and a young Italian musician, a descendant of one of his pupils. Thyra Samter Winslow recounts the everyday activities of the small town and its folk in her new collection of short stories, "My Own, My Native Land." A farm wife in northern Michigan is the chief character in a novel by a Chicagoan, Eleanor Blake, called "Seedtime and Harvest," published this week.

Miss Cannan Pens Tale of Secret Service

British Author Sets Story in Himalayas.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—In searching about for new fields in which to place the action of their novels, writers have latterly cast a favorable eye upon districts which in older days would have been frowned upon as too remote. But James Hilton, without going as far as Tibet to explore its mysteries, wrote a fine thriller in "Lost Horizon"; and now Miss Joanna Cannan has followed suit.

Her new book, called "The Hills Sleep On" [Hodder & Stoughton], is one which admirers of William Archer's "The Green Goddess" and of "Lost Horizon" ought not to miss. It is a rapid tale of the secret service, the Himalayas [where there are hidden air bases], and of the doings of those who wander in such districts in search of adventure.

Miss Cannan is such a good writer that she could depend upon her psychology alone to carry a novel; but she has always [rightly, I think] preferred to give her characters a something exciting to do. Murder has engaged her literary attention before now; but she has never been as vigorous, as neat, as effective as she is in "The Hills Sleep On."

For those who prefer the fantastic there is some news from London which goes even beyond W. J. Turner's first novel [its title is "Blow for Balloons": Dent], as to which I recently spoke. This is a translation of Monsieur René Clair's one fantastic novel, "Adams" [Chatto & Windus]. The translation has been made by J. H. P. Marks, who gave us Céline's "Journey to the End of the Night," and is sure to be excellent. But the book itself has a boldness which will offend some as much as it will delight others.

René Clair is one of the greatest moving picture directors outside the United States. His pictures, though never popular, have a brilliance, a wit, and in some instances a beauty, which the movies rarely attain. Therefore, when he writes of a popular cinema idol who so identifies himself with the parts he plays that he loses his own identity, we may know that he is playing with a subject he knows by heart.

His hero, having lost his identity, proceeds to adopt in turn the identities of all his impersonations, with extraordinary results; and when, finally, he plays the part of the Creator of all things the result is chaos. Not a book for everybody, but something highly novel.

Messrs. Dent are publishing in October a book which will stir the millponds. It is nothing less than a new volume, the eleventh, in Miss Dorothy Richardson's apparently endless cycle, "Pilgrimage." It is to be entitled "Clear Horizon."

And in it, the publishers say, Miriam reaches an extraordinary clarification which throws backward over all the other volumes a revealing and intensifying light. Good news for the Richardson fans.

MYSTERY OF THE WEEK

BY MORTIMER QUICK

The tough egg detective school has a promising recruit, Jonathan Latimer, late of Chicago, but now gone east where literati are literati, has followed his first success ["Murder in the Madhouse"] with a sprightly story sadly entitled, "Headed for a Hearse" [Crime club]. It makes lively reading and to add to its local interest it is all about Chicago and what Mr. Latimer chooses to believe are our very best people, who as we all know, love to add spice to life by a little quiet embezzling and wife murder. Between times they belong to clubs, ride to hounds, and are in the brokerage business.

I can place all Mr. Latimer's localities, but so far have been unable to identify his cast. While hoping the author is wrong in his general premises, I am bound to admit this is a cracking good story. It concerns itself with a nice kind of man who awaits execution in the death house for shooting his ex-wife. There are six days to go when he decides to make a fight for it, knowing himself innocent, and young William Crane, who modestly asserts he is a great detective and proves it up to a certain point, is called in.

His methods are oblique but effective and we find ourselves at the end with just the right people under duress. If you read "Murder in the Mad House" you will remember with some pleasure Crane and his sidekick, Doc Williams. They are a funny and sometimes fatuous pair. A number of other odd people brighten the pages of this book. Only, Mr. Latimer, the next time you come to Chicago, please let me show you something of the sweeter and lighter side of life in this amiable metropolis and its satellite, Lake Forest.

Congratulations to Milton Waldeman, who has made a first rate translation from the French of "The Chinese Fish" [Longmans, Green], by Jean Bommart. The story runs a short and rapid course from Paris to the Balkans on the Simplon-Orient express and is in form the diary of a young French newspaper man who, amid perils and bewilderments, falls in love with a charming Bulgarian. The Chinese Fish, so named when he was a schoolmate of the journalist, sees them through and is the clou of the mystery. Mr. Waldeman makes it sound as if it were all written in English, and very good and convincing English at that.

Life Guard at Ocean Beach Writes Story of His Experiences

An unusual field for autobiography—that of an ocean lifeguard—is entered by Frank E. Walton Jr., in "The Sea Is My Workshop" [Dutton]. The author's experiences on the Pacific coast in the capacity of professional rescuer of waterlogged, befuddled, or just plain unskilled swimmers, gives the reader a different impression of these sun blackened heroes of the beach whose chief occupation seems to be to acquire more tan than an ordinary human being ever can and to exhibit it as conspicuously as possible.

Walton proves that the life of a life guard is not all sunburn and sex, as many suppose. To balance the hours on his beach throne basking in the admiration of feminine bathers, he has at times to risk his life in stormy seas to save swimmers who seldom even thank him for his effort.

Authors Plead Peace.

Fifteen of England's best known authors plead with cold, sincere passion for no more war in "Challenge to Death" [Dutton]. The symposium is edited by Storm Jameson, author of "No Time Like the Present," and has an introduction by Vera Brittain, who wrote the flaming "Testament of Youth."

AMATEUR SHOW AND CIRCUS GIVEN TO AID ICE FUND

Two Children's Groups Send Cash Gifts.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Whether living in the depths of the city or out in the green suburbs the children of Chicagoland are benefit-minded this summer. As basis for this statement are the proceeds from a juvenile circus and a juvenile "amateur hour" received yesterday by THE TRIBUNE Free Ice fund.

"Without any help from adults," said a letter from Mrs. Alfred Israel, 1320 Madison Park, "the children of Madison Park gave a benefit for the Ice fund again this year."

The benefit was in the form of an "amateur hour," in which 23 children, ranging in age from 3 to 12 years, took part. Its proceeds were $18.20. "And already," concluded Mrs. Israel, "the children are making plans for a larger show next year."

Circus Given by Others.

Participants were Sally Franklin, Muriel Stark, Lorraine Israel, Elinor Bach, Elinor and Joan Seelig, Marjorie and Myra Schwartz, Marjorie Lippert, Lila Gold, Janet Kosterlitz, Janet Peck, Ethel Schwartz, Joan, Peggy, and Lucille Seidler, Elise Liberman, Elaine Lewin, Elinor and Muriel Schwartzburg, Lois Schaffer, Paula Lenhouff, and Nancy Kahn.

From Wheaton came a money order for $1.15, the total intake of a circus given by a group of Wheaton children. Those taking part were Charles, Martha, and Ruth Brooks, Audrey Nelson, Joan Oliver, and Jeanne and Bobby Behmer.

PLANE LANDED ON ONE WHEEL; NONE INJURED

New York, Aug. 9.—[Special.]—While policemen, firemen, and ambulances waited on the sidelines, fearful of a serious accident, an Eastern Airlines pilot brought his crippled plane bearing six passengers to a safe landing at the Newark airport today. The passengers were unharmed.

Flying a big Condor biplane powered by two motors, Pilot L. W. Willey and his co-pilot, Albert Duke, left Washington at 6:13 a. m. on the last leg of a flight from New Orleans to Newark.

As the plane left the ground at Washington the left wheel folded up properly as part of the retractable landing gear, but the right wheel stuck, throwing the plane out of balance.

As the plane roared over Baltimore, unable to land there although it is a scheduled stop, Co-Pilot Duke climbed on the right wing and tried unsuccessfully to release the jammed wheel while the passengers looked on.

Pilot Willey then notified Newark airline officials of his plight by radio and asked that they get ready for an emergency landing. Eight pieces of fire apparatus, a police emergency squad of eight men, two police radio cars, and two ambulances with doctors and nurses were rushed to the field. The policemen and firemen, equipped with fire extinguishers, stood by, and in a few minutes the crippled Condor arrived.

Pilot Willey started down, gliding into the field at an angle which made the good left wheel strike the ground first. The shock jarred the right wheel into place and the plane leveled off to a smooth landing.

ROOSEVELT SEES NEW BRITISH SHIP AS AID TO PEACE

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Aug. 9.—(AP)—The hope that Great Britain's new liner, Queen Mary, in plying between the United States and England would promote trade and more friendly relations between the two countries was expressed in a letter today from President Roosevelt.

The letter was sent to the Southampton Master Mariners' club, which had sent Mr. Roosevelt a brochure on the launching of the vessel. The letter said:

"May the voyages of this vessel between the ports of Britain and America conduce the promotion of trade relations between the two countries and more cordial friendship between the peoples."

The Queen Mary is now in the hands of finishers and decorators at Clydeside, and is expected to get its trial run next May.

PLAQUE OF FRED MAYTAG.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Louis Terebesy, the artist who executed all the finer stone carvings on the new $500,000 studio building of W-G-N just north of Tribune tower, yesterday completed a plaque of Fred L. Maytag, washing machine manufacturer.

The plaque, which will be cast in metal, is to become part of a tablet that citizens of Newton, Ia., Mr. Maytag's part time home, will place on the bathhouse in Maytag park there. The park was donated last month by the manufacturer.

Mr. Terebesy was commissioned to make the plaque by the Newton Chamber of Commerce. John R. Fugard of the architectural concern of Thielbar & Fugard, which designed the bathhouse and other park buildings, said he selected Mr. Terebesy because of the artistry shown in his stone carvings on the W-G-N building.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

Sunshine or Shade?

Aug. 9, 1935.

THE big umbrella that Charley Sleezer has on his tractor these hot August days has been paying big "dividends." You have only to take a ride under the blazing sun without this equipment item and then go up and down the field on Charley's tractor when he has his spreading "bumbershoot" in position to appreciate the comfort derived from the gay colored sun shield. Charley used his umbrella when he was cultivating corn on hot days, but there seems to be opposition to his putting it on his tractor when it comes time for the second cutting of hay.

I heard Charley and Andy arguing about it the other day. The former remarked that as long as a scorching August sun was on the job, he certainly was going to rig up his umbrella on the tractor for hay cutting. Andy laughingly threatened to get his shotgun and fill the umbrella full of holes if anybody appeared in the hay fields with it, because the old saying is, "You make hay while the sun shines." Therefore, haying time is no time for anybody to be thinking about shade!

"That giddy umbrella of yours is all right when you are cultivating corn," remarked Andy, "but it is contrary to all farm traditions to bring one into a hay field."

And here the argument rests. The boys now are wondering if Charley will ramble over the hay field with his umbrella in spite of traditions to the contrary.

The corn has had so much rain that "luxuriant growth" hardly describes some of it on the Yorkville farm. I saw some the other day that easily must be 9 feet high. There are many patches of 8 foot corn. If there are any chinch bugs still in the cornfield where these giant stalks are standing they must be very much depressed. Last year they had things their own way when they attacked stunted, parched corn plants. But this season the corn has walked away from its insect enemies.

Rains that have been falling nearly every day at the Yorkville farm are fine for the crops and the pastures, but at the same time they are keeping the men from completing their job of putting up hay and threshing oats. The program of work now lined up calls for the men to finish stacking 20 acres of timothy on the north side of the river, then to finish threshing oats, then to start on the second cutting of alfalfa.

The boys were putting in their time cutting weeds when I was on the farm the other day. It was too wet to put up hay or thresh oats.

Herman Hansen, one of the workers on the Yorkville farm, was injured slightly early in the week when he fell from the top of a 12 foot haystack. He was distributing the hay which was being pitched up from the wagon when he fell, landing on the wagon tongue. He was badly shaken and bruised, but probably will be back at work in a couple of days.

A bolt of lightning gave the Louis Thurow family quite a scare the other night during a severe rainstorm. It struck a big maple tree just a few feet from the north side of their house, taking many of the branches from the tree and splitting the trunk.

TROOPS PREPARE FOR WAR GAMES AT CAMP GRANT

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Divisional and regimental commanders at Camp Grant today began the task of mapping out war games in which 7,000 Illinois National Guard troops will be used over a large sector of the southeastern camp area Monday and Tuesday.

The division will be divided into two sections—the red division, or defending army, and the blue division, or attacking army. Both groups will leave camp Monday for an overnight march and will meet on the field of battle the following day.

The reds will "dig in" at the southern extremity of the camp, with the area around New Milford, Ill., on their left flank. The blues will move to the attack.

Infantry, cavalry, and tanks will be used in the maneuvers. Imaginary artillery barrages will be laid down "on paper" and planes will circle above the areas that are presumedly being shelled.

The blues will include the 132d, 131st and 8th regiments, the 33d division tank company, and the 106th cavalry. The reds will have a smaller "army," made up of the 129th and 130th infantry and the 108th combat engineers. The 108th medical regiment and 108th observation squadron will serve both armies.

On Thursday Gov. Henry Horner will fly here to inspect the troops. He will be met several miles south of camp and be escorted to the landing field by the 108th observation squadron.

SOME BEER, JAM AND $2,500 RING LEAD TO COURT

New York, Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Leona Lee, a platinum blonde becoming somewhat plump, was arraigned in Yorkville court today on a charge of stealing a $2,500 ring left by a redheaded woman in the apartment of a socially prominent mutual friend, Townsend Pinkney.

Mr. Pinkney was obviously embarrassed when he testified that after Mrs. Josephine Brown visited him Tuesday night he telephoned Miss Lee. She brought "a couple of bottles of beer and some preserves," he said.

Mr. Pinkney's embarrassment was obviously acute when Mrs. Brown referred to him as her fiancé as they left the court after Miss Lee was held in $500 bail for the grand jury.

Mr. Pinkney did not, however, register any objection until after Mrs. Brown had gone.

"Mrs. Brown said she was my fiancée, but I don't say that," he confided. "She's from Chicago."

Mrs. Brown said that she wore the ring while visiting Mr. Pinkney and took it off while she was washing dishes in the kitchenette. She said she put the ring on the refrigerator. She said that Mr. Pinkneys only visitor since she had left had been Miss Lee, who said she was 30, and a short time later got the ring, which she had entrusted to the care of an old friend, Dr. Arthur J. Berger.

VANGUARD OF ALL-AMERICAN SQUAD ARRIVES TODAY

WARBURTON AND NICHELINI HERE WITH HILLIARD

Bears Off Tomorrow for Camp.

Fog Over Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Fred Borries of the navy, who was scheduled to leave last night for Chicago to join the College All-Stars for their game with the Chicago Bears, has been delayed 24 hours. The U. S. S. Arizona, to which Ensign Borries is attached, was unable to get into San Francisco harbor yesterday because of a heavy fog. Inky Wotkyns of Southern California remained here and accompanied Borries to Chicago. They left tonight on the Overland Limited.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Irvine [Cotton] Warburton, Southern California's great quarter back, motored into Chicago last night, paused long enough to telephone THE TRIBUNE for instructions, and continued to Evanston, which will be his home until Aug. 29, when the all-Americans play the Chicago Bears at Soldiers' field. Warburton was accompanied by Al Nichelini, St. Mary's half back, and Mrs. Warburton.

BOHN HILLIARD.

This afternoon Warburton will attend his first major league baseball game when he sees the Cardinals and Cubs play at Wrigley field.

Warburton and Nichelini were not the first arrivals, however. Bohn Hilliard, the sprinting half back from the University of Texas, who scored the winning touchdown against Notre Dame last fall, arrived Thursday night and is "at home" at the Goodrich house, headquarters for the all-Americans. By tomorrow the majority of the squad of forty-four will have checked in ready for Monday's opening practice.

Bill Lee, tackle, and Don Hutson, end, of the University of Alabama eleven, also arrived last night. They motored from Memphis, Tenn., making the trip in eleven hours.

Borries on Way.

George Maddox, Kansas State tackle, will arrive this morning from Rossville, Kas. Others who will report to the Goodrich house, the team headquarters, today are Herman Gundlach, Harvard guard, who is motoring from Houghton, Mich., and the Minnesota contingent of five, several of whom are motoring. These boys are Francis [Pug] Lund, Frank Larson, Bill Bevan, Phil Bengtson, and Stan Kostka.

The majority of the squad is scheduled to arrive tomorrow with the exception of Fred Borries, former Navy half back, whose leave of absence from the U. S. S. Arizona of the Pacific fleet started yesterday. Borries and Inky Wotkyns, Southern California full back, will arrive Monday.

All-American jersies, white sweaters with a six inch American shield, have been ordered for 44 members of the squad. They will be available within a few days. Game uniforms will be ordered Monday when the squad assembles and measurements can be taken.

Notre Dame System.

George Halas, coach of the Chicago Bears, will lead his squad to Delafield, Wis., tomorrow. The Bears will start drills Monday morning. On the list that Halas has compiled are twelve new men in addition to those veterans who have made a three year

Bachman Has Fine Record at 5 Schools

East Lansing, Mich., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Charles Bachman, Michigan State coach, whose success in football is reflected in the fact he ran a close second to Frank Thomas of Alabama in the recent national poll to pick four coaches for the College All-Stars in their game with the Chicago Bears Aug. 29, is a veteran of eighteen years' experience in his field.

Like Thomas and Slip Madigan of St. Mary's, who also was voted a place on the staf along with Dr. C. W. Spears of Wisconsin, Bachman is a Notre Dame man. And, like Thomas and Madigan, Bachman's Notre Dame style of play has made his elevens feared throughout the nation.

Bachman grew up in Chicago and was graduated from Englewood High school. In 1912 he entered Notre Dame, where he put in four years of football, one as a freshman and three on the varsity. He appeared as a guard in 1914 and won All-Western honors as a sophomore. In 1915 he switched to full back, but in his senior year went back to guard and again was All-Western and mentioned on some All-American selections.

Bachman's first coaching job was at DePauw university, where he was an assistant in 1917. He joined the navy in 1918 and was assigned to Great Lakes station, where he was center on the football team which won the championship of the United States. Discharged from the navy, Bachman accepted the position of head coach at Northwestern university, where he was known as the boy coach of the conference during the season of 1919.

The following year he accepted a job as head coach at Kansas State college, Manhattan, Kas. He remained there until 1927. His teams won championships and for four years in succession defeated the University of Kansas, a feat the Aggies had not accomplished in many years.

University of Florida then beckoned and Bachman remained there from 1928 to 1932. His teams won national recognition, and in 1928 Florida was the nation's high scoring college eleven. Florida, for the first time in history, won games from Georgia and Georgia Tech. Carl Brumbaugh, Chicago Bears star, was one of Bachman's leading players at Florida.

When Jimmy Crowley resigned at Michigan State Bachman was employed. Last year his team was high in the national ranking, winning 8 of 9 games against major competition. The 16 to 0 victory over the University of Michigan was State's first triumph against the Wolverines since 1916.

Bachman has written several books on football and has originated and designed many of the prominent features of modern day football wear. He also is on the staf of one of the nation's leading sporting goods manufacturers as a consulting designer.

PROMOTER GOES EAST TO GET BID ON LOUIS BATTLE

Jacobs Back Tuesday for Chicago Figure.

Promoter Mike Jacobs of New York, who aided in the presentation of the Joe Louis-King Levinsky bout at Comiskey park Wednesday night, has placed the question of the site of the proposed Max Baer-Louis bout next month squarely up to the interested parties in New York and Chicago.

Jacobs went to New York yesterday by plane to confer with officials of the Twentieth Century Sporting club relative to their best bid, and will dash right back to Chicago next Tuesday to place that figure beside the one to be offered by the Sporting Club of Illinois, under whose auspices the Louis-Levinsky battle was held.

Chicago Determined to Win.

In the meantime Chicago interests are determined that the Baer-Louis meeting, tentatively scheduled for Sept. 26 or 27, shall be held in the city that gave Louis his start as a Golden Gloves fighter and which was the first to hail him as a future heavyweight champion of the world.

"The club making the best offer will be given the bout," Jacobs said yesterday just before taking off for New York. "Naturally the managers [Ancil Hoffman for Baer and John Roxborough for Louis] will have something to say, but the final decision rests with me."

Both Hoffman and Roxborough have said they preferred Chicago, because of the fans' interest, as evidenced by the 39,755 who turned out to see Louis flatten Levinsky in one round Wednesday, and of the spirit of coöperation shown by the Illinois athletic commission.

Several Chicago millionaires are said to be behind the movement to bring the bout here and, if Jacobs is sincere in declaring that money will turn the trick, local enthusiasts are convinced they will be successful.

What Does This Mean?

Hoffman's declared preference for a Chicago fight was offset to some extent by the fact that he left immediately after expressing it for Newark, N. J., where he will meet Baer and look over a probable training site at Speculator, N. J.

Joe Foley, co-promoter with Jacobs of the Louis-Levinsky fight, said yesterday negotiations already had been opened for the use of Soldiers' field, which, as the site of the Dempsey-Tunney title engagement in 1927 accommodated the largest crowd ever to see a prizefight. Foley indicated that if his negotiations were unsuccessful he would again plan to use Comiskey park, where 70,000 could be seated.

Jacobs, who was agreeably surprised by Chicago's response to the Louis-Levinsky bout, was optimistic when asked as to the probable gate for a meeting between the Detroit sensation and Baer. "A gross gate of $500,000 is a conservative estimate," he said.

Louis, leaving the outside-the-ring details to his manager, is enjoying a brief rest at his mother's home in Detroit, but, as Joe never was interested in attractions of night life, he can be ready for a battle with Baer on short notice.

King Warns Max.

Levinsky, who won the largest purse of his career for less than three minutes of absorbing Louis' punishing jolts, had a word of friendly warning for Baer yesterday. "Tell Max to quit worrying about his hands," he told Hoffman, "and begin toughening up his jaw. Joe can hit much harder than Max and I ought to know."

Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker for Madison Square Garden, the Twentieth Century's chief rival in bidding for important bouts in the east, was the only fight follower who saw Louis crush Levinsky who refused to agree that Joe is the greatest heavyweight to come along in many years. "I don't say he may not be a great fighter," Johnston said upon arriving in New York yesterday, "but he's still got to do more than whip a panic-stricken Primo Carnera and a frightened King Levinsky."

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1935: By The Chicago Tribune.]

CHARLES BACHMAN of Michigan State says Gerald Ford, one of the centers on the College All-Star squad, played a better game for Michigan last fall than Chuck Bernard did in 1933. . . . If he stands up as well against the Bears as Bernard did in the first annual All-Star game, this department will have no complaint. . . . Joe Salatino, Santa Clara quarter back, is under contract to report to his alma mater as assistant coach Aug. 15, but through the courtesy of Clipper Smith, the coast school's head coach, he was granted a leave until Sept. 3 so that he could play in Chicago's big charity game. . . . Miller Munjas, another All-Star quarter back, has been working at the Goodyear plant in Akron. . . . Munjas has been married since his sophomore year at Pittsburgh. . . . Jim Carter, Purdue half back, has refused to consider half a dozen professional offers, electing to become a coach at Lowell, Ind., High school after the All-Stars break training. . . . Chuck Mucha, Washington guard who will help to stop Nagurski's line plunges, was varsity swimming captain and heavyweight wrestling champion for two years. . . .

The favorite recreations of Jack Beynon, Illinois quarter back who will be on the college team Aug. 29, are tennis and golf. . . . University of Pittsburgh fans have nicknamed George Shotwell, All-Star center, Honest Abe, because of his facial resemblance to Lincoln. . . . Tony Blazine, who earned a tackle job on the college squad because of heavy downstate support, is regarded as the best verse writer and dramatic actor at Illinois Wesleyan. . . . Raymond Morse, Oregon end, is a second lieutenant in the infantry reserve and has been called into service at the R. O. T. C. encampment at Vancouver barracks as physical instructor. . . . He comes to Chicago directly from Vancouver with Mrs. Morse, only recently acquired. . . . Chilly Bowen of Illinois says the All-Star game has stimulated early ticket sales at Urbana. . . . Coach Slip Madigan has the deepest dimples on the All-Star squad. . . .

Inky Wotkyns, Southern California full back, who will join the college players at Evanston tomorrow, has been serving as a life guard at Laguna beach. . . . George Halas, coach of the Bears, and Frank Thomas, leader of the All-Stars, will confer Wednesday on the rules that will govern the game. . . . The only one of consequence is the forward pass regulation. . . . The professionals are allowed to throw a pass from anywhere behind the line of scrimmage. . . . College players must be five yards back when they toss one. . . . A band made up of former Southern California students plans to fly from Los Angeles for the game to toot it up for Cotton Warburton every time he makes a gain. . . . This department is indebted to Claude A. Swanson, secretary of the navy, and to Admiral Harris Laning, commander of the battle force, Pacific fleet, for their approval of a leave of absence for Buzz Borries, last year's star half back at the naval academy. . . . Among the hundreds who will turn out especially to see Borries play will be his father, who is coming up from Louisville with a group of friends. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—J. C. Brady of New York purchased a Man o' War filly for $50,000 from Admiral Cary T. Grayson. . . . The Braves pounded Tony Kaufmann and the Cubs for a 5 to 3 victory. . . . HOME RUN NO. 31 BY GREENBERG BEATS SOX, 4-3

Hose Fail to Hit in Pinch; Lyons Is Victim.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 9.—The White Sox, even though their plans were gummed up by Hank Greenberg's No. 31 homer with one man on base, this afternoon made a valiant effort to knit together the shreds of their reputation as 1935's wonder team. But when the battle was over the Tigers had licked the Chicagoans, 4 to 3. Ted Lyons had been charged with his fifth loss of the season and the fading third placers were reflecting on a fadeout string that shows eight lickings in their last nine starts, one tie not included.

School Boy Rowe was the victor for the first time against the Sox this year. He pitched perfect baseball for the first 4 1-3 innings, then the Sox started pecking away, making one run, a tying run in the fifth; another in the seventh, which made the score 4 to 2, the Tigers having made three in their fifth, and one in the eighth.

Sox Battle Away.

Even though Manager James Dykes chose to sniff at the orthodox sacrifice play in the ninth, thereby blowing a tie or better, the fighting, but futile Sox had the trying run on third and another runner on first with one out. The one out was furnished by Dykes on a fly to Fox, which was followed by a single by Jack Hayes. Then Charley Gehringer made a backhand catch of Luke Sefell's liner for the second out and Lyons flied to Goose Goslin to end the game.

The Sox presented a greatly altered lineup, due to an injury to Zeke Bonura, suffered in yesterday's game. The switches did not weaken the Chicago team, however, except that Washington was placed in the cleanup spot, where hitting would have done some good, especially in the eighth when the tying and potential winning runs were on base as Washington supplied the third out.

20,000 Paid Attendance.

The Sox have to play here tomorrow and Sunday, then will escape for a day off in Chicago before starting a battle with the Red Sox for third and fourth places in the American league standings. The Sox now are ten games behind the Tigers and five behind the second place Yanks.

The crowd today included 20,000 paid and 7,000 women guests.

Two sound smacks after two were out in the first inning gave the Tigers the first run of the game. Gehringer doubled to right center, after which Greenberg took two strikes, then two balls as a warmup for a single to center, which scored Gehringer.

After Appling had thrown out Rogell on a fast play to start the Tigers' second inning, Fox walked, reached second on a wild pitch and third while Hayes was tossing out Owen. The inning ended with Rowe's fly to Washington.

The only one of the first nine Chicago batsmen who caused the Tiger defense to show any exertion was Hayes, mak-

Myrtle Wood Choice Today in Crete Stake

BY FRENCH LANE.

[ENTRIES ON PAGE 16.]

The long striding bay filly Myrtle Wood from Kentucky, which a few weeks ago at Arlington Park hung up a world's record for six furlongs, is going to be tested under fire at Lincon Fields this afternoon in the $5,000 added Crete handicap which is at a similar distance.

The 3 year old daughter of Blue Larkspur-Frizeur, owned by Brownell Combs of Lexington, was one of 22 sprinters named for the first stake to be run at Lincoln Fields this year. Her world's record performance at Arlington naturally will make her the favorite to win today's race; still, she will not be any top heavy favorite. The first odds to go out against her were 3 to 1.

Many Fans Like Isaiah.

This may have been due to the No. 20 post position she drew. At any rate Isaiah, owned by J. S. Klein of Chicago, and West Main, which sports the silks of Charley Peck, also of Chicago, mustered almost as many backers as the speedy Kentucky filly did.

At Arlington Park Myrtle Wood ran six furlongs in 1:09 2-5 to shatter a world mark Iron Mask had set at the Juarez track in Mexico many years ago. Horses have run six furlongs even faster than that in England, but they did it over a down hill straightaway course and the marks are not generally recognized as official records.

Every sprinter of note in the west is included on the Crete field. Last night there appeared to be little likelihood of many withdrawals, so Starter Bill Hamilton and his assistants wore worried looks. To get a field of this size away in good order in a six furlong race is no small job on any race track. It isn't likely to be an easy task when the field in the Crete awaits the "word to go." And in a six furlong race the start many times decides the issue.

How About One of These?

Others that are expected to give Myrtle Wood, West Main, and Isaiah a spirited tussle are Ted Clark, Chief Cherokee, Corinto, Red Wagon, Cloud D'Or, Gay Monarch, Slim Rosie, Onrush, and Chance Line, all noted for their ability to run six furlongs just about as fast as horses ever cover the distance. Should muddy going prevail Silent Shot also would move up as a strong contender.

Myrtle Wood proved that she is ready to carry on from where she left off at Arlington Park when she worked six furlongs over an "off" track in 1:14. She has made but two starts this year, winning on both occasions. Should she capture the Crete this afternoon she will take her place among the leading horses of the year.

Expect Crowd of 20,000.

Should she win this sprint in easy fashion there is little doubt but that she will be tested for distance later on in the Lincoln Fields season.

The crowds at Lincoln Fields have increased steadily during the first week of the season, and the track officials look for a gathering of 20,000 this afternoon.

P. DEAN DROPS BRUINS TO THIRD PLACE IN RACE

Medwick Knocks 16th Homer.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Paul Dean, lugubrious brother of the talkative Dizzy, waved his powerful right arm yesterday and shooed the ambitious Cubs back into third place. The younger half of the famous pitching family restricted his foes to six hits, and meanwhile his world champion St. Louis Cardinal mates did enough to Lon Warneke to lift themselves into second place. The score was 3 to 1, leaving the Cubs three games behind the leading Giants and in the third notch of the percentage column by a matter of three points.

PAUL DEAN.

By their actions, whether it was hitting, fielding, or Dean's manipulation of a deadly speed ball, the Cards not only showed why they are champions, but why they still must be regarded as the real threat for the Giants. They hit when it meant something, and they fielded flawlessly, although Dean's work required no heroics. All this was old stuff to the Cubs. It was just more bad treatment from the same source which has caused them to drop 11 out of 15 games to the champions this season. It also meant Dean's 13th victory against 9 defeats, and the 7th in a row for the Cards.

Dean Bears Down.

Dean had only one thing to worry about. That was a run scored against him in the first inning, and that ceased to be a matter of concern in the fourth when the Cards tied the score. Then the young Texan really began to pitch. He was frisked for a hit to start the Cubs' home fourth, this one being the fifth of the Cubs' total. But that fifth hit just about rang down the curtain on the Cub attack. In the remaining five innings everybody in the Cub ensemble walked up to the plate and walked back again until the ninth when Billy Herman scratched a safety through the infield. Dean didn't issue a pass at any stage.

Warneke's first bit of grief in the fourth was made up of two hits and a pass after a double play had pulled him out of a bad spot. The next jolt occurred in the sixth when Ducky Medwick hoisted the ball over the left field barrier, making the score 2 to 1. In the seventh the Cards rose up again, scoring their third run after two were out. Warneke remained for the eighth and then departed to adjust the figures in his personal ledger, which now reads twelve victories and the same number of defeats.

Herman Scores in First.

Herman and Klein took a marked liking to young Paul's fast ball in the first inning and between them caused a run to slip across for a lead that was preserved until the fourth inning. Herman's bit was a single over Durocher after Galan had flied to center. Klein thumped a single into right and Herman sprinted to third. He ran home on O'Dea's long fly to Rothrock. Demaree closed the inning with a grounder to Frisch.

Principally because of a dizzy stop by Jurges behind second on Rothrock's drive in the first inning, the champions had to wait until the second before breaking in with a hit. Then they made two, but it availed them nothing. Medwick led off with a single to right and Warneke personally spoiled this start by fanning Collins and DeLancey. Then Gelbert singled to right, Medwick taking third, but Warneke coaxed Durocher into popping to Jurges.

Cavarretta Gets Double.

The Cubs also caused a little excitement in their half of the second, but it was useless. Cavarretta gave his gang a chance by opening with a two bagger down the right field line. Hack cracked a fierce liner to right and Cavarretta was all set for a sprint to the plate, but had to abandon the idea.

MATHISEN PLAYS MILLER TODAY IN CITY GOLF FINAL

Jankowski and Foley Lose at Jackson Park.

Two young men, both of whom have held the title of city amateur golf champion, will meet today in a 36 hole match over the Jackson park course for the 1935 championishp of Chicago.

They are Harold Mathisen of Big Run, the present holder of the title, and Pete Miller of the home club, who won it in 1931.

Both came through their 36 hole semi-final matches yesterday, Miller rather easily, 11 and 10 over Carl Jankowski of West Gate Valley, and Mathisen not so easily, 2 and 1, over Hank Foley of Glendale, also a former titleholder.

Pete Is on His Game.

Miller's golf was the class of the day. In the morning round he was out in 35, one over par, and 3 up. Coming back he dropped in three birdies and an eagle, but spoiled a nice score by getting into the water twice at the 11th and picking up. As it was, he had 27 for the eight holes played on the back nine, five under par for these holes.

In the afternoon he did not let Jankowski win a hole, not even with a birdie 3 at the third, as Pete promptly ran in his 5 footer for another birdie. He won four holes, ending the match on the 26th green. Pete had 29 putts for the 17 holes he played in the morning to 37 for Carl, and was 7 up at lunch time.

Mathisen Down at Noon.

Mathisen was 1 down at the half way mark, neither shooting extra good golf. Foley had a 73 and Mathisen a 74. Foley took the lead at the first, where Harold used three putts, but the match was squared at the third with Mathisen's birdie. Halving holes from there to the ninth, Foley's tee shot hit a woman in the big gallery and his second rolled behind a tree, laying Hank a dead stymie. This allowed Mathisen to turn 1 up. They halved the first three holes in par and at the short 13th Foley nearly holed out his tee shot, winning with a birdie 2. A birdie 4 at the 500 yard 14th gave Hank his margin of 1 up, the next four being even.

Starting out in the afternoon Foley three putted and lost the first two holes. Then he settled and halved the next seven to allow Mathisen to go past the three quarter mark 1 up.

Harold Retains Lead.

At the tenth Foley lost when he missed his second shot and this lead of two holes was enough for the Big Run chemist, as he halved the remaining seven to win, 2 and 1. Foley had four chances to win from the 11th to the 14th inclusive, but in each instance missed a short putt. The cards of the semi-final matches:

Miller wins, 11 and 10; Mathisen wins, 2 and 1.

In the first flight final Frank Ciccone defeated Lloyd Moore, 2 and 1, and in the first flight consolation final Bob Shiro defeated Tom Stanton, 11 and 9.

A typical Jackson park gallery of 3,000 followed the matches, played in one foursome, but for today's finals, which start at 9 a. m. and 2 p. m., the crowd is expected to be several times larger.

Mrs. Atwood, Miss Miley Reach Final

Cleveland, O., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Miss Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., and Mrs. P. T. Atwood of Chicago will meet tomorrow in the 36 hole final of the women's western golf tournament.

Miss Miley today staged one of the greatest uphill fights this tourney ever has witnessed, being 4 down at the turn, but squaring the match on the 18th hole and then going on to win.

Miss Russell Is Beaten.

Miss Margaret Russell of Detroit was the victim of Miss Miley's finish. The Michigan girl toured the first nine in 39 strokes, one over par, to take her 4 up lead.

Miss Miley was 2 down, with three holes to play. She won the 16th with a par 5, halved the 17th with a par 3, and took the last with a par 5 as her youthful foe three putted from 30 feet. Miss Miley got down in two putts from 40 feet on the last hole, her last being an eight-footer.

The extra hole went to Miss Miley's par 5, Miss Russell again three putting.

Mrs. Atwood Overtakes Rival.

Mrs. Atwood was never ahead in her match until the 14th hole, where she had a par 3. Miss Marion Leachman of Vallejo, Cal., her opponent, squared it on the 15th, and then the Chicago girl took the next two, the last with a birdie deuce, to take the match and go into the finals. Mrs. Atwood is the former June Beebe, rated as one of the best in the middle west.

The cards:

QUALIFYING GOLF OPENS TUESDAY IN THREE CITIES

New York, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Preceding the other twenty-six districts by a week, sectional qualifying trials for the 1935 national amateur golf championship will be played in Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Denver next Tuesday.

These sections were given an earlier date by the U. S. Golf association because Aug. 20, the regular date, conflicts with state tournaments in California and Colorado.

The Denver district, with Verne Stewart of Stanford university among the competitors, drew the largest entry list, twenty-two, for the thirty-six hole medal play round. Among the six players in the San Francisco field is Ernest Pieper Jr., one of the surprises of the 1934 championship, who numbered among his victims Scotty Campbell, twice Canadian champion. Jack Munger of Dallas is entered at Los Angeles.

The qualifying quotas for these sections may not be known until the entrants tee off as entries in the other districts do not close until tomorrow. Places are allotted on the basis of the nation-wide entry and the player strength of individual districts.

New York Tells Miller He Must Meet Arizmendi

Lady Skippers to Match Skill on Lake Today

Wives, mothers, sweethearts, sisters, and daughters will sail the Star class sloops of the Sheridan Shore Yacht club in the annual Lady Skipper's race off Wilmette harbor at 3:15 p. m. today.

Many of the sailorwomen have sailed before, and one or two have skippered, but all of them will more or less take orders from their men who will be in the boats to advise them as the race progresses. Mrs. Robert Kendig, defending champion, reveals that she won the 1934 regatta by doing exactly what her husband told her to do.

Helps Husband Sail.

Acknowledged the most experienced yachtswoman in the fleet, Polly Kendig helps her husband sail his Silver Spray in every race. For six years Mr. and Mrs. Kendig have been directors and instructors for boys and for girls at the Deerfield Shield High school. Robert Kendig is director of physical education and coach of all athletics at the school, as is his first mate.

At the helm of Albert Y. Bingham's Star boat, Glider, will be his charming young wife, Helen, bowling and pingpong devotee. While Skipper Bingham is temporarily waiving his rights on Glider, he still retains his post as secretary of the Sheridan Shore Yacht club. Mrs. Wesley Bowman, president of the S. S. Y. C. Woman's auxiliary, will be the first to sail Bonnie B., Ex-Commodore Bowman's entry, with its new set of sails. On the Sea Dove, Charles Pajeau's Star, launched only a month ago, will be Mrs. W. Burton Ellis at the helm. Mrs. Ellis is a Junior league worker and an expert equestrienne.

Bad Wolf to Compete.

Bad Wolf, owned by Air Pilot Tom Wolfe, will be sailed by Mrs. Wolfe. The chairman of social activities of the S. S. Y. C., Mrs. Thomas Waage, will sail her husband's Skipit, which has a first class competitive record so far this season which the new skipper firmly intends to continue.

Mrs. Fred Price is expected to sail her husband's Neo, and Mrs. Morton will be at the tiller of the Morton-Fitzsimmons syndicate boat, Ali Baba. Mrs. Charles Galloway, a former winner of this annual regatta, will sail Emerson Raymond's Dolphin.

Alert IV. Wins in 2d Race of Lipton Series

Alert IV., Dr. Theodore J. Morris' mahogany R class sloop, won the second round of the Chicago Yacht club's Lipton cup series yesterday in a choppy sea that pitched the boats around and a light wind that barely gave steerageway. In addition to Skipper Morris there were in Alert's crew Franz Fischer, Harry M. Forey, William Fricke, and Dan Williams.

Soon after the start, the wind, which was 8 to 10 miles per hour strength, dropped to an occasional zephyr. In the last half of the race the crews found that the waves were pushing the yachts as much as the wind. The wind generally came from the southeast.

Fred Wacker's Gypsy finished second and Ardelle, C. E. Waltman's boat, sailed by Clare Udell, was third. With two of the three races sailed, Ardelle leads with 15 points, Alert IV. and Gossoon II. each have 13¼ points, and Gypsy is next with 13.

Leeds Mitchell Jr. sailed his Quienna to first place in the Eagle class, and has a lead of one point now for the Nutting cup.

A. A. U. TO CHECK OWENS' 'SALARY' AS STATE PAGE

Charge Ohio Star Gets $159 Without Working.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—The amateur status of Jesse Owens, Ohio State university's great sprinter, was being investigated today following charges that the colored star was receiving compensation for serving as a page for the Ohio legislature, but actually was doing no work.

L. N. Bloom, president of the northeastern Ohio division of the Amateur Athletic union, said a meeting of the executive committee would be called either tomorrow or Sunday to discuss the matter. Bloom also announced Owens would be requested to appear before the officials.

$159 for No Work.

It was revealed that Owens received $159 between June 9 and July 31 as an honorary page for the state house of representatives. When the legislature was in session Owens was a regular page at $3 a day. The legislature adjourned June 9. Owens, according to Fred Elsass, clerk of the house, has not appeared for work since.

Dan Ferris, national secretary and treasurer of the A. A. U., in a statement from New York, declared Owens' eligibility would be jeopardized if he did no actual work for the salary he received.

Larry Snyder, Owens' coach at Ohio State, said Ferris' statement is incorrect, "because Jesse's work for the legislature has nothing to do with athletics."

"If the Ohio legislature or the people of Ohio want to pay Jesse as an honorary page that is no concern of the A. A. U., even if the state does not call upon Owens to earn that money by working," said Snyder.

APPOINTED BY RESOLUTION.

Columbus, O., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Ohio State university officials today expressed little concern over the threat to Jesse Owens' amateur status growing out of his position as "honorary page" in the Ohio house of representatives. During the regular session of the legislature Owens worked as a page. For this he received $3 per day.

In the closing days of the session Representatives Grant P. Ward of Columbus and Sydney Hesse of Cleveland introduced a resolution suggesting that because of the fame Owens brought to Ohio and Ohio State university, particularly by his track achievements, he should be recognized in a substantial way. The resolution follows:

"Whereas, Jesse Owens, page in the Ohio house of representatives, has further distinguished himself and the general assembly by his remarkable world-record-breaking achievements in track, and is recognized as the greatest track athlete in the country, . . . Be it resolved by the Ohio house of representatives that congratulations are hereby bestowed on Jesse Owens for his remarkable achievement, and be it further resolved—

"That Jesse Owens is hereby appointed honorary page of the Ohio house of representatives to serve from adjournment of the regular session of the 91st general assembly until the special session of the legislature in the fall of 1935, and to act as assistant to the custodian of the house of representatives, and for such services Jesse Owens shall be paid the regular salary of page during said time, out of the proper appropriate fund."

Owens No Drawing Card.

James L. Rennick, publicity director of the department of athletics, said:

"The job was unsolicited by Owens. It was unsolicited by the university. The A. A. U. rule says no athlete shall utilize his athletic ability for financial gain. In this case Owens did not accept any pay for running a race or playing in a ball game or for any public appearance. There is no gain to be obtained by the Ohio house by having Owens around, inasmuch as he would not be a drawing card there and there is no official charge to get into the house chamber. The university is not greatly concerned."

NO COMMENT—GRIFFITH.

Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of Big Ten conference athletics, last night said he had no comment to make on Jesse Owens' amateur standing when told that the colored sprinter was charged with receiving a salary as an honorary page.

"I don't know of any Big Ten athletes who receive a salary without working for it. It's news to me, so naturally I have no comment to make," Griffith said.

GIANTS DEFEAT PHILS, 3 TO 2, ON HOMER IN NINTH

Jackson Makes Deciding Hit Off Johnson.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Travis Jackson's seventh home run, delivered in the ninth with Hank Leiber on first, gave the New York Giants a 3 to 2 decision over the Phillies and Clydell Castleman a pitching victory over Sylvester Johnson today. The triumph, coupled with the defeat of the Cubs by the Cards, increased the Giants' lead over Chicago to three games and left St. Louis still three and one-half games to the rear.

Castleman gave only six hits but one was a homer by Johnson in the fifth, with the result the Phillies went into the last inning with a 2 to 1 advantage. The Giants got to Johnson for nine safe hits. Gomez drove in the first Philadelphia run in the second when he singled with Dolph Camilli on second, while the league leaders counted their first in the sixth on successive hits by Dick Bartell and Bill Terry and an overthrow by Haslin on an attempted double play of Ott's grounder.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 9.—(AP)—With Tony Cuccinello hitting a home run to climax a four run rally in the ninth, the Brooklyn Dodgers came from behind to whip the Boston Braves, 6 to 5, in the opening game of the series today.

The Dodgers led until the eighth, but then Johnny Babich weakened and was driven from the box as the Braves counted three times. They added another in the ninth, at the expense of Bobby Reis.

Reis singled to start the last half of the ninth, but the next two batters grounded into force plays. Jimmy Bucher came through with a single, however, and Sam Leslie got a double when Wally Berger missed his fly. Stripp ran for Leslie and scored ahead of Cuccinello when the latter delivered the deciding hit.

Yankees Beat Macks, 3 to 2, on Home Run

New York, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Blondy Ryan, former Giant infielder making his debut with the Yankees, started a rally and Red Rolfe climaxed it with a home run as New York scored three runs in the third inning to defeat the Philadelphia Athletics, 3 to 2, today.

Ruffing held the Athletics to six hits but had to bear down in the last two innings when the A's filled the bases twice. Lou Gehrig's error let in one run in the eighth, while Ruffing stopped Johnson and Foxx in the eighth and Pinch Hitter Newsome and Wally Moses in the ninth.

The Yanks could do little with Vernon Wilshere except in the third. With one out, Ryan singled. Ruffing followed with another single, which with the help of two errors allowed Blondy to score. Rolfe then cracked out his home run to account for the deciding runs.

French to Start for Cubs Today; Dizzy for Cards

Larry French will endeavor to southpaw the Cubs to victory over the Cardinals today in the second of the series. He may draw Dizzy Dean for an opponent.

Gabby Hartnett, who went on vacation a week ago because of a muscular rip in his left ankle, put on a uniform yesterday and indulged in batting practice. He will not endeavor to catch before next week, but if occasion demands can do a little pinch hitting.

The fiery Pepper Martin, who usually is a whole team in himself, is out of action with an elbow injury. The Cards also have been struggling along without the help of Rip Collins, but he was back on first base yesterday. A cold had him down for a week.

The crowd, according to figures announced by the club, was the largest weekday gathering of the season. The paid attendance was 13,048. The remainder was made up of 17,500 ladies day guests.

Greenberg's Homer Beats Sox, 4 to 3

ing his first appearance in a starting lineup since his injury on June 29. Jack's drive caused Fox to make a great run and shoestring catch.

Rowe had to hurry a little to retire Radcliff on a tap in front of the plate at the start of the fourth inning, but Piet was soft for White, and Simmons lifted an easy fly to Fox.

With one out in the home fourth inning, Goslin drew Lyons' second pass and stopped at third on Rogell's double along the right foul line. Fox was given an intentional pass, filling the bases. Owen then popped to Sewell and Rowe flied to Dykes.

In the fifth the White Sox finally got to step on some bases. After Washington had popped to Gehringer for the thirteenth straight Tiger putout, Appling became the first Chicagoan to reach first. He lined a single to right. Dykes doubled to left, Appling stopping at third. Hayes sent a long fly to Fox, Appling scoring the tying run and Dykes taking third. Sewell lined deep to White to end the inning.

No. 31 for Hank.

White drew Lyons' fourth pass to start the home fifth and stopped at second on Cochrane's single to right. Gehringer grounded to Dykes, whose throw to Appling forced Cochrane. When he attempted to complete a double play, Appling let the ball slip out of his hand, White scoring and Gehringer reaching first. Greenberg knocked his No. 31 homer over the scoreboard in left center, scoring behind Gehringer. That gave large Hank a total of 127 runs driven in. Appling threw out Goslin, then Rogell drew Lyons' fifth pass, but Lyons threw out Fox.

With one down in the sixth Radcliff singled to center, but was forced by Piet on a tap to Gehringer. Simmons rolled a gentle grounder to Greenberg.

The Tigers' sixth hit and Lyons' sixth pass put two runners on in the home sixth, but no damage accrued. Washington got Rowe's first walk to start the seventh and reached second while Appling was rolling out to Greenberg. Dykes again came through with a hit, this time a single to left center, which scored Washington. Hayes hit into a double play.

Sox Creep Up.

Greenberg got Lyons' seventh walk to start the Detroit seventh. Goslin lined to Washington, then Greenberg stole second. Rogell drew Lyons' eighth pass after which Fox dropped a high fly in front of Simmons for a single, filling the bases. Owen hit into a double play, launched by Appling.

With two out in the eighth, Radcliff singled to right for his second and the team's fifth hit and went to third on Piet's single to center. Simmons singled over second, Radcliff scoring and Piet stopping at second. Washington lifted a high fly to Fox.

Rowe opened the home eighth with his second successive hit, a single to right, and advanced on White's sacrifice. Cochrane popped to Hayes. Appling threw out Gehringer.

Appling walked after a three and two count to get the ninth inning under way. Dykes forewore the sacrifice and flied to Fox. Hayes singled to right center, Appling taking third. Gehringer made a backhand catch of Sewell's liner toward center and Lyons flied to Goslin to end the game.

Bachman Has Fine Record at 5 Schools

has coached at five schools since he received his degree from Dartmouth back in 1917.

At 41 years of age Dr. Spears is a veteran of seventeen years as head coach, during which time his teams won ninety games, lost thirty-three, and tied seven. Spears-coached elevens have been famed for their power plays, but it's just as true that his squads always have had effective pass attacks and powerful defenses.

All-American in 1915.

During his days at Dartmouth Spears, a 225 pound thunderbolt with the speed of a sprinter, played guard so well that the late Walter Camp picked him on his first All-American team in 1915. Prior to entering Dartmouth Spears played a year at Knox, and this prevented him from playing in his final year at Dartmouth.

Upon graduation Dr. Spears took over the job as freshman coach and continued his studies in medicine. He was named head coach when he was 23 years old and received his degree in medicine in 1920.

Spears left Dartmouth to take over the coaching at West Virginia in 1921 and stayed there until 1925, when he went to Minnesota for a five year reign. He moved from Minnesota to Oregon, where he coached in 1930 and 1931. This season will be his fourth year at Wisconsin.

Family Moves to Kewanee.

Spears was born July 24, 1894, near Dewitt, Ark. His father died shortly afterward, and the family moved to Kewanee, Ill., where his mother now lives. They still tell tales in Kewanee of the athletic feats of young Spears, who at 16 years weighed 228 pounds.

They called him Sarah in those days for some reason that has been obscured by time. It was at that time, when Spears was tearing up things for Kewanee High school, that he played against a La Salle, Ill., youth who was destined to become famous as a coach. The La Salle youth was Edward [Slip] Madigan, coach at St. Mary's of California, who also is a member of the All-Star coaching staf this year.

Dr. Spears' active campaign in the poll to determine the All-Star coach was handled by the Wisconsin State Journal of Madison, which was successful in getting splendid coöperation throughout the state. He ran strong in every community of Wisconsin.

Must Stop Nagurski Now.

Among the All-Americans Spears coached none is better known than Bronko Nagurski, the former Minnesota star, who is the battering full back of the Chicago Bears. Spears, who built his attack around Nagurski when the latter was starring with the Gophers in 1927-'28-'29, now is faced with the task of developing a defense against Nagurski and his teammates.

MADIGAN FORGETS NAVY

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Edward [Slip] Madigan had aspirations to be an admiral, but was informed enlisted men could not attain that high office. So Edward [Slip] Madigan became a football coach, and will spend the next few weeks helping pilot the greatest squad of football players ever assembled, instead of maneuvering mighty battle wagons about the oceans. He did become a lieutenant, however.

Dean of Pacific coast football coaches by virtue of his service at St. Mary's college since 1921, Madigan is one of four famous coaches elected in the nation-wide poll to select a staf to prepare the college All-Stars for their game with the Chicago Bears at Soldiers' field, Chicago, Aug. 29.

Plays Center for Rockne.

Madigan was a center under Rockne at Notre Dame, but was not known as a great player. He must have been good, however, or he wouldn't have been the varsity center. Slip's career at South Bend ended with his graduation in 1919, and he set about looking for a coaching post. One was found—at Columbia in Portland, Ore. He remained through the 1919 season and the following year and then accepted the position at St. Mary's.

The first time Madigan's little St. Mary's eleven squared off with the giants from the University of California was something for Slip to remember, especially the final score, which read: CALIFORNIA, 121; ST. MARY'S, 0.

Old Brick Pile Grows Up.

The "Old Brick Pile" of Oakland, as St. Mary's then was known, soon began to take its place in Pacific coast football under Madigan's instruction, and in recent years the then little school of 67 students has been knocking off many big fellows throughout the country. St. Mary's teams play from coast to coast and have their share of successes against Alabama, Fordham, Southern Methodist, Texas Christian, Southern California, Oregon, Washington State, California and such powerful teams.

Tietje to Face Tommy Bridges, Tigers Today

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Les Tietje will pitch for the White Sox in tomorrow's game with the Tigers. He will be opposed by Tommy Bridges.

Zeke Bonura, who hurt his left shoulder trying to break up one of the four Tiger infield double plays in yesterday's opener, felt all right last night when he went to bed, but got up this morning all bruised and stiff. Hence the big shakeup in the Sox battle front.

All-Stars Move on Chicago to Begin Practice reputation as the outstanding professional eleven in the country.

It is presumed that the All-American team will be drilled in the fundamental of the Notre Dame offense. This problem of offensive tactics rests entirely with the head coach, Frank Thomas, of Alabama. Last year Noble Kizer of Purdue, head coach, chose to use the fundamental plays of the Notre Dame shift and Thomas, this year, will have two assistants who also graduated from Notre Dame, Edward Madigan of St. Mary's, and Charles Bachman of Michigan State. Dr. C. W. Spears of Wisconsin teaches his teams a single wing back style, in the main, and his best elevens have centered around such full backs as Bronko Nagurski, whom Spears coached at Minnesota, and Mike Mikulak of Oregon.

Spears, of course, is familiar with the Notre Dame style, not only from competition between his teams and those employing that system, but from other observation. It is possible that Spears' greatest value to the All-Americans will be his knowledge of the Bears. He has seen them play several times each year.

Gopher Keymen Present.

For that matter, if Coach Thomas wishes, he has the nucleus of a fine team in the five men from Minnesota. Almost any coach would be glad to have key positions filled by Bevan, guard; Larsen, end; Bengston, tackle; Kostka, full back, and Lund, half back. Lund, in particular, is regarded as one of the most dependable men on the team. His play last fall held the Minnesota team together and furnished the spark which touched off brilliant drives.

In the Michigan-Minnesota game, with Lund on the bench, the Wolverines held the Gophers scoreless. Then in the second half Lund started the drive which resulted in five touchdowns. Lund is a hard runner, a fine passer, and a dependable kicker.

Kostka probably is the hardest driving fullback of the 1934 campaign. It was Kostka who carried the ball for the major gains which brought the winning touchdown for Minnesota over Pittsburgh, a game that eventually gave Minnesota recognition in national ratings equal to Alabama.

May Drill Nights.

Weather will determine how many nights the All-Americans will drill or if they will work out during the day. Cool weather will permit day drills. Training rules and other routine will be drawn up by the coaches.

Approximately one-half of the seating capacity of Soldiers' field has been sold. There are no $2.20 seats available, and the supply of $1.65 tickets is diminishing. Any seat, however, affords an unobstructed view of the gridiron. The lighting will be increased from 72,000 watts to 100,000 watts, and the lamps will be mounted on 60 foot poles as compared to 40 foot poles last year. This lighting is in addition to the lights that are permanent equipment of Soldiers' field.

The gridiron will be sodded immediately after the circus leaves the stadium. This should furnish a firm turf by Aug. 29.

Colored Stars Assemble for Annual Game

Stars of the Chicago American Giants and the New York Cubans who have been marking time here since the completion of their series early this week will serve as a welcoming committee this afternoon when players of the six other clubs of the Negro National league arrive for tomorrow's All-Star baseball game at Comiskey park.

Word came from the headquarters of the league in Pittsburgh yesterday that a delegation of 29 players was assembling there for the trip to Chicago. Included in the party were members of both the east and the west All-Star aggregations which were picked by baseball fans who cast more than 50,000 votes in a national poll.

Chicago Has Representation.

The party from Pittsburgh will be joined by six members of the American Giants and four players of the New York Cubans, bringing the All-Star personnel up to its full quota of 39. In addition to Chicago's south side club, the Pittsburgh Crawfords, Homestead Grays, and Columbus Elite Giants will represent the west. The eastern All-Star squad was recruited from the Brooklyn Eagles, Newark Dodgers, and Philadelphia Stars in addition to the New York Cubans.

During an informal get-together of New York Cuban and American Giant All-Stars yesterday, each faction boasted of the deeds they are going to accomplish in tomorrow's game. The Giants informed Lefty Tiant, pitching star of the New York Cubans, who is scheduled to work three innings for the east, that they will send him to the showers in a hurry. Most vociferous were Turkey Stearns, Alex Radcliffe, Willie Wells, and Mule Suttles, who carry batting averages that would frighten most pitchers.

Tiant Refuses to Shudder.

Tiant listened attentively and then asked, "Where were your bats last year, boys? You fellows on the western team made only seven hits and couldn't get a run. Sure, I wasn't in that game, but those three eastern pitchers who stopped you cold had nothing compared to what I'm going to throw past you boys."

And so it went with Oms and Dihigo, outfielders, and Lundy, second baseman, who also are members of the eastern squad, backing up Tiant, in the argument, which also engaged Larry Brown and Trent, other American Giants who have been voted places on the west's All-Star squad.

TOP DOG'S RUSH IN STRETCH WINS DASH AT CRETE

Whips Born Happy and Spanish Babe.

Top Dog, a son of Bull Dog-Fairy Eyes, carried Laddie Komorous' orange and black jacket to victory in the Flamingo purse at Lincoln Fields yesterday. When he won the day's feature he staged the most spectacular stretch run of the year at this track.

The Chicago colt had been outrun in the early stages and lost a lot of ground on the turn into the stretch. Epernay, Born Happy, Spanish Babe, and Recovery all were outrunning him.

Top Dog got into stride an eighth of a mile from the finish, moved past one horse after another, and finally was the winner by a length and a half. Born Happy was second and Spanish Babe was best of the others and got third money. Top Dog rattled off his six furlongs in 1:12. He brought great joy to the players of favorites as he was the choice at $5.40.

The Dyer, also at six furlongs, was the second best race on the program and it brought an easy victory for Silverette, which was sporting the silks of E. E. Watts of Chicago.

She also came from far back in the run down the stretch and defeated Singing Heart and Trinchera by nearly two lengths. The favorite, Broad Meadows, closed some ground in the stretch, but could do no better than finish fourth.

Chicago's two great juveniles, Delibator, owned by Fred A. Burton, and Coldstream, the property of C. B. Shaffer, will be among the starters in the Saratoga Special this afternoon.

After saddling Top Dog to win the Flamingo purse Trainer Bert Michell appeared in the paddock again before the running of the seventh number. This time he saddled Stealingaway for Owner Komorous. This 5 year old wound up by winning by four lengths. He was the fourth favorite to win during the afternoon. Walkalong finished second and Dutchy was third.

GIRL ATHLETES COMPETE TODAY IN A. A. U. MEET

The Central A. A. U. Women's track and field meet will be held at Ogden park, 65th street and Racine avenue, beginning at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Under the sponsorship of the Chicago park district, an entry of some eighty girls has been drawn from Chicagoland. Among them are Mary Terwilliger of De Kalb, 100 meter and relay star, and Annette Rogers, likely candidate for the 100 meter event on the 1936 Olympic team.

Betty Robinson, winner of the 100 meters in the 1928 Olympic games who has been out of the running for some time due to a serious accident, will attempt a comeback. Tydie Pickett, Doris Anderson, and Evelyn Hall, who with Miss Rogers ran under the colors of the Chicago park district to win the National A. A. U. meet at St. Louis last March, will all be in line to break and tie records.

Other entrants are Nan Gindele in the baseball throw, Leora Johnson in the hurdles and high jumps, Mildred Kosik in the high jump, Ethel Harrington in the dashes, and the Ferrara sisters, Evelyn and Katherine, in the shotput, discus, and javelin throw.

Circus Soccer Team Meets Germans Tonight

A soccer football team composed of performers in the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus will meet the German All-Stars of the International league at Logan Square park tonight. The game will start at 5:30 o'clock.

U. S. CUTS WHEAT CROP ESTIMATE, BUT RAISES CORN

Bread Grain Is Put Below Needs.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

(Statistics on page 19.)

July brought mixed blessing and misfortune to the farmers of the grain belt, according to the statisticians of the department of agriculture, whose monthly appraisal of crop conditions and prospects was released last night.

The wheat crop went steadily backward during the month, the government experts found, but the condition of the corn crop showed material improvement and prospects now promise a harvest substantially larger than appeared likely 30 days ago. Some deterioration in the oats crop was reported. Rye showed little change.

Basing their calculations on the condition of the crop on Aug. 1, the federal statisticians found the country's combined harvest of winter and spring wheat will be approximately 608 million bushels, as compared with theoretical domestic yearly requirements of 625 million bushels and the 1934 harvest of 497 million bushels.

Report Heavy Wheat Damage.

The deterioration in the wheat crop during July, as measured by the government, was 123 million bushels. At the beginning of last month the department of agriculture had predicted the crop would reach a total of 731 million. The earlier estimate was made when the spring crop prospects in the northwestern states gave promise of a bumper harvest, a prospect since obliterated by the heavy damage from black stem rust.

During the same period the corn crop made excellent progress. The government now finds the crop will probably reach a total of 2,272 million bushels as compared with the 2,045 millions which had been predicted a month earlier. On the basis of the figures it is indicated that nearly a billion bushels more corn will be produced this season than in 1934, when the great drouth cut the harvest to 1,381 million bushels, the smallest crop in 40 years.

Spring Wheat Harmed Most.

Of the total wheat harvest of 608 million bushels the government estimated the spring wheat belt would turn in 176 million bushels, while the winter wheat states would account for 432 million bushels. In the case of both crops the estimates are below the July 1 figures. It was in the spring wheat states, however, that the big change occurred during the month.

From an indicated crop of 273 million bushels on July 1 the spring wheat prospects fell nearly 100 million bushels. The figures tell the story of the damage done in Minnesota and the Dakotas by black rust, a crop blight which seldom in the country's history has brought serious damage.

Heavy as this year's damage was, however ,the crop will nearly double the 1934 harvest of 91 million bushels.

The government cut in the winter wheat crop was based on the disappointing threshing returns. The 432 million bushels now estimated compare with the July 1 estimate of 458 million bushels and the final 1934 crop of 401 million bushels.

The oats crop was fixed by the government at 1,187 million bushels, compared with 1,266 million bushels a month ago and 1934's small harvest of 545 million bushels. Rye production was forecast at 52 million bushels, virtually unchanged from the July 1 prediction and three times last season's.

AAA to Continue Curtailment.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—(AP)—George E. Farrell, director of the AAA division of grains, said the estimated reduction in the wheat crop would have no effect on the 15 per cent acreage reduction to be required next year. Neither, he said, will the government crop report affect the new four year wheat adjustment contracts.

"Corn, which was so late that farmers were afraid it might be caught by an early frost, grew vigorously during July and is now expected to produce a yield nearly equal to the average during the last ten years," the department said.

WHEAT, CORN RISE

Wheat and corn prices rose moderately yesterday in the Chicago grain market on a comparatively light volume of trading. The low ebb of activity was due to the impending government crop report, which was not released until after the close of the market. Traders were uncertain as to the exact findings of the government's statisticians and they restricted their market operations.

Reports from reliable grain firms in the northwest that thousands of acres in the spring wheat belt will not be harvested because of the condition of the crop confirmed earlier statements, but failed to stir the market from its lethargy. Wheat futures closed ¾ cent higher, while corn advanced ½ to ⅞ cent a bushel.

Prices on December Futures.

Closing prices on the December futures with comparative quotations were:

	Yesterday.	Thursday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$ .92⅝	$ .91⅞	$ .82⅞
Corn	.60	.59½	.62½
Oats	.31⅝	.31⅝	.33⅝
Rye	.46½	.46½	.47¾

The market action turned more on foreign developments than domestic crop news. A moderate advance in wheat prices in Liverpool was a governing influence in the mild upturn here. Despite the 42 cents a bushel tarif on wheat, the level of prices in foreign markets has a direct bearing on domestic values.

It was reliably reported last night that a Chicago milling company has purchased a cargo of Canadian wheat. Meanwhile, Winnipeg grain firms reported that the steadily advancing price of No. 4 hard wheat in the cash market there was due principally to American demand.

View Revival Sound; Court Decrees Help

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Business analysts are increasingly coming around to the opinion that the present upturn in industrial production and corporation profits represents the most substantial pickup since the bank moratorium in March, 1933, and that it is due to natural forces of recovery, aided by the renewal of business confidence following in the wake of Supreme court decisions upsetting various phases of the New Deal "planned economy."

Those who hold this belief are almost unanimously of the opinion that the two developments which would do most to promote recovery would be an early adjournment of congress and restoration of stabilized currency.

* *

Typical of this point of view is a survey by Shearson, Hammill & Co., leading New York and Chicago brokerage house.

"With the passing of the low point of the seasonal summer period," says this firm, "the business upturn has become more pronounced and more conclusive. Without doubt, early adjournment by congress would accelerate the recovery movement.

"This recovery phase is the third of the important business upswings since the closing of the banks in March, 1933, and it is by far the most encouraging and the most orthodox of the three. The former boomlets were based largely upon fears of possible consequences of monetary action, the effects of the NRA upon wages and commodity prices, the speculative accumulations of inventories, actual and anticipated government expenditures, and other artificial stimuli.

* *

"The present movement had its origin in the restoration of business confidence by the important court decisions which have halted many of the New Deal programs. This was followed by a large volume of private financing, as yet mainly for refunding purposes.

"The renewed confidence came at a time when inventories in general were at low levels and commodity prices relatively stable. It found, as has been the case for a number of years, a large latent demand for capital goods. None of the former boomlets stimulated the capital goods industries as much as the current rise.

"Now we find the steel industry making rapid progress toward profitable operating levels, the machine tool industry at 1929 levels, residential building making handsome gains, the electrical equipment and industrial machinery business going steadily forward and the railroad equipment field showing moderate improvement.

* *

"Unlike the 1933 and 1934 recoveries the present phase is not creating an overbought condition, as occurred on previous occasions in steel, cotton goods, bituminous coal, etc. This 1935 recovery stage has had no spectacular beginning, as did the others. The rise was steady while stocks of manufactured goods were going down instead of up, as they did in 1933 and 1934. Retail sales are rising steadily, whereas in 1934 there was practically no increase. Mail order sales are far ahead of 1933 and 1934."

This reasoning is similar in most respects to that of Gen. Charles G. Dawes, who has insisted that the recovery which he last winter predicted would begin this summer would be brought about by mass buying of goods rather than by artificial stimulants applied by the government.

The Shearson-Hammill survey points out the significant fact that the present upturn is occurring during a lull in government expenditures. Large appropriations have been made by congress, but the projected increase in government spending for this year has not yet begun. Consequently, it is concluded that the present recovery is not due to that source.

* *

Government meddling, on the other hand, is blamed for some of the weakness in the general trade picture, notably the fact that world consumption of American cotton has declined while consumption of foreign cotton has been rising sharply.

"We have long believed," say Shearson-Hammill, "that stabilization of world currencies would be a most dynamic factor of world trade and business confidence. In our opinion it would be more effective in restoring prosperity at this time than anything that has yet been attempted. It would certainly result in long term business planning of a character that would put to probable use the enormous credit supplies now lying idle.

"We believe possibilities exist for serious discussions of stabilization in the near future. Great Britain's domestic recovery appears to be halting. An agreement for stabilization between the pound sterling and the dollar would stimulate foreign trade, an important source of Britain's national income."

MILLERS OBJECT TO PROCESS TAX ON LIGHT WHEAT

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 9.—(AP)—The light weight of the northwest spring wheat crop, coupled with the federal processing tax, Minneapolis milling officials said today, has threatened existing prices of bread grain here. Simultaneously the chamber of commerce market quoted cash spring wheat on a new basis starting today, making weight the first consideration instead of protein content as in the past.

Millers explained that most of the northwest crop will run from 45 to 57 pounds to the bushel, compared to 58 to 60 pounds a bushel in previous normal years. Four and a half bushels of the heavy wheat would produce a barrel of flour, but it would take about six bushels of this year's lightweight wheat to make a barrel.

Since the processing tax applies to each bushel of wheat, the cost of producing a barrel of flour from lightweight wheat would be too great to add to the price of flour because millers in other sections of the country, working with heavy wheat, will be able to undersell northwest millers.

Indict Porter on Investment Fraud Charge

Waterman W. Porter, 48 years old, modern exponent of "get rich quick" hopes, was indicted yesterday by a federal grand jury before Judge John P. Barnes. He was charged with using the mails in a scheme to defraud more than 2,000 persons who put $1,700,000 in three investment concerns he operated.

The indictment is a bulky document covering 119 pages. It contains twenty-five counts, each of which carries a maximum sentence of five years and a fine of $10,000 upon conviction.

Porter surrendered to authorities early this week after remaining in seclusion at his summer home in Michigan. The $5,000 bond, under which he was released at that time pending arrangement and trial on the charges, still stands.

Asset Statement Held False.

The indictment states no assets were deposited with the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company and the Chicago Title and Trust company, as set forth in the Porter prospectuses. It also brands as false statements that the companies had $2 in assets for every $1 of liabilities.

The three concerns operated by Porter were the Wall Street Security corporation, of Chicago, Wall Street Trust, of New York, and Tri-State Investment corporation, of Owosso, Mich. The action follows several months of investigation by postoffice inspectors and agents of the securities and exchange commission. Headquarters were maintained at 30 West Washington street, Chicago.

Porter had been an insurance salesman for 20 years prior to launching his "investment" business in 1930.

Investors Promised Big Returns.

Prospective investors throughout the middle west were influenced to turn over cash and securities on a guarantee of a return of 1 per cent a month and profits of 50 per cent, explained Warren Canaday, assistant United State district attorney, who obtained the indictment. Porter, in turn, was to use the securities and money as collateral for investments. The indictment charges that interest was paid out of principal taken in and not from any earnings from profitable investments.

Canaday asserted that auditors as well as investors had been "taken in" since 1930 on the claim that assets of the company included 1,500 shares of Homestake Mining company stock, valued at $618,000. Actually, the stock carried on the books was that of the Homestake Mining Company, Ltd., of Canada, which has a value of less than a dollar a share.

GUILDER, BELGA DECLINE; OTHER MONEYS STEADY

New York, Aug. 9.—[Special.]—There were few changes in foreign currencies today as the foreign exchange market remained quiet, Dutch guilders dipped 5 points, losing yesterday's gain, with the close at 67.70 cents.

The Belgian belga was the only other leading currency to show any change, being 1 point lower at 16.90 cents. With the French franc remaining at 6.62⅝ cents the value of the dollar against francs was $1.0011, and based upon the old parity of the franc the dollar was worth 59.13 cents.

The London gold price was reduced ½ penny to 140 shillings 5½ pence a fine ounce, or $34.87, at which level 118,000 of metal changed hands.

There was a gain of $107,200 in stocks of monetary gold resulting from a net decrease in gold held under earmark, the New York federal reserve bank disclosed today. There were no imports and no exports.

Big Federal Awards Raise Week's Construction Total

New York, Aug. 9.—Substantial federal awards this week played a large part in bringing the construction total to $35,596,000, the highest level since the week of April 11 and the second highest for the year, according to the Engineering News-Record. The total consisted of $9,298,000 in private awards and $26,298,000 in public awards. Of the latter $13,443,000 was federal and $12,855,000 state and municipal.

NATION-WIDE TRUCK SYSTEM IS PLANNED; HERTZ LEADS MOVE

New York, Aug. 9.—[Special.]—With a proposed capitalization of $25,000,000 to $30,000,000, plans are going forward for the organization of a nation-wide trucking company, patterned after the transcontinental bus corporations. Active in the organization are interests identified with Lehman Brothers, investment bankers of this city, with John Hertz, a partner, as the principal figure. Hertz, former head of the Yellow Cab company, and an official of the Fifth Avenue Coach company, is regarded as one of the nation's authorities on motorized transportation.

Under the proposed plan, main lines in key sections of the country would be consolidated into one organization with spurs into the smaller communities much after the fashion of the Greyhound bus lines. The company, it is planned, would not only engage in long distance hauling but would also maintain store door delivery service. In this respect they would coöperate with the railroads of the country.

AUTO OUTPUT LARGEST FOR JULY SINCE '29

New York, Aug. 9.—(AP)—July automobile production in the United States and Canada, excluding Ford output, totaled 256,200 cars and trucks, the largest for that month since 1929, and an increase of 32 per cent over July a year ago, according to a preliminary estimate issued today by the Automobile Manufacturers association. The July total, however, dipped 7 per cent from June.

For the first seven months of the year output by members of the association was 1,791,981 units, an increase of 21 per cent over the 1,475,336 units produced in the corresponding period of last year, and also the largest since 1929.

Predict Gains in 1936.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—A prediction that the automobile industry will enjoy substantial production and sales over the remainder of 1935 and that 1936 will be even a better year was made today by William S. Knudsen and Richard Grant, vice presidents of General Motors, in connection with the production of the 1,000,000th General Motors car this year.

Sales of General Motors cars and trucks to dealers in the overseas markets in July totaled 26,554 units, an increase of 14 per cent over a year ago and 10.6 per cent over June this year.

ORGANIZE FARM GROUPS OPPOSED TO AAA PROGRAM

The Farmers' Independent council, a new organization supported by agricultural groups opposed to the AAA program, will open offices in Chicago shortly, it was learned yesterday. The council will attempt organization of farmers who do not believe in the principle of the AAA program and will try to counteract the propaganda which the farm supporters of the administration's policies have sponsored.

Dan C. Casement, Manhattan, Kas., a leading critic of the Roosevelt farm policies, is one of the leaders in the new movement. Much of the organization work is being done by Stanley F. Morse, Sumter, S. C., another opponent of the administration farm program. He has temporary headquarters in the offices of the American Liberty league. He said last night the personnel and program of the council will be made public early next week.

FEDERAL DEFICIT FOR 38 DAYS OVER HALF BILLION

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—(AP)—The federal deficit for the first 38 days of the new fiscal year today bounced above the half billion dollar mark, outstripping budget predictions.

The latest treasury statement placed the deficit at $506,804,272—a spending rate of about $13,300,000 every 24 hours. The President's budget message estimated a deficit of $4,528,000,000 for the fiscal year, or a rate of $12,400,000 daily.

Expenditures listed as "emergency," which were running at the rate of $15,500,000 during the first 17 days of the new fiscal year, have been reduced to a daily average outlay of $8,670,000.

Japan Drafts Plan to Seize Auto Plants

TOKIO, Aug. 9.—(AP)—The Japanese government moved today to obtain control of its automobile industry which is dominated by American companies. Its importance to national defense was stressed by War Minister Senjuro Hayashi who urged the action.

The cabinet's draft of an automotive industry control law, approved unanimously, will be presented to parliament early next year. American interests will be vitally affected by the measure. The General Motors and Ford plants in the last five years have turned out approximately 80 per cent of the automobiles sold in Japan, some 10,000 apiece each year.

Would License Companies.

Under the cabinet proposal companies must be licensed and subjected to government control, with a majority of the stock owned by Japanese. The proposed law will not be retroactive. It said the "vested rights" of foreign companies "will be respected."

Any future expansion by such companies falls under the law's provisions, which apparently blocks the Ford plans for a new factory at Yokohama unless the majority of the shares are Japanese owned.

Financial writers said the cabinet action paved the way for consolidation of General Motors with the Japan Industry company, a holding company, and predicted Japanese would hold majority stock in the consolidated businesses.

A similar measure has placed the oil and petroleum industry under government control. This seriously affected the Standard-Vacuum company. America and Japan have exchanged diplomatic notes over the situation without reaching an agreement.

Auto Officials Silent.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Leaders of the automotive industry here expressed considerable interest in the move of the Japanese government to obtain control of the production of motor cars in that country, but withheld comment for the time being.

"We will have no comment until we have been officially notified of the terms of the proposed control law," the Ford office said. No one in authority at the local offices of General Motors corporation would discuss the measure.

ROOSEVELT ASKS LAW APPROVING STATE OIL PACTS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—(AP)—President Roosevelt asked congress in a 150 word message today to consent to state compacts to conserve oil and gas. Supporters of pending oil legislation said the President also would like to see final action on a broad program which would include creation of a federal petroleum board.

Expressing surprise that the message mentioned only the compacts, despite a recent White House conference at which all sides agreed to the broader program, Senator Thomas [Dem., Okla.] said:

"If that's all he wants, that's all he will get."

The President transmitted a certified copy of the state compact executed at Dallas Feb. 16 by Oklahoma, Texas, California, and New Mexico. He also submitted a report from the department of state showing the compact already had been ratified by six of the score or more producing states —New Mexico, Kansas, Oklahoma, Illinois, Colorado, and Texas.

FREIGHT TRAFIC GAINS AGAINST SEASONAL TREND

Week's Total Is Still Below Year Ago.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Freight trafic last week showed a rise of 621 cars over the preceding week, contrary to the normal seasonal trend, according to figures released today by the Association of American Railroads.

The total of 597,083 cars for the week was 15,577 cars below the 612,660 cars for the corresponding week last year and 23,399 under the 620,482 for the 1933 period. The contraseasonal gain last week was due to a pickup in less than car lot merchandise and a heavier grain movement.

For the year to date loadings totaled 18,001,877 cars, compared with 18,400,298 a year ago and 16,463,172 in 1933.

Miscellaneous Freight Higher.

Miscellaneous freight totaled 227,476 cars, an increase of 570; 1,916 above 1934, and 8,116 more than 1933.

Less than car lot merchandise was 158,918, an increase of 2,581; a decrease of 1,000 under 1934, and 14,414 under 1933.

Coal loadings were 91,992, a decrease of 10,942; 8,195 under 1934, and 24,808 less than 1933.

Grain and grain products totaled 41,730, an increase of 8,379; a reduction of 1,105 from 1934 and an increase of 12,073 over 1933. In the western district loadings were 25,512, a decrease of 2,058 from 1934.

Live stock totaled 9,528 cars, a decrease of 144; 18,218 below 1934, and 5,500 less than 1933.

Federal Program Is Factor.

In the western district live stock loadings were 6,670 cars, a decrease of 17,697 from 1934. The heavy decrease, as compared with 1934, was credited to Federal Emergency Relief administration shipments of cattle out of drouth areas last year.

Forest products totaled 29,258 cars, an increase of 590; 7,749 above 1934, and 1,324 more than 1933.

Ore totaled 33,004 cars, a decrease of 1,009, but an increase of 2,334 from 1934, and 1,441 more than 1933.

A year ago it was 62. The range of this index, which is adjusted for seasonal variation, and based on the 1929-'30 average as 100, for recent years follows:

REPORT ACCORD ON REVAMPING RESERVE BOARD

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Members of a conference committee adjusting senate and house differences on the banking reform bill were reported today to have agreed on the senate provision calling for a reorganization of the federal reserve board in 90 days to provide for seven appointive members instead of six and removing the secretary of the treasury and controler of the currency as ex-officio members.

They also were said by one of the senate conferees to have agreed on the senate provision changing the name of the board to a "reserve board of governors" with each member having the title of governor, and providing for a chairman to be selected from the seven.

Motor Carrier Control Signed by Roosevelt

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—(AP)—President Roosevelt saw his plans for coördinated regulation of all forms of transportation draw a step nearer completion today when he signed the motor carrier act.

Under its terms the interstate commerce commission after Oct. 1 will begin supervision of all common and contract motor vehicle carriers engaged in the interstate transportation of passengers or property. Vehicles used exclusively in carrying live stock, fish, or agricultural commodities, or in the distribution of newspapers, are exempt, as also are those controled and operated by farm coöperative associations.

Will Use Stafs of States.

An analysis of the 25 page bill, prepared by Joseph B. Eastman, railroad coördinator, and given out at the White House, said the commission would make extensive use of trained personnel of the state through the use of joint boards. The act provides for the states to continue exercising full authority over intrastate transportation.

Common carriers must obtain certificates of public convenience and necessity before they may operate, but those which were operating on June 1, 1935, will receive these as of right. Contract carriers also must obtain permits, but those in operation on July 1, 1935, may receive them if they show bona fide operation. Brokers must obtain a license requiring adequate proof of financial responsibility.

Eastman Explains Regulations.

Other provisions were explained by Eastman as follows:

Common carriers are required to establish just and reasonable rates and are forbidden to discriminate in rates or service. Their rates may be regulated both as to maxima and to minima. In keeping with the different character of their operations contract carriers are subject only to minimum rate regulation. Considerable latitude is given in the regulation of such carriers.

Other matters made subject to regulation are the consolidation or merger of properties, the issuance of securities, and the financial responsibility of the operators. Appropriate reports may be required from motor carriers and brokers, and their accounts may be prescribed.

All carriers, including those which are otherwise exempted, are made subject to regulation with respect to the qualifications and maximum hours of service of their employés and the safety of their operations and equipment.

SEEK SIQUELAND ASSETS FOR BANK STOCK LIABILITY

The examination of Tryggve A. Siqueland, assistant vice president of the First National Bank of Chicago, and his wife in an attempt to find hidden assists to satisfy a $7,000 judgment was asked in a petition filed yesterday in the Superior court by Einer S. Liljeberg, receiver for the Elmwood Park State bank.

The judgment was obtained on Feb. 20, 1934, in satisfaction of stockholders' liability on the bank's stock, but the sheriff reported that there was no property on which to levy.

The bill alleges Siqueland had assets of at least $10,000 which "he has conveyed in some pretended sale or assigned or conveyed by gift or by some other secret or cunning device or contrivance with intent to deceive or defraud." It asks that any such transfers be set aside.

OIL ROYALTY DEALERS ATTACK SEC'S LEGALITY

Tulsa, Okla., Aug. 9.—(AP)—The securities and exchange commission was attacked by Oklahoma oil royalties dealers today in a suit charging the act creating the commission is unconstitutional. The suit was filed in United States District court by R. R. Crawford, Tulsa dealer.

Seeking an injunction to prevent enforcement of commission regulations, the suit contends that SEC regulations conflict with a state law, that the commission resorts to subterfuge in attempting to enforce its rulings, and that congress exceeded its authority in granting powers to the commission.

STOCKS CLIMB; 120 ISSUES SET HIGHS FOR YEAR

Trade Heaviest Since Last May.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 9.—In the first two million share session since May 28, the stock market developed a fresh burst of strength and rolled forward on a wide front. Leading issues gained 1 to 3 points and many old time favorites were boosted to new price levels for periods of four or five years. One hundred and twenty issues registered new highs for the year. The turnover was 2,186,800 shares.

Sears-Roebuck, twin leader of the mail order division, reached the best price in four years and Montgomery Ward sold to the highest ground in five years. Chrysler was shoved up 3 points to a new peak since 1929 and General Motors counted 2 more points for the best quotation in four years. Gains among some of the more volatile descriptions including the preferreds ran as high as $5 a share.

Nearly All Groups Rise.

Virtually every group of the list shared in the improvement. Mercantile, motor, and miscellaneous industrial issues received a share of the better of the patronage, but as the session progressed and the advance gained momentum secondary groups counted themselves in on the recovery and buying became general and at times unusually brisk. Week-end realizing sales such as developed had little effect on the uptrend and closing prices were around the best of the day with few exceptions.

With brokerage house "letters" and other purveyors of market comment reflecting a steady growth of bullish sentiment, traders paid scant attention to such customary outside factors as political news and labor troubles, and political strife and centered their attention on reports of progress in major industries, the betterment of corporation profits, and the outlook for higher dividend payments by corporations in many businesses.

Bullish Interest Stimulated.

The manner in which pivotal shares absorbed such realizing as came their way also did much to stimulate new bullish interest and tended to refute the theory that the market's technical position had been weakened by the steady rise in values over the last few months.

Announcement of the sale of a stock exchange seat at $125,000, the highest price since May 10, 1934, contributed a smile to picnic.

Many brokers believe that sooner or later the public is bound to notice that a bull movement in stocks is getting under way and will be drawn into it in a large way. When it comes, they point out, it will find an abundance of cheap money and virtually all the old facilities of speculation waiting to help things along. This week a rise of $10,000,000 in brokers' loans was reported but until now, at least, the backbone of the rise has been investment buying. Should a period of rising loans follow, it is declared, the signal would be plain.

Store Stocks Prominent.

Department store stocks were prominent in today's rise reflecting reports of better retail business throughout the country. Macy moved into new high ground. Gimbel preferred was up 7 points at one time, McLellan preferred bobbed up 6½ points, McCrory preferred improved its rating and Woolworth moved ahead nearly a point.

Railroad issues had a good day with Union Pacific recovering 3 points of its dividend-scare setback, and advances of 1 to 2 points were recorded by New York Central, Great Northern, Delaware and Hudson, and Pennsylvania. Among the equipments, Baldwin Locomotive common lost a point, but the preferred rose 4 points.

The liquors were in good fettle and the oils, rubbers, and amusements displayed some spirit. Airplane issues held their strength and maintained their activity.

New York, Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Bond trading on the New York exchange broadened substantially today in an advancing trend, with the heaviest volume recorded since June 20. Transactions amounted to $14,114,000.

Influenced by the brisk upswing in junior equities, public utility and secondary railroad issues assumed leadership in the corporation section and moved forward rather impressively in fair volume. Advances of one to two points were numerous in those groups.

Strong Spots in Rails.

Baltimore and Ohio convertible 4½s, Missouri, Kansas and Texas 5s, Chicago and North Western 3½s, and the issues of Nickel Plate and Erie were strong spots in the rail group, all responding to the demand with substantial gains. Utilities Power and Light bonds were favored among the utilities, the 5 per cent issue moving up 2¾ points.

Individual price swings which attracted attention included a gain of 5 points in Murray Body 6½s and a similar advance in Montreal Tramway 5s.

The market for United States government bonds was highly mixed. Trading was again fairly heavy, sales amounting to $5,116,000, compared with $3,350,000 on the preceding day.

Treasury 3½s Most Active.

The treasury 3½s were the cost active, accounting for well over half of the total of trading in the government issues. After sinking to 104.18 during the morning, that issue rallied to 104.24, off only 1-32 on the day. The 2¾s rallied 1-6 to close at 101.6. Good buying of the guaranteed Home Owners Loan issues resulted in gains of 5-32 and 6-32 at the end of the day.

A decidedly better undertone ruled in the market for foreign government obligations although advances in a majority of the issues were confined to a point or less. South American government loans were generally better.

Pure Oil Co. 4½s.

Investors' Guide: I thank you for the thorough information you sent me regarding the common stock of the National Biscuit company. Will you now please give me your opinion of 4½s?—L. F. H.

Answer: Pure Oil company is one of the major units in the oil industry. It has a widespread retail marketing system which is supplied with products produced from its own wells, refined in its refineries, and transported through its pipe lines. Because the company is so thoroughly integrated, its prosperity rests almost entirely on the retail price it receives for its petroleum products, primarily gasoline.

Loss was sustained in 1934. The company earned only 87 per cent of its fixed charges. This was due to higher operating costs and the narrowing of the spread between crude and refined gasoline. Higher gasoline prices during the first five months of 1935 and elimination of some unfavorable contracts with noncontroled outlets aided it considerably in earning $2,504,000 after all charges for the first five months of 1935. With continuing favorable price conditions and seasonally increased demand during the summer the company in succeeding months may have operated at a higher rate.

Fixed charges were earned 1.31 times in 1933 and 1.16 times in 1932.

At the close of 1934 current assets were twice current liabilities.

On July 17, 1935, the company offered $32,000,000 of 4¼ per cent notes, due 1950, at par to refund the outstanding 5½ per cent notes, pay off bank loans, and to bolster working capital. The warants attached to each $1,000 note permit the holder to purchase 30 shares of stock at $15 a share to July 1, 1938, the price increasing to maturity. The notes are a business man's investment. Continuation of the improvement shown in the early months of this year would warrant a higher rating.

Robbins & Myers, Inc.

Investors' Guide: I would appreciate information on Robbins & Myers, Inc.—E. J. H.

Answer: This manufacturer of electric motors, fans, motor generator sets, hoists, cranes, and trolleys of Springfield and Xenia, O., managed to earn a small profit in the year ended Aug. 31, 1934. Net profit was $76,000, or 75 cents per share of preferred, against losses of $116,00, $577,000, $514,000, and $150,000 for preceding fiscal years.

Current position on Aug. 31, 1934, appeared satisfactory. Current assets, including $232,000 cash, totaled $1,271,000 and current liabilities were $86,000.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 100,920 shares of 6 per cent [$1.50 dividend] cumulative participating preferred and 126,905 shares of no par common. Nothing has been paid on the preferred stock to date. Unpaid accumulations were $7.50 a share on June 15, 1935.

'MOP' FINANCIAL PLAN IS UNFAIR, SAYS BOND GROUP

Charges Stockholders Get Most Benefits.

New York, Aug. 9.—[Special.]—In a letter signed by every committee member except S. Parker Gilbert of J. P. Morgan & Co. the protective committee for Missouri Pacific railroad first and refunding mortgage bonds today charged that the plan of reorganization sponsored by C. P. Van Sweringen was drawn almost entirely for the benefit of the stockholders, particularly Alleghany corporation.

The Morgan firm is the principal bank creditor of the Van Sweringen holding companies whose notes are secured in part by pledge of Alleghany stock.

Outlines Group's Objections.

Seeking deposits of bonds to oppose the Van Sweringen plan before the interstate commerce commission, the committee outlined the following objections:

"With minor exceptions, each bond issue of the old companies is treated in substantially the following way: Each bondholder is given for his present holdings new securities which preserve the principal amount of his holdings, but which are inferior to the old. For instance, if you now hold a $1,000 bond, you would be given a new first mortgage bond for $250 and a new convertible income general mortgage bond for $750. On the first mortgage bond you would get 4 per cent interest. As this 4 per cent would be on 25 per cent of your present holdings, it would be equivalent to 1 cent interest on your present bonds.

Maximum is 4¾ Per Cent.

"On the $750 bond, the full 5 per cent interest, even if paid, would be the equivalent of 3¾ per cent on your present bonds. This would give you a total maximum income of 4¾ per cent on your present bonds, which would be all you could get even if earnings returned to the 1929 levels. However, you could not expect to receive any interest on the income bonds until the earnings of the railroad had materially increased, and you would not receive full interest until the net earnings of the company were approximately three times their present amount unless there had been substantial conversion or retirement of these bonds.

"Naturally, during the period in which no interest or reduced interest was being paid the income bonds would sell at a correspondingly reduced price.

Stockholders' Position.

"The provision for the stockholders is in striking contrast. Except for one or two insignificant items [and discounting the effect of possible conversion of other securities as explained above] the plan does not provide for the issuance of any new common stock to any class of old security other than the old Missouri Pacific preferred and common stock. Consequently all but a few shares of the common stock of the new company would be owned by the stockholders of the old company.

"The present control would not be seriously affected, as 35 per cent is sufficient to give working control. It is apparent, therefore, that although the bondholders are asked to accept great sacrifices the stockholders propose to give up very little."

$18,000 FREE!

The directors of this company have appropriated this amount to be given away on used cars. PRICES REDUCED EQUAL THIS AMOUNT.

This means a tremendous loss on all cars now in our stock, but WE HAD TO DO IT. Our great volume of new and used car business is piling up the used car stock, and WE MUST KEEP OUR USED CAR STOCK DOWN.

CARS AS LOW AS $45

Our stock includes Fords, Chevrolets, Pontiacs, Buicks, Packards, Studebakers.

All Makes and Models

Some of our cars reduced as noted below:
$1,000 cars reduced to $500
$700 cars reduced to $350
$400 cars reduced to $200
$350 cars reduced to $150

REMEMBER

This is not an auction sale or a trick sale, or one of those 90c sales—BUT a bona-fide sale of automobiles where the prices have been drastically reduced.
